Economy League Sees Debt Peril U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 17.—[Special.]—The national debt, increasing at the rate of 10 million dollars a day, has now crept up to within three billion dollars of the wartime peak of 1919, says the National Economy league in a petition addressed today to the President and congress calling for a balanced budget.

Only through such a step, it says, can national credit be maintained. The petition sets forth that there is a limit to governmental borrowing, and if this be passed it heads the nation toward loss of credit, the printing of fiat money, and insolvency.

Reduction of expenditures and imposition of new and higher taxes are means urged by the league for balancing the budget.

Increases Total Seven Billions.

The national debt, it points out, now stands at more than 23½ billion dollars, while the increases for the two fiscal years ending June 30, 1934, will have amounted to some 7 billion dollars. The debt, it says, has almost reached a point where interest and sinking funds will take one billion 300 million a year.

"Granting that large expenditures are justified in the emergency, in order to relieve distress and promote recovery," says the petition, "it must also be recognized that there is a limit to the government's capacity to borrow even for these purposes.

"In the year ended June 30, 1933, the national debt increased by over 3 billion dollars. The increase for the current year ending June 30, 1934, is estimated at over 4 billion dollars. These vast additions to the debt are unprecedented in peace time in this or any other country.

True Balancing of Budget.

"Another enormous increase of the debt during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1935, is threatened. No assurance has been given as to the extent of future emergency expenditures or as to whether there is any considered plan to balance the budget and bring the increase of debt to a halt.

"Specifically, we petition for a true balancing of the federal budget and an early announcement of the government's determination to accomplish this result.

"By a truly balanced budget we mean that through a reduction of future expenditures—especially emergency expenditures—and through such new taxes as may be necessary after such reduction, all the expenditures of the federal government shall be kept within the receipts.

League Says It's Nonpolitical.

"We ask that the balance be struck in the budget now in preparation for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1935, if that still be practicable. Should the momentum of expenditure under commitments already made be too great to permit this, then let the balance be struck without fail in the year ending June 30, 1936. Balance there must be sooner or later—and every consideration of prudence dictates that the balance be achieved soon."

At the outset the league says it is nonpolitical and nonpartisan, and that its petition is not to be construed as expressing approval or disapproval of the program or policies of the administration.

"The petition is directed to one point alone," it says, "the point that the cost of the program is becoming so vast that unless the expenditure is checked the national credit will be endangered.

Duty of Government to Aid.

"We are dealing solely with the question of national credit as distinguished from technical questions of purely monetary policy. If the dollar were stabilized tomorrow such stabilization necessarily would break down in the face of continued national deficits. The soundness of the nation's currency depends ultimately upon one thing alone—the integrity of the national credit. And national credit, like individual credit, depends upon abstention from excessive borrowing.

"We are not unmindful of the moral right and duty of the federal government to step in where state and local governments are clearly unable to protect the victims of the depression from actual hardship. The federal government must do its part in such circumstances. At the same time, the marked tendency of state and local communities to 'lie down' on the re-

SHOWDOWN DUE TODAY ON INSULL RECEIVERSHIPS

Charge of Collusion Gets Hearing.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.

A long awaited showdown on the charge that Samuel Insull and his bankers organized the receivership of his multiple utility holding companies for their own convenience is expected today.

For the first time since he first made the charge eleven months ago former Corporation Counsel Samuel A. Ettelson is expected to have full opportunity to show whether it can be sustained. The case comes before Judge Evan A. Evans of the federal Appellate court.

The immediate issue turns on Mr. Ettelson's motion to deny any fees to Calvin Fentress and some of the attorneys who served him while he was receiver for Insull Utility Investments, Inc. Beyond this minor issue, however, looms the great question of the integrity of the Insull receiverships as a whole.

Findings Uphold Ettelson.

Mr. Ettelson contends that Mr. Fentress and his attorneys, as nominees of Samuel Insull or of his bankers, have forfeited the right to fees. A federal referee in bankruptcy and a federal district judge have already found Mr. Fentress to have been the bankers' nominee for receiver, a finding which cost him his place.

Aside from the question of the Fentress fees, however, Judge Evans has evinced a disposition to go to the bottom of the Insull crash and determine who shaped the foundations on which the receiverships rest.

Repeatedly, before Referee Garfield Charles and before District Judges Walter C. Lindley, James H. Wilkerson and George A. Carpenter, Mr. Ettelson has charged that the entire slate of Insull receivers and attorneys was arranged at a conference between Insull and the bankers in Insull's office some days before they took the receiverships into Judge Lindley's court.

In persuading Judge Lindley to appoint their nominees, some of whom have since been replaced, Insull and the bankers imposed upon the judge, Ettelson maintains.

Insull Resigns and Departs.

Even before Ettelson first raised the charge of frameup before Referee Charles there were indications that all was not right in the Insull receivership setup. Insull himself, originally one of three receivers for the Middle West Utilities company, had quietly resigned and sailed for Europe, where he is now fighting extradition.

Patrick A. Lucey, former attorney general of Illinois and an Insull attorney, was dropped as receiver for the Corporation Securities company. George A. Cooke, former state Supreme court judge and also an Insull attorney, resigned as attorney in the Insull Utility Investments case.

But other Insull nominees such as Britton I. Budd, receiver for the elevated lines, and Daniel J. Schuyler attorney for the Middle West receivers, retained their places.

Ettelson maintains that he is fighting for a principle and the court actions in the case up to now would indicate that a principle may be involved. Not only was Mr. Fentress dismissed but another nominee, W. W. Wheelock, sponsored by the same attorneys who backed Mr. Fentress, was refused appointment.

Bankers Are Summoned.

To support his charges of collusion Mr. Ettelson has at various times subpoenaed ten Chicago bankers and attorneys to testify concerning a conference in Insull's office three days before the receiverships were taken into court. For various reasons none of these witnesses ever testified concerning such a conference excepting Howard Fenton, president of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, who denied knowledge of it.

For today's hearing Ettelson has procured subpoenas against Samuel Insull Jr., James R. Leavell, and Abner J. Stilwell, both of the Continental-Illinois National Bank and Trust company; Washington Flexner, president of the Lincoln Printing company and John E. Wing of the Insull law firm of Isham, Lincoln & Beale. These are supposed to be some of the fifteen who attended the alleged "collusive" conference.

Even though his empire had crashed in ruins at the time of the alleged collusive conference, Insull, it

THE ANNUAL MIRACLE

Liquor Control Parley Is Held in Springfield

BY PARKE BROWN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 17.—[Special.]—Gov. Henry Horner, Mayor E. J. Kelly of Chicago and the advisers of both were still locked up tight tonight in the executive mansion in the effort to reach an agreement that would produce the enactment of an Illinois liquor control law.

Early in the evening an official statement was issued averring that "an understanding" had been reached, but persistence of newspaper men in attempting to break the veil of secrecy sought to be thrown around the conference disclosed that anything like an agreement was not hoped for until about the time that the Chicago mayor's train was due to pull out of the capital in the early morning hours.

The senators are due to meet tomorrow to receive and order the printing of a series of amendments agreed upon for the Lager house committee bill passed last week, but at a late hour the Horner-Kelly conferees were still going over these amendments with no definite evidence of agreement.

Statement Is Issued.

The formal statement issued by the conference at 6:30 p. m. containing the optimistic tone which was not sustained by later interviews was as follows:

"At a conference between Gov. Horner and representatives of both the downstate and the Cook county representatives held Sunday in the executive mansion an understanding was reached which, it is hoped, will lead to the passage of the liquor control bill. The result of the discussion will be made known Monday to both the downstate and the Cook county senators and it is hoped they will approve of the understanding.

"It was found when downstate and Chicago representatives got together there was really no radical difference of opinion.

"The program as outlined in the bills advocated by Gov. Horner was found to be very acceptable as far as principal fundamentals and manner of regulations were concerned. When the objections proposed during the last weeks by members of the legislature were considered on the subject matter of 'home rule,' amendments were considered which proved satisfactory to those present and it was the opinion of the governor and Mayor Kelly the principles of home rule were amply safeguarded."

Interview Horner, Kelly.

Newspaper men insisted that the statement was not definite. Despite warnings to let the conferees alone they insisted upon seeing Gov. Horner and, when he had finished talking with them, upon seeing Mayor Kelly, who was on an upper floor of the mansion awaiting dinner.

All of the questions of the newspaper men failed to produce evidence of anything approaching hostility between the two officials. Each was outspoken in his predictions that an agreement would be reached during the night. Mayor Kelly showed none of the hostility that has been pictured through downstate territory as the metropolitan menace in the present situation.

For Higher Whisky Tax.

Both officials conceded that they had agreed on continuation of the present state license fees and that the gallonage tax on whisky should be boosted from 25 cents to 50 cents. The one question remaining was that of the power of the state in local affairs. Mayor Kelly, he indicated, was not ready to commit himself on this subject. He said it was a matter for city council consideration.

Hit-Run Auto Kills Wealthy Clubwoman

Mrs. Margaret Grace, 63 years old, 5420 Sheridan road, a wealthy widow and active clubwoman, was killed and her nurse was critically injured last night by the automobile of a hit and run driver. The nurse, Miss Mary Doran, 45 years old, was taken to John B. Murphy hospital.

The hit and run driver was later surrendered to police by his employer, Arthur G. Strassheim, 6437 Magnolia avenue, president of the Broadway Trust and Savings bank, 2305 North Clark street. Mr. Strassheim walked into the Summerdale station with his Negro chauffeur, James McKnight, 33 years old, 5632 Indiana avenue, who said he drove away in a panic after striking the women.

Victim Attends Wake.

The accident happened in front of the Edgewater Beach apartments at 5555 Sheridan road, where Mrs. Grace had been attending the wake for Lieut. Frank T. Ford, secretary to Police Commissioner Allman, who died Saturday.

With Miss Doran, who was also her companion, Mrs. Grace started to cross Sheridan road from the east side. The large car ran them both down and disappeared in the heavy traffic before witnesses could obtain the license numbers.

Police broadcast two radio messages describing the car without result and were about to send a third when the driver was surrendered.

Tells of Accident.

McKnight told his employer about the accident upon reaching the home and then consented to go to the police station with Mr. Strassheim.

Mrs. Grace was the widow of Edward Grace, old time Chicago hotel man, who erected and operated the Grace hotel at 75 West Jackson boulevard. He died in 1916, leaving property valued at $1,700,000, the bulk of which he bequeathed to his wife.

Three Cops Back on Job After Harrowing Experience

Policemen William Quigley, Niles Dwyer, and Thomas Zang of the Woodlawn station returned to duty last night after being on an involuntary leave of absence since Friday night. That was the night they responded to a call to the home of William Bitent, 6412 Ellis avenue, where a missile had been thrown through a window. The policemen picked it up and fluid spilled over their clothing. It was stench bomb fluid.

Try to Extort $10,000 from Robt. Gardner

An attempt to extort $10,000 from Robert A. Gardner, broker and former national amateur golf champion, on the threat of killing his son, Henry Keep Gardner, 11 years old, was revealed last night. The Gardner home at 1051 Meadow lane, Lake Forest, has been guarded by federal agents and police since Friday.

While the extortion attempt—consisting of only one scrawled letter—is regarded as the work of amateurs, both federal and state authorities have been active in efforts to capture the plotters. Hope for their arrest was virtually abandoned last night, however, because they failed to pick up a decoy package placed at the entrance to the late J. Ogden Armour's Mellody farm, where the extortionists had ordered the $10,000 to be dropped.

Letter Threatens Family.

The extortion letter, written in pencil and mailed in an envelope addressed with purple ink, was received at the Gardner home on Friday. It said in substance:

"Mr. Gardner: You have a lot of the Keep money. You put $10,000 in $100 bills in a can at the entrance to the J. Ogden Armour drive at Deerpath avenue and Waukegan road before 12 midnight, Dec. 15. If you don't we will take your little boy, Henry, for a ride, and we'll also blow up the Casino club, where you're having a party for your daughter, Mary. If you tell anybody about this they will be shot on sight at the Armour place, right in the road."

The reference to the "Keep money" was probably inspired by knowledge that Mr. Gardner's wife is the former Katharine Keep, who received a bequest estimated at $1,500,000 on the death of her father, Chauncey Keep, lawyer and capitalist, in 1929.

Plotters Make an Error.

In another reference—that concerning a party for the Gardners' daughter, Mary, at the Casino club, the extortionists were in error. A Casino club dance is to be given Dec. 26 for Miss Marie Louise Gardner, daughter of the Henry A. Gardners of Winnetka and a niece of the Robert A. Gardners.

Immediately after receiving the extortion letter Robert Gardner notified Police Chief Frank Tiffany of Lake Forest and Melvin Purvis, chief of the Chicago division of the federal bureau of investigation. The first thing done was to put a guard at the Gardner home and keep a watch over Mrs. Gardner and the three Gardner children, Mary, Robert Jr., and Henry.

Mr. Purvis detailed five federal agents to the case, and Chief Tiffany assigned several of his detectives and himself.

After the decoy package was placed at the entrance to Mellody farm, the entire area around the entrance was kept under surveillance. Several Lake Forest police squad cars with radio receiving and sending equipment patrolled the roads. But the extortionists failed to appear.

Mr. Gardner is a partner in Mitchell, Hutchins & Co., 231 South La Salle street. He has been identified with the amateur sport world for years. As a member of the Yale university track team he once set the world's record in the pole vault.

In 1909, while still at Yale, he won the national amateur golf championship. He won it again in 1915. In 1920 he lost the British open golf title by one stroke.

SHIP RESCUES 4 MEN ADRIFT 20 HOURS IN PLANE

MARSEILLES, France, Dec. 18 [Monday].—(AP)—Four men who had been adrift aboard their crippled seaplane for more than twenty hours in the stormy Mediterranean were rescued at dawn today by the steamer Saint Marguerite.

All of the passengers are Frenchmen. They left Marseilles this morning in the seaplane, flying on a regular commercial line to Algiers, after waiting an hour and a half for the storm to clear. The same snowstorm imperiled the airplane of Pierre Cot, France's minister of air, who flew to Algiers. He landed amidst a hailstorm. Tomorrow he will greet the "black squadron" of French planes, which ends its flight to African colonies.

Boy, 14, Loses His Right Eye While Playing Indian

Paul Starcevich, 14 years old, 10125 Hoxie avenue, lost his right eye yesterday while playing "cowboy and Indian" with some other boys in a vacant lot at 101st street and Hoxie avenue. He was being chased as part of the game when he stumbled and fell upon a clump of weeds which had stiff stalks. One of the stalks penetrated his eye.

ATTACK PARADE HELD IN PROTEST AGAINST SOVIET

3,000 Ukrainians Are Targets of Mob.

Appeal for Starving

VIENNA, Dec. 17.—(AP)—A two day international conference for the relief of persons reported starving in south Russia, under the leadership of Cardinal Archbishop Theodore Innitzer, closed today. A resolution was adopted urging nations with surplus foodstuffs to ship them to the famine centers in the Ukraine and North Caucasus to save "millions of lives." The resolution said millions already have perished of hunger in the section during the last year.

More than 100 persons were injured in a riot yesterday afternoon when a massed attack was launched by several hundred communists on a parade of 3,000 Ukrainians marching in West Madison street. Bricks, clubs, eggs, and other missiles were rained on the marchers from the Hermitage avenue "L" station which bridges Madison street. Brass knuckles, blackjacks, fists, and rifle butts were used in the battle which was ended by the arrival of a dozen squads of police.

Nineteen persons from both sides were taken to the county and the Jefferson Park hospitals, where they were treated for lacerations and bruises. Scores of others had injuries cared for by friends and were able to leave the scene unaided.

Eleven Are Arrested.

All who received hospital treatment were later taken to police stations. Ten men and one woman, alleged communists or sympathizers, were ordered held on charges of rioting. Two of them were booked on the additional charge of carrying concealed weapons. All will be arraigned in the Boys' court today. The prisoners identified as paraders were released.

The clash was precipitated by the "atrocity" charges made against soviet Russia by the Relief Committee for Starving Ukraine, which is sponsored by the United Ukrainian Organizations of Chicago. The committee charges that several million Ukrainians were allowed to starve to death this year by soviet authorities.

Ukrainian Guard Leads Parade.

The paraders, led by a company of Ukrainian siege guards, clad in khaki and carrying unloaded military rifles, were on their way to the Chicago Journeymen Plumbers' hall at 1340 West Washington boulevard. There a protest meeting was held after the riot, with an airing of the charges to which the communist sympathizers had objected.

The paraders were wearing the colorful peasant costumes of their home land when they congregated in front of St. Nicholas Greek Orthodox church at North Oakley boulevard and Rice street shortly before 2 o'clock. Mixing an evident feeling of festivity with the indignation proper to the occasion, the paraders marched south in Oakley boulevard to Madison street and then turned east in Madison.

Thirty-five policemen were assigned to the demonstration, about half of them to the hall. Only a half dozen were at the scene of the riot, however.

Police Accompany Paraders.

Several motorcycle policemen sped up and down along the ranks of the marchers as the procession proceeded east in Madison street. When the parade neared the elevated tracks of the Humboldt park branch, which cross Madison street at about 1800 west, the crowds along the sidewalks began to shout and boo. On the elevated platform above the street about 200 persons had gathered.

Suddenly, as the leaders of the parade passed beneath the "L" structure, hundreds of missiles were hurled down on them from above. The line came to a halt, and the hundreds of communist sympathizers on the sidewalks pitched into the paraders. The men among them fought back with willing vim.

About one-third of the paraders were women and children, who scrambled to get out of the range of flying brickbats. The paraders showed themselves in many instances prepared for what happened by whipping out blackjacks and brass knuckles to give even battle.

In about ten minutes two squads of police arrived from the Warren avenue station, three from Des Plaines street, and seven from downtown. Mainly with the aid of the Ukrainian siege guards, who used clubbed rifles, police within five minutes routed the Reds and quelled the fighting.

One woman member of the attacking mob carried a length of lead pipe wrapped in a handkerchief. She was disarmed, but managed to escape.

The alleged leaders of the ambush crowd were identified by the police as Sam Bretz, 38 years old, 1330 North Talman avenue, a Russian, who was armed with a blackjack, and Sam Grosky, 51 years old, of 1210 South Morgan street, who carried brass knuckles. They are charged with carrying concealed weapons. Nine others, including Mrs. Fannie Tetrova, 50 years old, 1407 South California avenue, are charged with rioting. Most of them denied they were communists.

Blame Soviet Government.

The relief committee, in its notice of the meeting, stated that millions of Ukrainians died this year of starvation and diseases caused by malnutrition, although the Ukraine contains the famous black soil belt which is the chief wheat producing section of soviet Russia.

The local relief committee charged that this condition was brought about by the soviet government in retaliation for Ukrainian resistance to communism. Four-fifths of the thirty million inhabitants of the region are Ukrainians, who are not true Russians and are said to have little national sympathy with other groups of the union.

Holdup Near Riot Scene.

While the policemen were quelling the riot a robber, holding his hand in his pocket as if concealing a revolver, held up a Standard Oil filling station at 1439 West Washington boulevard, a few blocks from the disturbance. He obtained $15 from the attendant, Thomas O'Connor, 5461 West Washington boulevard, and 8 cents from a customer, Gerald Long, 1334 West Madison street.

The robber locked both victims in a washroom and walked out, mingling with the policemen and rioters.

MALLORCA FIGHTS LAW REGULATING FOREIGN VISITORS

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

PALMA, Mallorca, Dec. 17.—Mallorcan business interests are up in arms over a drastic order just adopted by the Spanish government regulating foreign visitors and residents in the Balearic islands. The Fomento de Turismo at a stormy meeting adopted a resolution demanding that the government immediately rescind the regulations, which, it declares, would kill tourist trade in the islands.

The Barcelona newspaper La Publicitat accuses the government today of lack of intelligence in issuing the decree and says it is a mortal blow to the tourist trade. It declares that when visitors find their movements watched as if they were spies and when they find they are required to make interminable visits to the police and other authorities they will simply pass up the Balearic islands.

The decree treats Mallorca as if it were a country apart from Spain and sets up stringent pasports regulations for admission. Shipping companies, which in the last few years have established Mallorca as a regular port of call, are seriously concerned. One of the most important of these companies is the American Export line. The Americans, likewise, are aroused by the frequent seizure of their passports by the island authorities.

Highly Valued 1794 Violin Stolen at Church Service

A violin, made in Germany in 1794 and valued at several thousand dollars, was stolen yesterday from the rear of Englewood Christian church, 6625 Stewart avenue. The owner, Fred W. GOLD PROGRAM ATTACKED ANEW AS TRADE'S FOE

Brookings Institution Hits Roosevelt's Policy.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17.—[Special.]—Just as President Roosevelt was congratulating himself that he had routed the critics of his monetary policy a formidable attack on the currency depreciation experiment materialized today in a quarter friendly to the administration.

The Brookings institution, which has found much to commend in the new deal hitherto, issued a survey of the gold purchase today, the conclusions of which are that the scheme cannot be relied upon to restore the 1926 price level and may be potent in retarding economic recovery.

Because of the far reaching and uncertain implications of the gold purchase plan, the study suggests a reconsideration of the whole monetary policy in relation to the recovery of prosperity.

Sees Significant Lull.

The President had detected what appeared to him to be a decided and significant lull in the onslaught of the sound money forces upon his drive to depress the gold value of the paper dollar. He thought the circumstance betoken the routing of his foes by multiplying evidences that the country is strongly in favor of the course he is pursuing.

From opponents of the President has come a different explanation. It is that the opposition had died down for the moment merely because the President had halted his dollar depreciation operations. Not since the first of the month has he increased the price offered for gold in pursuance of his plan to drive the value of the dollar down and thereby drive commodity prices up.

Although the President has spurned the pleas of the sound money men for stabilization of the dollar on a restored fixed gold basis he has in effect for the last fortnight stabilized the dollar at a value of about 62 cents. Many of his critics are advocating stabilization at about that level.

Apparent Gains Also Cited.

Another suggestion was that the improvement in business that appears to be taking place had taken the edge off the complaint that the uncertainty created by dollar manipulation is killing business initiative and retarding recovery generally.

It is evident, however, that the sound money forces are merely girding for a fresh attack. As the spearhead of the onslaught they have organized the economists national committee on monetary policy headed by 100 nationally known economists.

The condemnation of the President's monetary policy issued by the Brookings institution, which specializes on government questions and economic research, is contained in a 132 page report with voluminous documentary appendices. It was prepared by Leo Pasvolsky, noted monetary expert, in coöperation with Dr. Harold G. Moulton, president of the institution, and several members of the staff.

Evidence Is Marshaled.

The report marshals a vast array of evidence to demonstrate that there "is no assured and predictable relationship between the depreciation of the currency unit and the commodity price level."

"If the theory underlying the gold purchase plan were valid, and a 20 per cent depreciation of the dollar could be definitely counted on to raise the commodity price level by 20 per cent within a predictable period of time," says the report, "we would know precisely to what extent it would be necessary to increase the price of gold in order to give us the price level desired. But since the extent of the commodity price rises is altogether unpredictable, no one can possibly know how far the price of gold might have to be raised to achieve the desired results, nor how long a period of time might be involved in the process. The inescapable result is monetary uncertainty.

"The effects of monetary uncertainty upon economic life have been clearly revealed in post-war experience. The economic repercussions manifest themselves principally in connection with international trade, the capital market, and government credit.

Foreign Trade Affected.

"The depreciation of currency units in the foreign exchanges affects international trade in a number of ways. The uncertainty with respect to the value of currencies increases the risk in the short term credit operations upon which the conduct of foreign trade so largely depends, and leads to an almost complete cessation of long term investment. The consequence is a curtailment of trade.

"The artificial stimulus to exports resulting from a depreciated currency leads sooner or later to retaliatory action on the part of other countries—retaliation which may take the form of higher tariffs, import licenses, quota systems, or competition in the business of currency depreciation. The experience of the last two years is replete with examples of such action. The cumulative effect has been to demoralize international trade in general and with it the production of wealth everywhere. Instead of making it possible for men and women in all countries to produce commodities and trade with the people of other countries, these policies have served to increase unemployment and impoverishment.

Uncertainty Is Assailed.

"The effects of monetary uncertainty are of equal importance in connection with the so-called capital market. It is recognized that a full employment of labor and thorough business recovery cannot be expected until the construction of capital goods is resumed. The resumption of capital enterprise depends in large measure upon the resumption of normal issues of long term securities. In the presence of an uncertain monetary policy the flotation of such securities is unquestionably deterred. While this problem is complicated by other factors, monetary instability is clearly an important contributing cause.

"Finally, experience shows that monetary uncertainty sooner or later leads to a deterioration of government credit. So long as the uncertainty prevails, potential investors hesitate to purchase fixed income securities of all kinds, including those issued by the government. Outstanding government issues decline in value, with resulting repercussions upon the banking structure and the investment markets.

"In the United States at the present time the maintenance of government credit is of especial importance because of its relation to other phases of the general recovery plan. Public loans must be floated if the necessary funds are to be available for carrying out the program of public works, as well as the numerous relief, housing, and agricultural projects now under way. Difficulty in borrowing might force the government either to curtail these projects or to embark upon the issuance of greenback currency as an alternative means of meeting its final obligations and requirements.

"Past experience in many countries has invariably shown that when a government resorts to the printing press for fiscal purposes, monetary uncertainty becomes greatly intensified, the flight of capital from the country is accelerated, and the depreciation of the currency in the foreign exchange becomes increasingly difficult to control. It should be borne in mind in this connection that, largely because of its psychological effects, the issuance of greenbacks would have an influence upon the foreign exchange value of the dollar similar to that of an increase in the price paid for gold."

TVA REJECTS PLAN FOR POWER PEOPLE TO CONSTRUCT DAM

Knoxville, Tenn., Dec. 17.—[Special.]—The Tennessee Valley authority announced it had rejected a proposal of private power interests to build the Aurora dam, near the mouth of the Tennessee river and will build the dam itself.

Chairman A. E. Morgan said that construction of the Aurora dam was an integral part of the TVA power program. Senator Alben Barkley headed a delegation of Kentuckians before the authority two weeks ago in asking that the private interests be permitted to put up $7,000,000 to be supplemented with $14,000,000 federal funds for building the dam.

The TVA also declared use of its name by the Farmers' Fertilizer cooperative, Harry J. Frahan, secretary-manager, of Sheffield, Ala., was unwarranted and unauthorized. An "open letter to farmers" was sent out by the "coöperative" to farmers, asking they order their 1934 supply of fertilizer from the TVA through the Farmers' Fertilizer coöperative.

FIFTY OFFER TO GIVE THEIR BLOOD TO SAVE MOTHER

Mrs. Elsie Fritz, 33 years old, 15 West 65th street, was given a fighting chance for life at the county hospital last night, following a blood transfusion—the result of a radio appeal.

She has been in a critical condition since Dec. 10 following childbirth. Dr. Karl Meyer, head of the hospital, and his aids, had an appeal put on the air for volunteers for a blood transfusion.

Yesterday fifty applicants, men and women, appeared at the hospital. Martin McManus, 28 years old, 503 Aberdeen street, was selected. He gave a pint of blood. Mrs. Fritz rallied immediately.

PLANS STRONGER CONTROL OVER INDUSTRY CODES

Johnson Wants Power to Veto Prices.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17.—[Special.]—Pressed by demands by labor forces, and from consumers' organizations, for representation on code authorities, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, has conceived a new plan for exerting federal control over industries.

Discussing it today, Gen. Johnson said it provided for the placing of one NRA representative on every code authority, to be selected by the administrator.

This representative will be assisted by two "advisors," one drawn from the ranks of labor, and nominated by the labor advisory board of NRA, and the other to be nominated by the consumers advisory board.

An important part of Administrator Johnson's announcement was that he proposes to give the NRA representatives on each code authority a veto power over any of the actions the authority may elect to take.

Provides Veto Power.

In other words, in the "self government" of each industry, which the general has often discussed as his aim, a code authority may decide to take some step with respect to prices, or production, or wages. If it suits the NRA representative, it will be put into effect; otherwise he can veto the action.

Gen. Johnson said he still opposed giving the federal representative on code authorities a voting power; that this put a responsibility on the government which he thought should not be assumed, and also might interfere with the self government of an industry.

"But we've got to sit in somewhere," he added, "and it seems to me the power to veto action is the best."

He pointed out that if any code authority disputes the justice of any veto imposed by a federal representative, the industrial members of the authority may appeal to the administrator for a review of the facts.

Vigilant About Prices.

To newspaper men Gen. Johnson today asserted that the time for exerting vigilance in the protection of consumers has just arrived. With the codes now formed, and in operation, watchfulness should be commenced to be certain that the consuming public is not oppressed by high prices.

The general insisted that it was not possible to lay down firm and definite rules in codes to protect consumers.

"Economics is not an exact science," he said. "It is just pseudo science. People debate conjecturally on how the NRA ought to work out, but it can't be gauged in advance. And the thing to remember is that everything that is being done here can be changed at any time, if it is shown to be working wrong.

"I'm not alarmed at any of the decisions that have been made, because we can review or change them any day."

Two New Assistants.

Explaining his appointment of two new men as "special assistants for consumers," Gen. Johnson denied that they would usurp the power of Mrs. Mary Harriman Rumsey, chairman of the Consumers Advisory board.

The two men, Leon Henderson of New York, a member of the staff of the Russell Sage foundation, and S. J. Schlink of Washington, N. J., director of Consumers' Research, Inc., had criticized Mrs. Rumsey as inefficient and incapable of properly representing the consuming public.

Gen. Johnson, after hearing the complaints, said he had suggested that the men come to Washington and he promised to grant them free access to all information in possession of the NRA.

"I told them I would be glad to receive any suggestions they may offer with respect to protecting consumers," Mr. Johnson added.

Mrs. Rumsey is a society woman, a daughter of E. H. Harriman, and among other activities is one of the group of three—Vincent Astor, and Averill Harriman [her brother], being the others—which is publishing the new magazine, Today, a weekly. Mrs. Rumsey was a heavy contributor to the Roosevelt campaign chest.

Pays to Arbitrate.

Gen. Johnson said he had found it practicable, in dealing with critics of the NRA, to invite them to Washington to work with the administration, and he declared this was his motive in bringing Henderson and Schlink into the consumers' end of the NRA.

"I've found that when you get some of the people who have been shouting objections to the NRA to work in it, they have turned into zealots for the cause.

"Why, look at Tom Hammond [Gen. Thomas Hammond of Chicago who resigned the presidency of the Illinois Manufacturers' association to join the Johnson staff and who on Dec. 1 resigned from the NRA after differences with Gen. Johnson]. He sat in that chair you're sitting in and he was absolutely purple with opposition. Yet we got him in the administration and he was one of our ablest advocates."

Price Complaints Dwindling.

Gen. Johnson said that complaints against high prices resulting from the operation of NRA codes had dwindled down to practically nothing. For a time after the codes went into effect some merchants and manufacturers hiked prices up unreasonably, he said, but the natural laws of price and demand soon convinced them that if they desired to do a volume business they would have to keep prices down, and at present there are no complaints of sufficient importance to warrant a general investigation.

Pointing out that he had called a hearing for Dec. 15 to investigate complaints of profiteering, the general stated that there had been no evidence of profiteering presented, and he adjourned the hearing until Jan. 9.

40,000 TEACHERS TO GET JOBS THROUGH FEDERAL EASY MONEY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17.—(AP)—The federal relief administration's program for reëmployment of 40,000 jobless teachers throughout the country was described tonight in an address by Dr. L. R. Alderman, its director of work relief education.

Dr. Alderman said the administration already had arranged to provide the necessary funds, $2,000,000 per month, and that all save four states—which he did not name—had approved programs.

His address was broadcast by the National Broadcasting company.

"Aside from the important feature of giving employment to 40,000 needy teachers," he said, "is the still more important fact that the programs provide instruction to the millions who need it, especially at this time, in order to keep up their courage and faith in themselves."

WOMAN AIDING MEN SHOOTS TWO IN TAVERN FIGHT

Two youths were shot by a woman when she went to the aid of her husband and her brother-in-law during a brawl in a tavern at 4800 Throop street early today. They are David Cosgrove, 21 years old, 4635 Union avenue, and Bernard Scanlan, also 21, of 832 West 51st place. Cosgrove was shot near the abdomen and Scanlan in the head and right thigh. Both are in a serious condition in the Bridewell hospital.

The woman who shot them is Mrs. Marie Wozniak, 38 years old. Those whom she aided were her husband, Frank Wozniak, 40 years old, and Paul Parus, 38, husband of her sister, owners of the tavern.

Earlier in the night Wozniak had ejected from the tavern a man known as "Fat." This man returned early today with three friends, among them Scanlan and Cosgrove. The four immediately attacked Parus and Wozniak, hitting them with beer steins. When Parus called for help Mrs. Wozniak responded with a gun. She fired three shots, all of which took effect. Some unidentified gunmen fired five shots at her, but missed. He got away.

CLEWS INDICATE DEATH OF VANCE NOT ACCIDENTAL

Police Investigation Is Under Way.

New York, Dec. 17.—[Special.]—Louis Joseph Vance, who was burned to death in his apartment at the Town House, in East Thirty-eighth street, left a mystery behind him as baffling as any he concocted in fiction.

Dr. Milton Helpern, assistant medical examiner, who performed an autopsy on the body of the author today, refused to certify his death as accidental, pending completion of chemical analysis of Vance's blood and internal organs.

Finds Benzine Can.

The discovery of an almost empty eight ounce can of benzine in the bathroom of the author's apartment, and the extent of the burns on the body, Dr. Helpern said, made the case suspicious enough to warrant further police investigation.

Two detectives of the homicide squad, it was learned, were assigned to investigate the manner in which Vance died, within an hour of the discovery of his body early yesterday morning.

Despite the suspicious circumstances surrounding the death of the noted mystery story writer, members of his family are satisfied that he died as a result of an accident.

Howard Kyle, an actor and brother-in-law of Vance, declared there was nothing mysterious to him about the presence of the can of benzine in the bathroom, and nothing improbable in the theory that the author fell asleep while smoking and set himself on fire.

"I have known Joe since he was 18 years old," said Kyle, "and he always was particular about spots on his clothing. He often tried to clean his things himself because he believed he could do a more thorough job. To those of us who knew him intimately there is nothing inconsistent with his way of life in the finding of a benzine can in his apartment."

Warned About Smoking.

Kyle said also that the author's habit of falling asleep with a lighted cigaret in his hand was the despair of his family. Mrs. Vance, the former Nance Elizabeth Hodges, artist, who lived apart from her husband, had often warned Vance that his carelessness with cigarets would be the death of him, Mr. Kyle said.

Only last week, Kyle recalled, Vance, when staying overnight at the Players' club, left his door ajar and asked the housekeeper to look in on him to make sure he had not fallen asleep while smoking.

Close friends of Vance said that for 11 years before repeal he had hardly touched alcohol. He was not a good drinker and a highball or two was sufficient to bring on drowsiness, it was said. He had taken an occasional drink since prohibition was repealed, according to friends.

Doors, Windows Locked.

William McCoy, the assistant manager, found the door locked from the inside. The apartment finally was entered after one of the windows had been broken.

Vance was lying with his head and shoulder on the smouldering ruins of a chair, which was the only article of furniture in the apartment, except some window drapes, that had been burned. McCoy and hotel employés extinguished the fire without calling the fire department.

Dr. Robert C. Fisher, the assistant medical examiner, ordered the body removed to the morgue for an autopsy. He was motivated by the unusual extent of the body burns and the discovery of the benzine can.

The autopsy showed Vance's torso and head were so badly burned that one who was present at the post-mortem said it looked "as though his head and shoulders had been made into a human torch by dousing them with some combustible fluid."

The scalp had been burned away completely and the jawbone was charred. Three ribs had been burned away and fire had eaten a hole into the author's chest. Three fingers also had been burned off one hand.

No Signs of Violence.

So far as could be determined by the autopsy, however, there were no wounds of any sort other than those caused by the fire. There was nothing about Vance's larynx to suggest strangling. No bruises were discovered. The position of the hands and arms, like those of a boxer on the defensive—known technically as "pugilistic rigor mortis"—suggested death by burning, according to Dr. Helpern.

Whether Vance was alive when fire started, Dr. Helpern said, could only be determined after Dr. Alexander O. Gottlier, city chemist, completes his analysis of the blood and internal organs. Tests will be made, not only for alcohol, but for every known poison and drug, Dr. Helpern said.

The test for carbon monoxide in the blood, Dr. Helpern said, is of great importance. If carbon monoxide is found in any quantity, Dr. Helpern said, it will be conclusive proof that the author was alive when the fire started. There was no trace of smoke in the lungs.

PRIMA DONNA ROBBED OF GEMS

ROSA PONSELLE.

Penthouse Victim

New York, Dec. 17.—The "flying thief" escaped with $2,000 worth of jewelry from the twelfth story penthouse apartment of Rosa Ponselle, prima donna of the Metropolitan opera, at 90 Riverside drive. That was learned today.

The burglary was committed last Wednesday while Rosa's sister, Carmela, also a singer, and a maid were in the apartment. The prima donna was absent.

Police ascribed the robbery to the same Raffles believed responsible for thefts in penthouses and apartments in the higher stories of swanky apartment buildings. Miss Ponselle refused to admit the loss to any one except the police and an insurance company.

Robber Only Interrupted as Victim's Family Arrives

While George Taylor, resident collector for the apartment hotel at 302 South Hamlin avenue, was being held up by a gunman in the lobby last night, his wife, Evelyn, their two children, Shirley, 13 years old, and Norman, 9, and Mrs. Taylor's mother, Mrs. Vernie Wheeler, walked up. The gunman disposed of them by ordering them into a side room. Then he finished robbing Taylor, getting $300 in cash.

Woman Theater Cashier Robbed of $65 Receipts

Five bandits obtained $65 in receipts last night when they held up Evelyn Coninos, 7949 North Western avenue, cashier of the Ramova theater, 3518 South Halsted street.

STATE TO FIGHT POLICE KILLER'S APPEAL TODAY

Assistant State's Attorney Mal Coghlan will appear before the Illinois Supreme court at Springfield today to make an oral argument to sustain the death sentence of John Scheck, police slayer. Public Defender Benjamin Bachrach will appear to ask a new trial for Scheck. The prosecution hopes for a final decision in the Scheck case at this term of court.

Scheck was convicted of murdering Policeman John Sevick with a smuggled pistol when the policeman tried to prevent his escape from the courtroom of Judge Charles P. Molthrop in the Criminal Court building. At the time Scheck was awaiting trial for the slaying of Harry Mueller, cashier of the National Bank of Niles Center, in a holdup.

In addition to the death sentence Scheck also has been convicted of slaying Mueller. He is under sentence of 99 years in the penitentiary for this crime.

SEIZE 3 YOUTHS AS ROBBERS OF 4 TEA STORES

Three youths were being held last night at the Irving Park police station after being identified in four National Tea store holdups. They are Lawrence Hapkins, 21 years old; Lloyd Hopkins, 19, his brother; and Glenn Wade, 22, all of 3615 Janssen avenue.

Shortly after they robbed one of the tea company stores at 5844 Milwaukee avenue on Friday, obtaining $4 from a clerk and $8 from a customer, Sergt. James H. Shea and his squad traced the license number of the bandit car. The detectives were waiting at an automobile renting agency when Wade drove in with the car.

Wade revealed their meeting place at 51 East Superior street and Lawrence was arrested there Saturday night. Lloyd Hopkins was seized yesterday.

FLYING 30 YEARS OLD; HUNDREDS HONOR WRIGHTS

Epoch Trial of Brothers Is Commemorated.

Kitty Hawk, N. C., Dec. 17.—(AP)—Sandy Kill Devil hill, set apart 30 years from all the other sand hills along the Carolina coast when Orville and Wilbur Wright made the first successful airplane flight from it, was visited by hundreds today in commemoration of that epochal event.

There was no formal ceremony. The principal scheduled observance, the dropping of a wreath on the hill by Lieutenant Commander Frank Hawks while on a speed flight from Washington to Dayton, O., via Kitty Hawk, was called off because of weather conditions.

Although bad weather to the north caused cancellation of Hawks' flight, it was balmy and clear here in contrast with that of Dec. 17, 1903, when the Wright brothers took their queer, boxlike plane into the air and sailed it victoriously for 120 feet.

Important Assistants.

In the gathering at the winged pylon, erected on top of the hill by the federal government, were four men who played important parts in aiding the Wrights to make their first flight. They were Adam Ethridge and John Moore, three survivors of the five men who helped the Wrights launch their plane, and Alpheus W. Drinkwater, government telegraph operator here, who flashed to the world the news of the successful flight.

Drinkwater, now president of the Kill Devil Hill Memorial association, headed the assemblage at the hill, but refused to make even a short talk.

"I'm better fitted to send messages over wires than to deliver addresses," he said. Drinkwater sent 42,000 words to the press after the Wrights' flight here on May 11, 1908, when many newspapers for the first time accepted as true reports that the Wrights had flown.

Dedicate New Hall.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 17.—(AP)—Franklin institute dedicated its new hall of aviation today in the presence of the man who 30 years ago made the first successful power flight in a heavier-than-air machine.

Orville Wright, whose plans for that first flight brought jeers from the people around Kitty Hawk, N. C., heard Amelia Earhart, first woman to fly the Atlantic ocean alone, laud him as a boon to mankind.

Wright responded to the tributes by rising. He did not speak, on orders of his physician.

Standing beneath her own scarlet monoplane—the one which hurtled her to fame on the ocean flight—Miss Earhart expressed the hope that "we shall never forget the spirit of the conception nor the beauty of flight which Orville Wright and his brother, Wilbur, opened to mankind."

On that day the temperature was near freezing and a 25 mile an hour wind whipped clouds of sand over the hill and their plane as it took off on a flight which has come to be regarded as one of the major scientific achievements of the century.

ENDS LIFE WITH POISON.

CAPE TOWN OBSERVES DEEP COLORED HALO SURROUNDING THE SUN

[Copyright, 1933, By the New York Times.]

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Dec. 17.—All Cape Town was struck with wonderment today to see the sun suddenly surrounded and immersed in a deep colored halo. The halo, a complete circle, was forty times the size of the sun and looked like dark magenta smoke shot with purple lights. Its edge was well defined in a white light against the light blue of the surrounding sky.

Dr. John Jackson, royal astronomer, described the phenomenon as "very striking and unusual." He could not identify or explain it definitely, but thought it possibly was caused by the "water crystals in a high atmosphere." This is the explanation of the ordinary halo.

To a layman's eyes today's halo was quite unlike the common halo surrounding the moon, which is believed to presage bad weather. It was far denser. It was formed with dramatic suddenness shortly after 1 o'clock in the afternoon and lasted in full effect for more than half an hour. Then it gradually thinned and disappeared until by 2 o'clock only a trace was visible. Other observers suggested the halo might have been a purely local phenomenon, the result of dust raised by an exceptionally violent gale yesterday combined with smoke from a large mountain fire that has been raging for 24 hours.

FOG BLANKETS CITY 12 HOURS; SLOWS TRAFFIC

A dense fog, moving in from the south and southeast, blanketed the Chicago metropolitan area for twelve hours yesterday. It paralyzed highway traffic and kept all airplanes on the ground at the airport.

The fog, which appeared shortly before midnight, was one of the heaviest Chicago has known in years. Visibility was limited to a few hundred feet between sunrise and noon, when the fog began to lift.

Mail and passenger planes from the west were held up at Omaha and Iowa City during the morning, with the exception of one plane which was due to arrive at the Chicago airport at midnight. This one landed at the Curtiss Reynolds airport near Glenview.

Late in the afternoon two planes came through from the west and southwest, but there was no air travel between Chicago and eastern points until 8:30 o'clock last evening, when a plane took off from the airport for Cleveland.

Automobile traffic was held at a snail's pace during the early hours of the morning, and many accidents were reported. Street car traffic was also delayed during the early hours, but all railway trains arrived on schedule.

WOMAN ESCAPES RAPIST.

Mrs. Agnes Barnes, 910 West 93d place, reported to police yesterday that a heavy set man seized her at Mosspiat and 95th streets and attempted to drag her into a nearby prairie, but released her when she screamed.

SEIZE GAMBLER AND GIRL IN HUNT FOR KILLER GANG

Police Get New Clews to Indiana Outlaws.

Five police squads, under orders to take no chances on their own lives in the hunt for the gang of escaped Indiana convicts, surrounded a building at 1742 Humboldt boulevard yesterday and seized Arthur Johnson, 29 years old, a gambler. During the night the police had arrested Jean Helen Burke, 24 years old, in a restaurant at 21 West Pearson street. The police had learned that she was a friend of John Dillinger, leader of the Indiana outlaws, one of whom, John Hamilton, killed Police Sergeant William T. Shanley last Thursday.

In Miss Burke's purse was a card listing two addresses, 1742 Humboldt boulevard and 1850 Humboldt boulevard. When the police raided Johnson's apartment at the 1742 address they found Johnson alone there, but they discovered four radio sets of short wave length capable of getting police calls. Last week the robbers who took more than $20,000 from safety deposit boxes in the closed Unity Trust and Savings bank, 3909 West North avenue, carried a radio which recorded all police alarms.

Gang Drive Moves Forward.

The killing of Shanley climaxed a series of crimes that followed the daring escape of ten convicts from the Indiana penitentiary at Michigan City last September. As a result of these crimes and others, a conference of law enforcement officials was held Saturday to plan a campaign to wipe out the outlaws. Aside from the Indiana desperadoes the authorities launched a search for four dangerous criminals —John Klutas, leader of a downstate kidnaping gang, and Basil Banghart, Charles Connors, and W. A. Hendrickson, all of the Touhy gang.

Mayor Kelly, after visiting the home of the slain Sergt. Shanley on Saturday, gave additional instructions for the gang drive to Police Commissioner Allman. The ordinary handicap of a policeman being obliged to withhold his fire until he is sure of his man, which usually allows the criminal to have the first shot, was considered. The police were told to get the Indiana convicts and the four other men at all costs.

Police Seize Burke Woman.

During the search Saturday night the police learned of the Burke woman. They found her in the Howdy club, a drinking establishment at the Pearson street address, and identified her by her red hair and leopard skin coat. She was furious over her arrest and refused to tell the police anything about herself except that she was a nurse and lived in Rogers Park. The police charged that she offered them $1,000 not to arrest her.

Believing the addresses in her purse might lead to Dillinger, Sergt. John Fogarty organized a raid on the apartment at 1742 Humboldt boulevard. Johnson, when surprised and seized in the flat, denied knowing the Burke woman, but the police found her picture in his room. The landlord, Louis Kohn, said Johnson was friendly with the occupants of several other apartments in the building.

Johnson said he had been working in a gambling house. He had $453 in his pockets. He denied knowing Dillinger, Hamilton, or any of the Indiana gang or having any affiliations with the Touhy gang or any other criminal band.

Sergt. Fogarty was told that at 3 o'clock last Monday morning Johnson helped a man move out of an apartment in the same building. Every clew gained by the police so far concerning the Indiana convicts indicate that they did not remain in any one apartment more than three or four days, keeping on the move to throw off pursuit.

In Johnson's room the police found the name of Bernice Hunter on a card. Kohn said that a woman of that name occupied room 208 in the building until a short time ago. He said she was a brunette when she rented the apartment, but a day or two later she was a blonde. In that room the searchers found a woman's red wig.

Another Woman Sought.

Another paper in Johnson's room was a bill of sale for an automobile to a Ruth Whalen, 2738 Pine Grove avenue.

Knowing that the Indiana bandits have had women companions wherever and whenever they have been seen in Chicago, the police sought Miss Whalen. The address is that of the Lincoln Park Arm hotel, where it was said no one of that name was registered.

After seizing Johnson the police raided the second apartment listed on the Burke woman's card at 1850 Humboldt boulevard. No arrests were made there, however. It was said the police did not find any questionable characters living in the building.

Johnson and Miss Burke were held for further investigation.

ROB TAVERN OWNER OF $700.

Three bandits entered the tavern of Patrick Kilty at 8400 South Halsted street as he was closing the place early yesterday and robbed him of $700, his Saturday night receipts.

BERWYN CALLS ON CHICAGO TO PAY TAXES ON FARM

Efforts of the city of Berwyn to force the city of Chicago to pay taxes on the old Gage farm, which is within the corporate limits of the suburban community, were disclosed yesterday in a communication sent by Corporation Counsel Sexton to City Controller Upham.

Arnold L. Lund, attorney for the city of Berwyn, has filed application in the County court for judgment and order of sale against the farm property on account of delinquent 1930 and 1931 taxes. He contends that Chicago owes $108,706 in taxes.

Chicago paid taxes on the property until 1919, when the state tax laws were amended exempting land owned by municipalities from taxation by other municipalities. Mr. Sexton said he believed, because of this law, that the County court would refuse the judgment and order of sale.

The city came into possession of the property, which is bounded by Home avenue and Riverside drive on the east, the Illinois Central tracks on the south and west, and Cermak road on the north, in 1881 in part settlement of a claim of $507,700 against David A. Gage, city treasurer from 1869 to 1873.

The farm was valued in 1932 by Joseph Peacock, city real estate agent, at $7,500 an acre, or $1,687,500.

FATE OF DONNE TO BE ANNOUNCED IN CAPITAL TODAY

HOLC Manager Overstays Visit to Washington.

A decision on whether William G. Donne, Illinois manager of the Home Owners' Loan corporation, will be retained, removed or permitted to resign is expected to be announced by the national board of the HOLC in Washington today.

Donne was reported to have returned to Chicago last night following the close of a two day hearing before the national board late Saturday, but Washington advices said he had not checked out of his hotel there.

It was reported in Washington that the national board, which accumulated a mass of evidence of alleged fraud and irregularities against the Illinois HOLC administration, would permit Donne to resign because of his backing in the Illinois Democratic organization. Donne is chairman of the 8th ward Democratic club.

Refusal to Resign Announced.

He has stated in interviews, however, that he would not resign and that the books of his office would serve as his defense against charges of political favoritism and unnecessary delays in the closing of home loans.

However, it was reported in Washington that the national board had received evidence worthy of reporting to the department of justice and a separate inquiry is under way in Chicago by agents of the division of investigation.

United States Attorney Dwight H. Green expects a report from these agents today on the specific charge that a mortgage speculator, Milton H. Callner, made $3,000 through a loan of $6,850 obtained on the home of Miss Rose Katz, 1520 South Clifton Park avenue. Another case reported to be under investigation is that of Dr. George F. Kolar, 436 South 8th avenue, La Grange. A mortgage of $2,800 on his home, held by Frank C. Kramp, 1716 West 35th street, is said to have fallen into Callner's hands. Investigators desire to obtain the details of the transaction from Kramp, but he is reported to have been absent from his home since last Saturday. His wife said he was taken away by two men, and she has not heard from him since.

Up to Washington, Green Says.

Mr. Green, however, said that even if evidence of fraud were uncovered he could do nothing but report it to the national board of the HOLC unless he were authorized by the attorney general to proceed with a prosecution here.

That Donne is being backed by the Illinois Democratic organization was indicated in a telephone call to the national HOLC board Saturday from a high official of the postoffice department, who asked that nothing be done on the demands for the removal of the Illinois manager until Postmaster General Farley returned from Europe. Chairman John Fahey of the HOLC said the request would not be considered.

SECRETARY WOODIN'S CONDITION BETTER, IS ARIZONA REPORT

Tucson, Ariz., Dec. 17.—(AP)—William H. Woodin, secretary of the treasury, suffering from a throat ailment here, was described by members of his family as "much better" today.

He was ordered to bed by his physicians yesterday as a precautionary measure against the old trouble which forced him to obtain a leave of absence from Washington and come west for a complete rest.

The family, which includes his son, William H. Woodin Jr., who has had a winter home here for several years, said the elder Woodin's condition "never was bad," but that he was being kept quiet and not allowed to talk.

Mr. Woodin's work was taken over recently by Henry G. Morgenthau Jr. after the secretary of the treasury had been unable to continue in office. He came to Tucson two weeks ago.

THOMAS HEFLIN HOPES TO WIN CONGRESS SEAT

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 17.—(AP)—Former United States Senator Tom Heflin has tossed his hat back into the Democratic political ring as a primary candidate for congress from the 5th Alabama district. He was beaten for the senate in 1930 by John A. Bankhead.

In announcing his plans to seek a seat in the house, the former senator said his decision was influenced "because our weak place is in debating ability." He added he would "help the President obtain legislation that will take the control of the money supply out of the hands of those who produce panics every ten or twelve years."

Heflin virtually was read out of the Democratic party in 1929 by the Alabama executive committee. Heflin took the stump against Alfred E. Smith in 1928.

Portland, Ore., Dec. 17.—(AP)—He was a little boy of 5 years or so, but his eager curiosity seemed to Santa Claus to embrace the entire toyland of the department store.

"And, my fine boy," the ruddy cheeked, smiling Saint Nick asked, "what would you like for Christmas?"

Wide eyed, the youngster looked Santa over for a moment, from his tassled cap to his shining boots.

"It's all fixed, mister," he replied. "I just told your brother in the department store across the street what I want."

STUDENTS' ROOM ROBBED.

EUROPE'S TINY MONACO TO SUE MISSISSIPPI

Claims State Defaulted on Old Bond Issues.

New York, Dec. 17.—[Special.]—The principality of Monaco, which has lost a lot of its gay, tax free atmosphere since the "take" from the roulette wheels in the Monte Carlo casino dropped off during the world-wide depression, is about to attempt a financial comeback at the expense of the cotton growers in Mississippi.

The consulate general of the tiniest state in Europe announced today that its attorneys will ask leave tomorrow to bring suit in the Supreme Court of the United States for recovery of principal and interest on $100,000 of bonds issued by Mississippi and in default for 92 years.

Empowered to Sue.

It was explained by the consulate that Monaco is empowered as a sovereign state to sue one of the United States, a privilege not accorded to individuals, and that the bonds were given the principality by three descendants of original investors, who had finally been convinced that, so far as private holders were concerned, the delta state was going to continue too proud to pay.

The bonds are of two issues. The first issue was put out between 1831 and 1838 for a total of $2,000,000. The second came out in 1838 and was for $5,000,000. Both were sold abroad for gold and interest payments were continued until 1841. Thereafter Mississippi settled down and declared an embargo on interest. The total of this item now, to be added to the $7,000,000 that was borrowed, is about $34,000,000.

1875 Amendment.

So determined were Mississippians of grandfather's day to get rid of the nuisance of paying off that they put an amendment to the state constitution forbidding anybody in the state even to recognize that there was such a debt. That was in 1875.

Many of the creditors, mostly British but some of them Americans, have in the last 90 years made attempts to collect. They have called Mississippi's failure to pay "the classic instance of debt repudiations." Once or twice in the past American states have sued Mississippi, but Monaco's suit is the first instituted by a foreign government.

Specifically, the money raised by the bond sales was used to set up the Planters bank and the Union bank, and the default in interest was first due to the fact that the banks got into difficulties. However, the bonds were sold as a direct obligation of the state, which at various times admitted responsibility.

"Preserve Her Faith."

Most vigorous of these admissions, long prior to the amendment barring recognition of the debts, was passed by both houses of the state legislature. In part these read:

"The state of Mississippi will pay her bonds and preserve her faith inviolate; the insinuation that the state of Mississippi would repudiate her bonds and violate her plighted faith is a calumny upon the justice, honor, and dignity of the state."

It was hinted by the Monegasque consulate that its action in seeking to recover has a moral as well as a financial aspect—the moral being that it will be good for the Mississippians, spiritually, to send the $100,000 [presumably in gold, which will make the spiritual sacrifice greater] to the 25,000 inhabitants of Monaco who are suffering from silent roulette wheels while the price of cotton is climbing the heights of the New Deal.

Says the consulate relating to the suit:

"The principality has instructed its counsel to press its claim, not only in the hope of rendering valuable the bonds given to it, but in the hope that the technical constitutional impasse may be removed and a solution made of this problem which will not only benefit the general body of bondholders, but give to Mississippi an opportunity to erase this stigma from its reputation."

The principality is represented by two legal firms, Kellogg, Emery and Inness-Brown, and Coudert Brothers, both of New York.

News of the intention of Prince Louis' country to declare a legal war on the southern state was greeted by divergent comments from expatriates from Monaco and Mississippi.

"Terrific!": Dufour.

Alexandre Dufour, who formerly lived somewhere near the shadow of the casino, said:

"Ah, terrific. If the prince gets this great amount of money he will be able to keep the army, which stands guard in front of his palace. A revolution always is prospective, and every one of the 96 men in the army is needed."

A gentleman who identified himself as Maj. Mattux paused between drinks in a Broadway bar to remark:

"Why should Monaco make such an attempt on our sovereign dignity, suh? Mississippi is growing prosperous by plowing up every third row of cotton and collecting from the government. Let Monaco plow up every third roulette wheel and see what happens."

PENSION TAXES MOUNT DESPITE HEAVY RESERVES

Further Boost Indicated by Officials of Funds.

The public pension taxes are mounting. This was disclosed yesterday upon the completion of a survey of eight major pension funds of the local governments. It was learned that in the last five years there has been an increase of 40 per cent in the number of those receiving pensions and a 36 per cent increase in the amount of pensions paid. Five years ago annuities totaling $5,674,382 were paid to 8,434 pensioners. In 1933 $8,928,284 has been paid to 11,844 pensioners.

For 1931, the last year for which taxes have been extended in Cook county, the pension tax levies totaled $10,000,000. It is estimated that these levies will be increased to $16,000,000 by 1935 on the basis of new pension tax rates, and to $20,000,000 shortly thereafter on even higher tax rates which it is indicated may be sought.

Eight Major Pension Funds.

The pension funds are those of the county, city, sanitary district, city policemen, city firemen, school teachers, park employés, and park policemen. The funds are administered by boards of trustees selected by the employés participating in the benefit funds.

The pension taxes are used to build up reserves for the payment of life annuities to public employés or their widows and children, and of sick and disability benefits. Children under 18 are paid $10 a month each under the benefit provisions. The annuitants or their widows receive from 50 to 75 per cent of the amount of the salary paid. Employés contribute from their salaries to the funds.

These pension systems have built up actual reserves totaling $48,000,000. All of this money is invested in securities of the local governments yielding 4 per cent interest.

$80,000,000 on Paper.

Since the uncollected taxes of 1931 and prior years are considered assets, the pension reserves on paper total $55,500,000, and if the deferred collection of the 1932 and 1933 taxes is taken into account the paper reserves reach a sum in the neighborhood of $80,000,000.

Most taxpayers have little idea that they are paying pension taxes. Such taxes constitute part of the real estate and personal property tax bills.

The increase in pension tax rates that is now in progress had its foundation in 1931 when trustees of several pension funds moved in concert on the legislature with a demand for the higher rates. The legislators thereupon authorized progressive tax rate increases for each year beginning with 1931 and ending with 1934. It was also provided that after 1934 the peak rates of that year would continue indefinitely.

The pension trustees appealed to the legislature on the ground that their funds were running short.

City Funds Get Boost.

The pension funds that shared in the tax rate boosts were those of the city municipal employés, the policemen, the firemen, and the school teachers. The sanitary district hopped on the bandwagon by gaining authority to establish a pension system for all its employés.

Despite the depression and the difficulty of collecting taxes, there has been no effort reported on the part of the various pension boards to reduce the tax rates or to readjust the annuity and benefit bases which are said to be quite lucrative in contrast to pension provisions of private businesses. The provisions of the public pension funds are such that in many instances the money paid to an employé or his family equals the salary he received in active service.

For example, an employé going on the duty disability benefit list, regardless of his age or years of service, gets a monthly disability benefit of 75 per cent of the amount of his salary, plus $10 a month for each of his children under the age of 18. The total pension, however, is not to exceed his active duty salary.

Ordinary Benefit Provision.

An employé may also receive what is designated as an ordinary disability benefit, to the extent of 50 per cent of his salary. Ordinary disability is that resulting from sickness or injury not incurred in the performance of duty.

The only apparent concession by the pension boards to the financial difficulties of taxpayers and tax spenders alike, it was pointed out, has been an agreement not to levy the maximum amount of taxes which they were permitted by the legislature. This concession was won for the last two or three budgets of the major local governments by the citizens' committee on public expenditures.

But now, because of the 25 per cent reduction in assessed values of property which has been put in effect for the 1932 assessment by County Assessor Jacobs, and because of the deficiencies in the collection of 1929, 1930, and 1931 taxes, pension officials are becoming perturbed about their funds in spite of the huge reserves.

Official Fears Insolvency.

A. A. Weinberg, chief clerk of the Park Employés' Annuity and Benefit Fund, said there may be created a "condition which may ultimately lead to insolvency."

"The 25 per cent recently announced reduction in valuations will prevent the building up of a reserve to meet the future obligations of our fund," said Lieut. Patrick Kelly, secretary of the firemen's pension fund. "We have had to sell $2,000,000 worth of tax anticipation warrants in order to pay the annuity and benefit needs falling due. There is due the fund $6,592,000 in uncollected taxes for the years 1929 to 1933, inclusive.

"We must levy the full rate to save heavy interest charges on warrants and build up the reserve fund to care for the future obligations now being incurred."

TORNADIC WINDSTORM SWEEPS LOUISIANA; 4 DIE, 19 INJURED

Shreveport, La., Dec. 17.—(AP)—Four persons were killed and 19 were injured, two seriously, when winds of tornadic velocity swept through two Caddo parish communities this morning.

The twister came out of the southwest, laying waste to the Grayson Lumber camp, 18 miles west of Shreveport, and turning eastward to the Soda Fountain plantation, 10 miles north of Shreveport, where further destruction was wrought.

One white woman and two Negroes met instant death and valuable saw mill property was destroyed when the storm struck the lumber camp. Eleven persons at the camp were injured. A Negro woman was killed and eight Negroes were injured as the tornado swooped down on the plantation.

AAA MILK CODE NEAR COLLAPSE; SEE PRICE DROP

Distributors Withdrawing; Cite Underselling.

There were indications yesterday both in Chicago and Washington that the federal government is about ready to "liquidate" the Chicago milk marketing agreement. This would be a confession that the first effort of the agricultural adjustment administration to fix farm prices contrary to the law of supply and demand has ended in failure.

Eleven cent milk, the retail code price, will not last beyond the end of the year, according to predictions made by Chicago dealers. When this goes prices paid to dairy farmers in the Chicago milkshed will also drop from the levels now fixed by the milk code.

An amusing sidelight on the situation was the charge of some of the small milk dealers that the government itself, through its civilian conservation corps, is violating the price fixing provisions of the agreement. These dealers charged that they sought to sell milk in half pint bottles to CCC camps at 111th street and Keane road and elsewhere in the county and were told that the camps were buying milk for 2½ or 3 cents a half pint, although the code fixes 3½ cents as the price. Camp officials declared yesterday that they are now paying 3½ cents.

Small Distributors Withdraw.

Students of the milk situation here say it is not a single straw which is breaking the back of the price fixing camel, but rather a whole stack of straws, consisting chiefly of withdrawals from the agreement of virtually all the small milk distributors of the city. The West Suburban Milk Dealers association, it was learned yesterday, has already written AAA officials in Washington, withdrawing the signatures of its members from the milk code.

Officials of the Chicago Milk Dealers association said last night that it could no longer abide by the code. Its withdrawal will leave the "big four" milk companies, the so-called milk trust, as the only important distributors still backing the agreement. Their attitude on the question of conformance could not be learned last night, but it was said that a meeting of dealers with officials of the Pure Milk association is to be held some time this week, at which the farmers' representatives will be told that dealers will no longer pay the prices to the producers fixed by the code.

Price Cutting Unsuppressed.

The small dealers say they are quitting the code because of the failure of the AAA to suppress price cutting. They will wait no longer, their spokesmen said, to see cash and carry dealers and other price cutters put out of business, as the government promised they would be in the code.

"My association has come to the conclusion that there is no use waiting any longer," said Otto P. Black, manager of the Chicago Milk Dealers' association. "Some of our members have already broken away and are violating the code. Others are asking that their signatures to it be withdrawn. The code has left the Chicago milk business in worse shape than I have ever seen it, and I have been in it for almost a lifetime.

"The code has failed because the government failed to meet its obligation to stop price cutting. The small dealers will be able to change over to cash and carry or other cut rate business easily, especially where the business is operated by a father and his sons. Dealers employing union labor will find it a little more difficult.

Expect Revised Code.

"The feeling in the industry is that the government will probably bring out a revised code. Meantime, we can't wait. We've stood it as long as we can."

Recent developments in Washington have indicated that even without the insurrection of the small Chicago dealers, the life of the local milk marketing code would be a brief one, at best.

George N. Peek, who quit as AAA administrator after losing a struggle against the more radical views of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and his brain trusters, was a backer of the milk marketing codes. Dr. Clyde L. King, who resigned Saturday as head of the AAA dairy section, was another, having taken a prominent part in drafting the Chicago agreement, the first one promulgated.

Dr. King's successor, J. H. Mason, is a personal friend of Secretary Wallace and the head of a Des Moines milk cooperative, but his appointment brought no joy to the local milk coop, the Pure Milk association. Mason is known to be at odds with most of the dairy cooperative leaders of the country, who would try to raise dairy prices by having farmers keep their surplus milk on the farm.

Believed for Killing Cows.

It was through the sale of surplus milk purchased from farmers that the cash and carry stands first started about Chicago. Mason wants to cut production and thus raise milk prices by killing cows, it is understood, first weeding out all diseased animals and then, if that is not sufficient, sending healthy cows with low production records, which dairymen dub "boarders," to the canning plants.

Another indication that Secretary Wallace is through with attempts to raise dairy product prices other than through production limitation was his order of Friday to the Dairy Marketing corporation to cease open market purchases of butter.

The corporation has purchased more than 41,000,000 pounds of butter to support prices and, while prices have not risen greatly, its supporters claim that it has taken off the market the bulk of the surplus which threatened to shatter price levels. Creamery interests charge that the failure of its operations to raise prices has been due to the fluid milk industry, which has failed to limit production and which has flooded the dairy markets with butter churned from its surplus milk.

PACIFIST GROUP TO DROP SECRETARY OVER BATTLE ON POLICY

New York, Dec. 17.—[Special.]—The National Council of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, one of the largest pacifist organizations in the world, has decided to drop one of its executive secretaries, J. B. Matthews, it became known today.

The decision was made at a meeting at which the council took action on a controversy that had divided the organization for three years—whether the pacifist attitude toward the class "war" should be the same as toward international war.

Formulating the policy that no difference is consistent with the pacifist position, the council made acceptance of that policy a condition to its four secretaries to renewing their call when their present terms expire Feb. 1.

Mr. Matthews, a member of the Socialist party, held the view that while violence is deplorable in the class "struggle" it is inevitable, and that therefore a pacifist cannot refuse to take part in class "war," as he can in international war if otherwise he would be on the side opposed to the workers in the "struggle."

DOCTOR TELLS USES OF MICROSCOPE AS DAILY VISION HELP

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 17.—(AP)—Dr. William Feinbloom of New York read a paper today to the American Academy of Optometry, telling of his microscopic spectacles which he said magnify eighteen times. He also has employed telescopic spectacles, and made a combination of spectacles.

With these devices, added to others' work, he asserted it was found "possible to aid approximately sixty per cent of unselected cases of subnormal vision."

He described the microscopic spectacles as composed of two convex lenses.

The telescopic spectacles were said to increase the distance of the vision of the patient 150 per cent. Wide angle lenses are used for both varieties. Dr. Feinbloom said more persons would wear spectacles if the appearance of them was improved.

SILK Robes $20

If you are faced with one of those "man-with-everything" problems, and we don't care if in your case he is a rajah who should know his embroidered silks, this robe is a handsome solution. And $20 (we add) is a small piece of change for anything so rich in quality, color, and workmanship.

SILK Pajamas $7.50

Why we should try to convince you that silk pajamas are one of the few things that you can give without qualms is beyond us. We admit men don't buy them for themselves, but still silk pajamas are one of the notable gift successes in a man's gift haul. These of Jacquard pattern silk have been tailored along old-fashioned ideas of comfort.

KIDSKIN Slippers $5

These are of that well-dressed comfort school of thought, and they show it. They're lined with kid, and the trim around the collar is patent leather—hand-turned soles of leather and leather heels. In black, brown, blue, red, green, and wine.

ASKS PRESIDENT FOR BALANCED BUDGET IN 1935

Economy League Warns Debt Perils U. S.

A table showing the progress of the national debt since 1917 is given in the petition as follows:

[Gross public debt as reported by the treasury.]

June 30, 1917	$ 2,975,618,000
Aug. 31, 1919 [war debt peak]	26,594,267,000
June 30, 1921	23,976,250,000
June 30, 1923	22,349,687,000
June 30, 1925	20,516,272,000
June 30, 1927	18,510,174,000
June 30, 1929	16,931,197,000
Dec. 30, 1930 [low point]	16,026,086,000
June 30, 1931	16,801,485,000
June 30, 1932	19,487,009,000

Increases in Twelve Months.

"The increase from the low post war point of Dec. 31, 1930, to June 30, 1933, was $6,512,586,000, or over 40 per cent. The increase of $3,051,663,000 in the twelve months' period from June 30, 1932, to June 30, 1933, was at an average rate of over 250 million a month.

"During the five months' period from July 1 to Nov. 30, 1933, the national debt, as officially reported by the treasury department, increased from $22,538,672,000 to $23,534,116,000, or by $995,444,000.

"A yet more serious aspect, however, is that a further increase at a still faster rate is now impending. This is for the reason that a start has hardly been made on the actual disbursement of some of the largest emergency appropriations. Thus, of the whole 3 billion 300 million appropriation under the national recovery act, less than one-twentieth has been actually expended in the five months ending Nov. 30, 1933. Official announcement has been made, however, that nearly all this appropriation has now been allotted and that disbursements will now proceed at a more rapid rate.

Some Estimated Expenditures.

"This undoubtedly will result in a debt increase for the current fiscal year exceeding the peace time record of $3,051,663,000 in the year ended June 30, 1933. A careful estimate indicates that the increase will exceed four billions."

The petition presents a table of estimated expenditures and receipts for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934 as follows:

EXPENDITURES.

Ordinary—
Interest	$ 800,000,000
Sinking fund, mandatory charges	439,658,221
Veterans	581,988,000
Agricultural adjustment administration	400,000,000
National defense	456,000,000
All other [including legislative, judicial, departments of state, commerce, interior, etc.]	782,742,851
Total ordinary	$3,460,389,072
Emergency—
Loans to closed banks	1,000,000,000
Purchase of preferred stock and capital notes of solvent banks	1,000,000,000
Direct relief for states	500,000,000
Bank deposit insurance fund	150,000,000
Agricultural credits	300,000,000
Home owners' loan act	200,000,000
Public works expenditures	1,250,000,000
Total emergency	$4,400,000,000
Total expenditures	7,860,389,072
Estimates receipts	3,400,000,000
Deficit	$4,460,389,072

A Rapid Advance in Outlay.

"The total authorization for public works is three billion, 300 million," it says. "As noted only $131,473,000 of this was spent up to Nov. 30. A rapid increase in outlays for public works for the last half of the fiscal year is inevitable. Public Works Administrator Ickes has stated that $2,861,881,000 was allotted for various projects up to Nov. 28. It is estimated at least 850 million will be spent on such projects this fiscal year. About Nov. 1 400 million dollars of this appropriation was allotted for civil works projects, thus bringing the total estimate of actual outlay during the current fiscal year up to $1,250,000,000.

"Under these circumstances it is not surprising that the status of the national credit has come under discussion and fears are expressed of an 'uncontrolled inflation,' consequent upon the possible future inability of the government to borrow upon reasonable terms, leading as an ultimate resort to the printing of masses of fiat money.

"The experience of nations has time and again demonstrated the destructive and demoralizing effect upon the toilers of a radically debased currency. It is the poor, not the rich, who have always suffered most. It is the speculators who profit most. Organized labor in recently demanding an 'honest dollar' has correctly understood the lesson of history.

Real Wages of Labor Impaired.

"Not only are real wages of labor impaired, but accumulated savings of the most thrifty are reduced in value. A drastic debasement of the currency would strike down the value of life insurance held by over 60,000,000 policy holders, and the savings of more than 20,000,000 depositors in savings banks and building and loan associations.

"The rising national debt involves also rising taxes. If the budget is to be truly balanced, not only must great reductions in expenditures be made, but higher federal taxes must be imposed.

"It is unfortunately true not only that the debt charge is being increased by the emergency program, but that the federal bureaucracy also is increasing."

After setting forth principles for balancing the budget, the petition says "There is no escape through classification of expenditures as 'emergency' or 'ordinary,' or by any other bookkeeping practices from the conclusions forced by the figures herein stated. All these vast expenditures, save only the sums which may be recoverable from loans, finally must be paid from taxes paid by the whole people."

FORD'S EDGEWATER STRIKERS TOLD NRA WILL AID THEIR CASE

Newark, N. J., Dec. 17.—(AP)—Promise that the NRA would consider their grievances was held out today to strikers of the Ford plant at Edgewater by leaders in the strike in reporting on conferences last week in Washington with members of the national labor board.

Hugh V. Reilly, former secretary of the New Jersey State Federation of Labor, told strikers he had been given assurance by William Green, president of the A. F. of L., that Gen. Hugh Johnson would take action in the strike.

"He asked that we have all our data in his hands by Tuesday and he will then make a decision on a hearing," Reilly quoted Green as saying.

Reilly recommended that the workers, at their meeting in Edgewater tomorow, accept this proposal, to which the strikers' committee already has consented.

HEARING TODAY ON CHARGES OF INSULL FRAMEUP

is pointed out, was still partial master of the situation, principally because of the peculiar distinction between equity receivership and bankruptcy. The secret of his preservation of power in the case was explained as follows by one of the receivership lawyers:

"Two receivership proceedings were open to the financial interests in the Insull case—equity and bankruptcy. Equity was the desirable choice, for under this proceeding the companies could carry on without creditor harassment, at least until conditions determined whether they could be salvaged. Bankruptcy would have signalized an instant demand of creditors for satisfaction and dissolution of the companies.

"But an equity proceeding requires consent of the company itself—in this case, Insull. Without his consent, as Insull knew full well, the banks could only resort to an involuntary bankruptcy action. Even here, Insull might resist and precipitate long and costly hearings on his companies' solvency if he chose. Thus, Insull held the whip hand."

Prior Practice Recalled.

Whether the bankers exercised collusion in yielding to Insull's demands is the legal question in the case. Mr. Ettelson maintains that the issue should have been settled in open court. Up to the time the Insull collusion charges arose, however, the practice of determining a receivership setup privately was the rule. Federal judges in other cases have since shown a disposition to rule out receivership candidates nominated in private and the United States Supreme court has promulgated a rule of practice that attorneys entering into collusive receiverships shall be penalized.

That Judge Evans is prepared to follow that rule, even to the extent of voiding all the Insull receiverships and assessing their costs against parties sponsoring the collusion, if collusion be established, was indicated in his memorandum to attorneys on the case.

Judge Serves Notice.

In giving notice for all interested parties to be present, the judge said:

"For it is apparent that if the charge of collusion is properly set forth in the objections [to fees] and is ultimately sustained, the cost of the entire proceeding, including receivers' fees and attorneys' fees, must be taxed against the various plaintiffs who thus brought said collusive suits and the court must take disciplinary action respecting counsel who instituted those suits, if it be shown that such suits were collusively instituted and to the knowledge of the attorneys."

CONGRESSMAN DUBS ROOSEVELT DEAL 'NEW STEAL'

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Representative F. H. Shoemaker [Farmer-Labor, Minn.] bitterly attacked the Washington administration and President Roosevelt's "new steal" here today in an address before the Canal Zone residents.

"Employment," he said, "has increased 20 per cent; wages have decreased 35 per cent, and the cost of living has increased 100 per cent. They are spending billions drunkenly.

"We are spending millions in the Canal Zone to feed a bunch of British aliens [West Indians]. The economy act gave Roosevelt the powers of congress, making him a dictator. A crash in the United States is imminent."

JOHNSON O. K.'S LONGER HOURS TO TAKE STOCK

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17.—(AP)—The NRA today modified the Blue Eagle voluntary reëmployment agreement or blanket code to permit all employers under it to work their help overtime at the year-end for inventory purposes.

Permission runs for two weeks, provided all such overtime is paid for at least at a rate of time and one-half. Most industries under permanent codes already have that privilege.

The increase in hours must be limited to those "necessary to complete a calendar year-end inventory." They must not be extended for any other purpose.

SPAIN PUTS BAN ON GIVING NEWS TO SEND ABROAD

Foreign Correspondents Only Ones Affected.

MADRID, Dec. 17.—(AP)—The new cabinet formed by Premier Alejandro Lerroux, one with conservatives dominant, met informally today. Lerroux said the only developments were that Diego Martinez Barrios, whom he succeeded as premier, was named vice president of the cabinet, and José Estadella, radical republican, secretary. Barrios is minister of war and Estadella is minister of labor.

It was reported in ministerial circles that Barrios would be named minister of interior when Rico Avello finishes his work with the "state of alarm," declared last week after revolts in northeastern Spain had claimed 100 lives.

Meets President Today.

Lerroux will present the cabinet to President Alcala Zamora at 11:30 a. m. tomorrow. A program is to be drafted at a meeting tomorrow afternoon. An interim ministry resigned yesterday. The new premier said he was "pleased" with the cabinet. He has leftist, rightist, and centrist party members, he explained, because they are compatible with the complexion of parliament.

The official Monday morning newspaper published orders prohibiting its employés from giving any news information to outside news organizations. Foreign news organizations and correspondents are the only ones affected.

Aimed at "Tipsters."

No newspaper is published on Monday morning in Spain except the official news association's tabloid, which appears in major cities. Hitherto it has been the custom of foreign news representatives to retain part time "tipsters" on the official paper for official or exclusive news.

The sudden order was not explained and responsible officials of the official news organization were unavailable. It was believed, however, that the order related to the present "state of alarm." Reports from provinces said conditions were tranquil.

Three Minnesotans Drown; Autos Crash Through Ice

Waconia, Minn., Dec. 17.—(AP)—Three men drowned in Lake Waconia today when two automobiles crashed through the ice. The victims, all of Minneapolis, were Kenneth Oliver, H. I. Nordby and George A. Wickham.

DEFLATION TIDE STEMMED EARLY IN YEAR: ROPER

Secretary Lauds Action of Commerce Bureau.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17.—(AP)—The tide of deflation was reported today by Secretary Roper to have been definitely stemmed in the second three months of this year.

In his annual report, covering the fiscal year ended June 30, the commerce secretary said:

"In the United States signs of resistance to further contraction appeared in the first half of the fiscal year, and by the final quarter the tide of deflation was definitely stemmed.

"Confidence was greatly strengthened as a result of the decisive governmental action, business activity quickened and by the end of the fiscal year substantial progress had been made."

Few Recommendations.

The report contained few recommendations for new legislation.

As for the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, the secretary said:

"The policy and functions of the bureau are in process of revaluation, to the end that its activities shall represent the highest form of service to the business community and to the other branches of the government.

"That it will play an important part in the economic developments of the next year cannot be questioned. It must provide a factual basis for the wise determination of economic policy looking toward the return of stability and security to our economic system."

The census bureau recommended that a complete census of manufacturers be taken every five years and a limited census every year, with certain quarterly and monthly statistics. It was pointed out that the central statistical board had recommended substantially the same.

Urges 1935 Census.

The bureau further urged that a census of population be taken in 1935 along with the census of agriculture already provided for that year. The American Statistical association, the American Sociological society and the census advisory committee have recommended such action.

The patent office reported its work was impeded by vacancies and urged that it would be advisable "to fill some of the existing vacancies in the force so that the patent work may be brought within the desired 60 day period before the expected revival of business again floods the office with new work."

Wants Reclassification.

The office recommended a reclassification of patents which probably would result in a saving of $174,000 and increase the efficiency of examiners not less than 10 per cent.

The bureau of mines urged that the government provide funds for a laboratory on the campus of the University of Maryland, where the state already has deeded a 20 acre tract for the purpose.

Roper commented briefly on the business advisory and planning council set up by him in June, pointing to the long range studies being undertaken by the committee and anticipating "invaluable constructive assistance from the study, research and recommendations of this volunteer group of public spirited industrialists."

Wife Found Dead in Home; Police Hold Grave Digger

Lennox, S. D., Dec. 17.—[Special.]—William Flitz, Lennox grave digger, is being held in the Lincoln county jail at Canton in connection with the murder of his wife, Mrs. Minnie Flitz, 65, whose body was found in a pool of blood in the kitchen floor of their home Saturday.

U. S. GEODETIC SURVEY TO EMPLOY HUNDREDS OF JOBLESS ENGINEERS

Under the direction of the United States coast and geodetic survey, several hundred unemployed engineers are to be put to work throughout Illinois to establish a bench mark system that will show precise elevations and positions for highway, drainage, water works, and topographic surveys.

The personnel for the project will be obtained from the Illinois free employment bureau and the county agencies, according to M. M. Leighton, Illinois head of the geodetic survey. Individuals, schools, and organizations are urged to lend traverse and leveling instruments for the field parties.

Robert Stahl, Kane county CWA director, announced that 500 women would be put to work in that county sewing garments for the Red Cross, at a minimum wage of 50 cents an hour, the same pay men receive. Robert J. Dunham, Illinois administrator of the CWA, said this type of work was officially recognized for all communities.

SMITH CREDITS PRESIDENT WITH REPEAL VICTORY

New York, Dec. 17.—[Special.]—Persons who attended the dinner of the Manhattan club last night commented favorably today on the speech of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, in which he gave President Roosevelt credit for furnishing the final impetus which brought about the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Mr. Smith, who has criticized much of the program of the Roosevelt administration and particularly its monetary policy, credited Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, a fellow diner, with having contributed much to the cause of repeal. He mentioned others and said he supposed he was entitled to some credit himself. Mr. Smith then added:

"The one man who put over repeal now is the President of the United States."

Mr. Smith's reference to the President brought enthusiastic applause. His assertion was taken to indicate that his opposition to some of the President's policies was based on principle and was in no way personal.

LEGAL AID FOR NEEDY DEPENDS ON FUND DRIVE

Closely associated with the progress of the community fund for Allied Chicago Charities is the administration of legal aid for Chicago's poor, officers of the fund pointed out yesterday. Among the 102 private welfare agencies that will share in the $4,000,000 fund now being raised are the United Charities and the Jewish Social Service bureau, both of which maintain legal aid departments.

These departments give protection to those who because of poverty, ignorance, or helplessness would otherwise become the victims of dishonest legal practices. During the last month the legal aid bureau of the United Charities has collected $11,546 for needy persons who sought help in settling legal disputes.

The majority of these cases are wage claims and about 94 per cent of the cases brought to the legal aid bureau are adjusted out of court.

Annual Bar Association Show Will Open Tonight

Members of the Chicago Bar association will present the annual comedy production of the association in the headquarters at 180 North La Salle street tonight. The production, "Christmas Spirits, 1933," will poke good natured fun at the bench and bar and federal, state and national affairs. A second performance will be given tomorrow night.

FATHER COUGHLIN SAYS NEW DEAL IS GOSPEL CODE

Conforms with Christmas Spirit, He Asserts.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 17.—(AP)—The Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin, pastor of the Shrine of the Little Flower, said in a speech today that the new deal was born at Bethlehem 1933 years ago and that its principles have come down unchanged through the ages.

He said that these principles, based on the doctrine of charity, run counter to "the diabolical philosophy of selfishness" which he said has dominated mankind.

The address was broadcast over a hookup of independent radio stations.

"The Christian Deal."

Father Coughlin said this Christmas season, because of the new deal which he called also "the Christian deal," is "truly a season of peace" after four years of depression. He warned that without a permanent prevalence of the Christmas spirit, without "Christ's teachings made practice, our new deal is a rainbow, a mirage."

Mentioning briefly reasons for his statement that this Christmas is a happier one, Father Coughlin said: "At no time during the last four years has there been such promise of prosperity. At no time has there been less serious social disturbance."

Father Coughlin remarked that after the Christmas holidays "congress will convene and the battle will be on."

Battle to Finish.

The gold standard and its philosophy are, Father Coughlin said, waiting "to hear sentence passed." He predicted that "the prison walls of obscurity await them."

In praising President Roosevelt, comparing him in background with George Washington, Father Coughlin said that he dared to tackle the problem of social justice after Presidents Coolidge and Hoover failed. To consolidate behind President Roosevelt "the moral support of the common people" is one of the purposes of his present addresses, Father Coughlin said.

OHIO TEXTILE MILLS ACCUSED BY UNION CHIEF

Cleveland, Dec. 17.—(AP)—That Cleveland manufacturers of knitted wear have refused to meet their employés for collective bargaining, Carl Cummings, representative of the United Textile Workers of America, was preparing today in New York to take that issue before the national labor board at Washington.

Thomas F. McMahon, international president of the union, has made appointments with Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, and Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of that board.

Thieves Make Hard Work of Looting an Open Safe

Keokuk, Ia., Dec. 17.—[Special.]—Thieves made hard work of stealing $800 in an open safe of the Winger Dry Goods company here last night. They first broke in an optician's office, sawed their way into a dentist's parlors, smashed out a rear window, tied a rope to a water pipe and slid down two floors to the safe.

Coastwise Vessel Stuck in Columbia River Sands

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 17.—(AP)—Coast guard wireless here received a report today that the steamship Charles L. Wheeler, with a crew of 26, was stuck on Desdemona sands in the Columbia river.

BUDD COMPANY WILL NOT ABIDE BY RULING OF U. S. LABOR BOARD

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 17.—(AP)—The Edward G. Budd Manufacturing company today announced it would not abide by the ruling of the national labor board that the concern take all striking employés back to work and allow a new election of employé representatives.

Edward G. Budd, president of the company, made the decision known in a letter to Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the labor board.

Contending that the company has done nothing "contrary to the letter or spirit of the national recovery act," Budd denied that the management interfered in an election held at the plant Sept. 7.

N. Y. School Register Shows 22,777 Increase

New York, Dec. 17.—[Special.]—The average daily register in the public schools of New York City during the school year of 1932-'33 was 1,105,542, an increase of 22,777 over the previous year, it is said by Dr. William J. O'Shea, retiring superintendent of schools, in his annual report.

The net gain, according to Dr. O'Shea, is the result of an increase of about 27,500 pupils in junior high and senior high schools and a decrease of 4,900 pupils in the elementary schools.

WELFARE WORKER SEES IMPROVED FARM OUTLOOK

New York, Dec. 17.—[Special.]—An improvement in economic conditions in agricultural and grazing states west of the Mississippi river was seen today by Allen T. Burns, executive director of the Community Chests and Councils, Inc. This is indicated, in Mr. Burns' opinion, by the fact that community chest campaigns have been more successful, as a whole, in the "farm belt" than in other parts of the United States.

"Fifty per cent of them raised their quotas in contrast to less than 25 per cent of the chests in other sections of the country," said Mr. Burns.

Iowa, Mr. Burns said, was thus far the only state reporting that all of its chest campaigns reached or exceeded their quotas.

"Reports from chest cities now available indicate an increase in the number of givers," it was said by Mr. Burns. "This is due to increased employment and confidence in the stability of the country's welfare program. There was a decrease in large gifts, due to the drastic curtailment of large incomes.

"In spite of the odds which community chests have faced this autumn twenty-four cities report receiving more money for welfare activities for 1934 than for 1933. In 1933 only seven chests reported raising more money than in 1932. Thirty chests report raising more money for 1934 than for 1929."

Sanders Will Hold Job with G. O. P., Fess Asserts

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17.—(AP)—Senator Fess of Ohio, member of the Republican national committee and former national chairman, tonight said that Everett Sanders would continue to head the national party organization. "Sanders," Fess told reporters in discussing reports that a move was afoot to displace the former Coolidge secretary from the national chairmanship, "is not going to resign and that is absolutely certain."

IRISH FACTIONS BATTLE; POLICE SEIZE O'DUFFY

De Valera Men Grab Blue Shirt Head After Clash.

WESTPORT, Irish Free State, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Blue Shirted Gen. Owen O'Duffy, United Ireland party leader, was arrested today after a clash between Blue Shirts and Free State police in a dramatic new climax to Ireland's political warfare.

O'Duffy was arrested once, rescued by his followers, and then rearrested after a hasty flight across a plowed field, while his followers fought with those who sought to jail him.

Driving toward Westport in his automobile to attend a United Ireland party meeting, the general was stopped by police and told he could go no farther.

Met by 100 Horsemen.

He climbed a fence, escaped across the fields to the other end of the town and was met by an escort of 100 horsemen, who galloped up. Helmeted soldiers bearing rifles, gas masks and tear bombs patrolled the streets in motor lorries.

Police again met O'Duffy, advising him he could not address the meeting, but a crowd of his supporters lifted him on their shoulders and carried him to a platform. He could shout only a few words before soldiers and police fought their way through and broke up the meeting.

"People of Ireland," he said, "I came here to speak to you and I have been arrested. I am still wearing a Blue Shirt, and our cause will go on. Be calm and we shall win, although I may be in prison."

Protesting the striking of one of his followers, the general was borne to police barracks which were surrounded by reinforcements when the crowd gathered again.

Another Sharp Clash.

Almost immediately there was another sharp clash between O'Duffy men and supporters of President Eamon De Valera, whose Fianna Fail party O'Duffy has consistently attacked.

Amid the din of stamping horses and cries of "Up with O'Duffy!" and "Down with the Blue Shirts!" the factions battled.

John Kilcoyne, recently released from a three months' sentence passed by a military tribunal, was arrested while trying to speak when he opened his overcoat revealing a blue shirt. Then another speaker was arrested while haranguing the crowd.

O'Duffy remained at the police barracks under detention. He is expected to be taken to Dublin tomorrow. It was asserted in political circles that the general probably would be brought before a military tribunal in the near future. His arrest was made under the public safety act, they pointed out.

The youth movement of the Blue Shirt party and the wearing of blue shirts were ordered banned last week by the De Valera government. A warrant for O'Duffy's arrest was issued at that time, but the Blue Shirt leader stoutly maintained he was not in hiding and would continue his United Ireland party activities, one of the chief points of which is agitation for the abandonment of the "bizarre economic warfare" with Great Britain.

De Valera Hits Blue Shirts.

TRALEE, Irish Free State, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Speaking under a banner labeled "Unite and Conquer," President Eamon De Valera made it plain today that the Irish Free State would not "bow" to Great Britain. De Valera charged the opposition group, the United Ireland party, had aims of establishing a dictatorship.

"At this moment," the president said, "our nation is being pressed by one of the biggest nations in the world through economic means to make us yield to their unjust demands.

"We are not going to yield, but will maintain ourselves against this pressure."

Mexico's Head Asks Special Powers on Foreign Affairs

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 17.—(AP)—President Abelardo L. Rodriguez will ask the Mexican congress next week for special powers in handling foreign relations, it was unofficially announced today in the chamber of deputies and the senate. The president has already been granted special authority to legislate on finance and war. His request for special powers on foreign relations will be made in order to adjust with the United States government claims of American citizens during the revolution, it was reported.

CALL TAX STRIKE IN CUBA TO OUST SOCIALIST RULE

U.S. Enterprises Agree to Join Movement.

BY GUSTAVO RENO.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Dec. 17.—The ABC, secret political organization, today announced it will support Cuban and American commercial and banking interests in a nation-wide taxpayers' strike to oust the régime of President Ramon Grau San Martin. If that fails, another revolution will be launched.

The tax strike was decided on at meetings of the boards of directors of the Cuban Chamber of Commerce, the American Chamber of Commerce of Cuba, the National Economic corporation and the Havana clearing house, and representatives of the Chase and National City banks of New York, the Royal Bank of Canada, and the Bank of Canada, which have branches here, and other important native and foreign trade and financial organizations.

$1,000,000,000 U. S. Capital.

The Cuban Chamber of Commerce and the National Economic corporation represent 95 per cent of the island's native business and capital. The other organizations represent an estimated $1,000,000,000 of American capital invested in commercial, industrial, and agricultural enterprises in Cuba. Their representatives assert that 95 per cent of native Cubans are opposed to President Grau.

The tax boycott is being launched on the theory that, no matter how numerous its supporters may be, the government cannot subsist without revenue. The campaign is in retaliation for "various radical and destructive measures" promulgated by the régime.

Measures Under Attack.

The measures being attacked are:

FIRST—The "50 per cent labor law," requiring employment of at least 50 per cent native labor, 25 per cent naturalized Cuban, and not more than 25 per cent foreign labor.

SECOND—A decree requiring the Cuban Electric company, a $200,000,000 American investment, to reduce its rates 40 per cent. The company replies that it will be unable to supply power after Jan. 1, 1934.

THIRD—A decree specifying that some 500 physicians and nurses on the medical staffs of the Spanish owned clinics and hospitals must be members of the National Medical Federation of Cuba.

FOURTH—Granting a 45 day moratorium for tenants to pay their rent, with an extension of 15 days and later another week.

Registration of Aliens.

FIFTH—Compulsory registration and identification of all aliens.

SIXTH—A decree authorizing the treasury to put in circulation $3,000,000 in silver pesos and $22,000,000 worth of paper money in various denominations.

The ABC, which claims a membership of 30,000, with the nucleus concentrated in Havana, supported Ambassador Sumner Welles of the United States in his efforts to secure a representative government which would be capable of obtaining the recognition of the United States. The organization will await the arrival of Welles' successor, Jefferson Caffery, who is due to arrive here tomorrow, not as ambassador but President Roosevelt's personal representative.

Given Ten Days' Time.

Should Mr. Caffery fail to understand and support the strong sentiment against the existing government, the ABC executives, Augusto Saladrigas and Jorge Belt, declared the organization will take up the task immediately. The organization expects to allow Caffery ten to fifteen days to negotiate for a representative government. If that makes no progress the ABC will be ready at once to start a revolution, independent of any action on the part of Caffery.

In announcing their opposition to the government's "destructive measures," the ABC and the business interests declared that Cuba today is ruled without recourse to the constitution. The Socialist administration has declared its right to enforce any measure benefiting labor. A recent appeal to the Supreme court was fruitless, the court declaring itself "revolutionary in spirit and action" and indorsing the government's stand.

Threaten to Strike.

American commercial interests declare that the Cuban Electric company issue will determine whether the government intends to become definitely communistic or not. Labor groups today presented the company with 50 new demands, insisting that they be met by noon on Wednesday or they would declare a strike in all plants owned by the company throughout Cuba.

The medical decree specifies that physicians who are not members of the Cuban federation must resign their jobs in favor of doctors who are. The hospital staffs declare that their interests are jeopardized and that the decree is unconstitutional.

Landlords and property owners declare that by the rent moratorium they are being deprived of their legitimate incomes, while the government at the same time refuses to reduce or grant a moratorium on national, provincial, and municipal taxes on property.

The alien registration law will require foreigners to obtain a certificate of identification, costing $2.50 and renewable annually at that price. Opponents claim the measure submits foreign residents to humiliation by processes similar to identification of criminals.

Assail Paper Money Plan.

Banking interests declare that the paper money issue will have no more backing than the government's promise to redeem it "as early as advisable." Bankers assert it will be the final and disastrous blow in the crisis which has beset Cuba for three years. Banks will refuse to advance funds to the administration or honor its checks unless sufficient funds in gold or silver are deposited in the banks where the drafts are presented.

President Grau today reiterated that he does not intend to leave office before May 20, 1934.

"The people are all with me," he explained.

The tense situation was reflected in riots in Havana this afternoon. Four civilians, two soldiers, and a policeman were shot to death and 18 were wounded. The clashes came after mobs had wrecked the plant and set fire to the newspaper El Pais, a Spanish language daily.

Rioters also hurled a bomb into the offices of Diario de la Marina, oldest paper in Cuba. It is believed the attacks were directed against the papers for supporting the "50 per cent labor law", and for defending President Grau against the criticism of naturalized and foreign workers.

When the rioters poured into the street the police, soldiers, and marines fired into the air. The mob fled to La Marino, where another clash broke out. Most of the casualties occurred in this fight.

GOOD FELLOWS, THESE FAMILIES NEED YOUR HELP

Letters Carry Touching Pleas for Aid.

BY PHIL MAXWELL.

No more eloquent appeal can be made to the people of Chicago to be Good Fellows at Christmas time than to print some of the letters which are received at THE TRIBUNE Public Service Good Fellow bureau office, at 1 South Dearborn Street.

Read them and if you have not already become a Good Fellow fill in the accompanying application and mail it to the Good Fellow bureau. Or you may call in person between the hours of 9 a. m. and 6 p. m.; but better still telephone Superior 0100. The family which you will be assigned to help has been investigated by a unit of the Chicago Council of Social Agencies. You may rest assured that unless you play Santa Claus to these folks at Christmas time their day will be one of heart aches.

For every letter appearing here there are hundreds more, containing the same appeal.

Their Daddy Is Dead.

"Christmas is almost here," reads one letter, "and we haven't any money to buy toys for Christmas. Last year my Daddy wasn't working and we didn't get anything and this year my Daddy is dead and we can't get anything. My little brother is 3 years old and my other brother 8 years, and my sister is 10 years old and I am 11 years old. Of course they all believe in Santa Claus and they expect toys and there's no one in our family to buy them."

"Would you please be so kind," another letter reads, "as to send up a Christmas basket. We are orphans, and Mother and Dad have been dead 12 years, and I am the oldest and have been out of work for almost a year. I have a young brother and sister I have to care for and I would appreciate it very much if you could help us out with a basket."

"I live with my mother who is blind and a widow," writes a 13 year old girl. "Could you please remember us with a Christmas basket or anything. We would be very thankful. Wishing you a Merry Christmas."

"Would you please put my name in for a basket and a toy for my two little girls, one 9 and one 10 years of age," writes a mother. "I am all alone with my two girls. I am not working and can't buy anything for them. Please just a little of something to make their little hearts happy. It will hurt me so if they haven't anything. They are so satisfied with anything. Two good little girls."

A Drum for Christmas.

"My father has been unemployed for about three and a half years," says a little girl of 10. "I have a little brother, 3 years old, who would like a drum for Christmas. I am not wishing for anything for myself, but I wish that my father would get some work as my mother just came home from the hospital and I know there will be no Christmas at our house if we are forgotten."

"We are five children of a disabled ex-service man," says one appeal. "We wish you a merry Christmas and a great prosperous and happiest New Year. We are very much obliged to THE TRIBUNE Good Fellows."

"My husband is out of work for two years," writes the mother of 6 children. "I am now a year on the emergency relief. Last Xmas was very sad for them. And I felt worse than they did because I could not make them happy. But I know that with your aid they could be made happy this year. So, won't you please help up. I would appreciate it very much. The girls are 18, 14, and 5 years of age, and the boys are 16, 10, and 7 years of age. I thank you very much."

Their Mother Is Ill.

"Will you bring us a few little things for Xmas?" says a letter addressed to Santa. "We had no Xmas for 3 years. My mother is sick and father is out of work for a long time. Bring us anything you think three little girls of 9, 7, and 5 will be glad for. Anything as long as it's for my little sisters. We are sure you will not forget this year."

"I wish I could have Santa come to see me and my sisters for there are seven wishing to see him," a 9 year old girl writes. "Mother is not working and father is gone seven months from us. I would like to have dolls for my sisters and a basket for mother. Dear old Santa, please do not forget us!"

A check for $50 and another for $25 have been received by the Good Fellow bureau from Harry W. Solomon, member of the Chicago Board of Education, and Mrs. Levy Mayer, respectively.

Among the $5 donations was a brand new bill from Charles C. Kapschull, Deerfield, who is commander of the Illinois department of the Legion.

Those who cannot take a basket at Christmas time can participate in this Yuletide movement by sending a check to the Good Fellow bureau.

AIR SUPREMACY OF CITY CLINCHED BY BIG NEW SHOP

Chicago's position as center of the air transportation industry in the United States has been made more secure by the completion of a modern overhaul base for the eastern division of American Airways at Chicago airport, 63d street and Cicero avenue, it was announced yesterday by Lester D. Seymour, president of the company.

All major repair and service work for the eastern division of the transcontinental air line has been centered here, as well as the headquarters of the division, Mr. Seymour said. The headquarters of the air line have been located here for a year.

The establishment of the American Airways division overhaul shops here gives Chicago two important air transport overhaul bases, as United Air lines has done its overhaul work for its eastern and southwest divisions at Chicago airport for several years. Overhaul work for Transcontinental and Western Air lines is done at Kansas City.

The new American Airways overhaul base is housed in a large hanger at 5036 West 63d street. The large shop is built for mass production. With two shifts of 150 men each, forty motors are overhauled each month and fifteen planes are completely rebuilt and tested.

Navy Man Stricken with Appendicitis on High Seas

San Diego, Cal., Dec. 17.—(AP)—Transferred to the U. S. S. Pruitt on the high seas, Russell C. Musbickel, aviation machinist's mate, second class, was at Naval hospital here today for an operation for acute appendicitis. Musbickel was coming from Balboa, C. Z., aboard the U. S. S. Twiggs when he was stricken. No doctor is carried by the Twiggs.

LINDBERGHS FLY FOR NEW YORK THIS MORNING

Visit Roosevelt's Agent.

Late today they called on Jefferson Caffery, President Roosevelt's personal representative to Cuba. Mr. Caffery arrived here yesterday from New Orleans in a navy plane. He plans to leave tomorrow for Havana via a commercial air line.

Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh made a minute inspection of the plane in which they expect to leave about dawn for New York. She surprised the repairmen with her knowledge of technical points about the operation of wireless.

Talks With Mechanic.

After the wireless was reinstalled in the ship, Mrs. Lindbergh talked at length with Carl Homan, a mechanic who was on the Lindbergh tender ship, which was their floating base in the arctic during the early part of their flight.

Mechanics poured 426 gallons of gasoline into the pontoon and wing tanks, sufficient to take the plane to New York. The distance is approximately 1,200 miles.

Women Flyers Win 1st and 2d Places in Coast Races

San Mateo, Cal., Dec. 17.—(AP)—Women flyers won first and second places in the feature event of the international air pageant at the Curtiss-Wright airport here today.

The contest, a 25 mile race, was won by Miss Gladys O'Donnell of Long Beach in 9 minutes and 39 seconds. Henrietta Lantz of Los Angeles was second. Les Bowman, Los Angeles aviator, nosed his plane in third.

FIND REMAINS OF OSAGE TOWN IN OZARK HILLS

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 17.—(AP)—The site of an ancient stronghold of the Osage Indian nation, where weapons of the red man were made on a large scale and where young women used lipstick even as they do today, has been reported found in the Ozark foothills.

J. G. Braecklein, Kansas City architect and an authority on Indian mounds, made the discovery in Morgan county, 20 miles southeast of Sedalia.

"I believe that this is the site of a lost Indian workshop, a munitions factory that the Smithsonian institution has been searching for," Braecklein said after examining hundreds of stone axes, war clubs, tomahawks, and arrow heads.

Braecklein expressed confidence that the site was that of a factory mentioned in legends 260 years ago at the time "Father Marquette came down the Mississippi river."

18 OF 25 MAJOR TAXPAYERS GET PERSONALTY CUT

Jacobs Says Lower Figures Are More Equitable.

With the completion Saturday of the mailing of notices of 1,017,732 assessed personal property valuations in Cook county, Assessor J. L. Jacobs yesterday made public a list of some of the higher assessments.

The selected list of 25 discloses that in 18 cases the 1932 assessments are lower than the 1931 figures. In one case, the First National bank, there is no change and in the six other items the assessments were increased this year.

The firms and individuals with their assessments for both years are given in the following list:

Illinois Bell Telephone company	61,368,086	65,507,012
Peoples Gas Light and Coke company	28,306,154	24,179,407
Continental Illinois National bank	24,750,000	26,250,000
First National bank	8,500,000	8,500,000
Western Electric company	8,414,287	9,539,229
Marshall Field & Co.	5,979,530	6,585,857
Illinois Steel company	5,063,807	4,356,280
Public Service company	4,849,391	4,872,271
International Harvester company	4,352,581	6,312,828
Crane company	3,326,974	4,213,011
First Union Trust company	3,200,000	5,100,000
Harris Trust and Savings bank	3,000,000	3,300,000
Armour & Co.	2,624,490	2,583,150
Swift & Co.	2,095,316	2,231,054
Carson Pirie Scott & Co.	1,955,343	2,003,248
American Can company	1,904,209	1,604,750
Sears Roebuck & Co.	1,819,441	1,955,260
Northern Trust company	1,590,000	1,710,000
Montgomery Ward & Co.	1,144,682	1,518,098
William Wrigley Jr. estate	900,168	1,394,887
Cyrus H. McCormick	631,301	936,707
Mrs. Emmons Blaine	556,159	751,316
H. F. McCormick	424,172	602,756

These 25 assessments for 1932 total $288,060,393 and, if no large decreases are allowed by the board of tax appeals, should yield the county more than $20,100,000 in tax revenue on an estimate of a tax rate of $7 per each $100 or assessed valuation.

The decreases in 18 items, the assessor explained, are not the result of a falling off in the companies' business, but are the results of making their assessments more equitable.

SLAYS ROBBER AFTER LOSING $180.

Robert Washington, 49 years old, Negro janitor, shot and killed Edward Gray, 27, also a Negro, when Gray and two others robbed him of $180 in his home at 4033 Indiana avenue. Washington was shot in the chest by one of the gunmen.

POPE OPENS VATICAN'S NEW HALL OF SCIENCE; HONOR HARVARD MAN

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 17.—(AP)—The church "not only never has feared scientific truth but has always been its herald," Pope Pius said today in the inaugural ceremony of the new pontifical hall of science.

During the exercises the pontifical academy of science awarded Prof. George Birkhoff of Harvard university the first prize of 10,000 lire [about $800] in a mathematical competition for a paper dealing with a system for solution of differential equations.

The pontiff drew an allegorical picture of the three wise men of the east paying homage to Christ in support of his contention that the church and science have always been harmonious.

Father Giuseppe Gian Franceschi, who is also director of the Vatican wireless station, will direct the new hall. The inaugural session was attended by numerous ranking prelates and Vatican lay officials.

The best defense you can offer against stuffy indoor living is an inward condition of good resistance

There's no denying that winter puts a special tax on your vitality. The difficulty of regulating the temperature indoors, the risk of exposure to bad weather every time you're out is bound to make you susceptible to winter ills.

But you can't avoid them by outward precautions alone. You must also have strong inner forces. It's vitally important, at this hazardous time of year, to build up your resistance!

Many people also probably need an extra abundance of sunshine Vitamin D.

They provide the Vitamins A and D from three health-giving sources—halibut and cod-liver oils with Viosterol. And this high vitamin content is protected by a patented Squibb process which makes it lasting.

No wonder many people take Adex every day all winter. No wonder they prefer Adex to any other tablet!

Why not try them? Let them help you build up good resistance and thus add vastly to your comfort. At any reliable drug store. Squibb Adex Tablets-10 D.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE PATHFINDER.

To the general public the achievement of Col. Lindbergh and his courageous wife, as companion and assistant, has appeared as a romantic adventure, which, of course, it was. They have made a vast circle about the Atlantic region, the first circumnavigation in this manner, a historic event.

But there was a serious practical purpose in this voyage, as in all the great voyages of that age which we call the age of discovery. Col. Lindbergh is the greatest of the pathfinders of the air.

The new Magellans took off last July 9 from New York to survey possible trans-Atlantic air routes for Pan-American Airways, for which Col. Lindbergh is technical adviser. They have proceeded in a leisurely fashion on an itinerary that has included every possible way station and terminal for future intercontinental air travel. The first possible route they inspected was the northern route, via Newfoundland, Labrador, Greenland, Iceland, the Faroe islands, and the Shetland islands. At the eastern end of this route they visited all possible terminals in the Scandinavian countries. Flying on to England, they back-tracked to Irish and Scotch ports to inspect them as terminals and then visited Amsterdam, still another possible terminal.

The second possible trans-Atlantic route, via Bermuda and the Azores, they inspected next. For this route they visited only the port of Lisbon in Portugal and Horta and Ponta Delgada in the Azores. After the Azores they flew south to the Canary islands, off the coast of Africa; Villa Cisneros, the Cape Verde islands, and to Bathurst, which comprise other possible landing places for transoceanic flying. At Bathurst they began the survey of a third Atlantic airway, the southern route direct from Brazil to Africa. They flew this route from Bathurst to Natal.

The importance of the Lindbergh survey flight so far as the realization of transoceanic air travel is concerned is very real. Since his memorable flight from New York to Paris on May 20, 1927, he has been the chief trail blazer in the United States for air routes. When he returned to this country he visited eighty-two cities on a good will flight. Virtually every one of those cities now is served by air transport lines. That winter he set forth on a Pan-American good will flight through Central America. Those nations are now linked by Pan-American Airways. The next spring he charted a transcontinental air line between New York and Los Angeles. That route is being operated by Transcontinental and Western Air Lines now and he is serving as its technical adviser.

In 1929 Col. Lindbergh inaugurated the first of the many routes across the Caribbean to be established by Pan-American Airways. He flew the first air mail from Miami to the Canal Zone. Next he inaugurated air mail service between Mexico City and the United States by flying to the border city of Brownsville, Tex., and back to the Mexican capital. That fall he inaugurated the Pan-American air line to Paramaribo, Dutch East Guiana, and on the return flight discovered Mayan ruins in the Yucatan jungle.

In the spring of 1930 he inaugurated air mail service between the United States and Buenos Aires by flying the first mail plane to the Canal Zone. The following summer Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh took off on their flight to the orient, through Canada, Alaska, Siberia, Manchuria, and Japan to China. Since that flight Pan-American Airways has acquired an air line operating in Alaska and has begun operation of another air line in China in conjunction with the Chinese government. Additional refueling bases will have to be installed, but the way is paved for an air line between the United States and the orient.

Important steps have already been taken by Pan-American Airways toward the realization of a trans-Atlantic air line. The exclusive rights to such an operation in Greenland and Iceland have been secured by purchase. Negotiations have been carried on with Great Britain's Imperial Airways toward the establishment of an air service via British owned Bermuda, off the coast of the United States.

In the course of its operations on the east coast of South America, Pan-American Airways has watched the preparations being made by Germany and France to operate air lines between Brazil and Africa. The Germans have anchored a vessel, the Westphalen, in midocean as an intermediate stop and have flown the route several times on test hops. The French have flown the route also, planning to establish a mail service. Meanwhile Dr. Hugo Eckener has been operating the Graf Zeppelin on a regular schedule of trips between Friedrichshafen, Germany, and Rio de Janeiro for two years.

The thoroughness and accuracy of the Lindbergh survey flight is worthy of comment. Although time was of no particular moment on the flight, it was performed with a minimum of delays and in a businesslike manner that has been characteristic of Lindbergh's flying since he left the Chicago-St. Louis air mail run to fly to Europe. The fact that the couple encountered very bad weather, forced landings and many other mishaps on the flight makes its achievement only the more remarkable.

RETREATING BEFORE CRIME.

The failure of juries and in some instances of judges to impose the death penalty for wanton killing has been one of the most unfortunate aspects of the campaign against criminal violence in Chicago. The operating director of the crime commission, Col. Chamberlin, is of opinion, and we emphatically agree with him, that this failure is a contributing cause, and we think a most important one, to our deplorable murder rate—more than a murder a day this year. Col. Chamberlin points out that when in 1920 the death penalty began to be imposed and 13 murderers were executed, the murder rate dropped 51 per cent. When in the following years justice became slack the trend of murder has steadily gone up. In spite of the killing of more than ten policemen within a few weeks earlier in 1933 and the intensification of the campaign for prompter trials and adequate punishments, only two police killers thus far have paid the due penalty. Public indignation faded, ruthless killers were sent to the penitentiary to be publicly supported, if not later released, for the rest of their lives instead of sent to the chair, and the killings have steadily mounted.

Ruthless murder will not be checked in this community until the death penalty is imposed and is reasonably certain. It is not imposed because there is a laxity in public morale and too much false sentiment and fuddled thinking. Juries reflect this and shirk the painful duty of inflicting the extreme penalty which justice and public safety demand. The community will not be purged of the danger and disgrace of flagrant violence until it wakes to its own responsibility for the shameful conditions.

Another illustration of the attitude toward criminal violence which is preventing its abatement is the latest chapter of our treatment of the gun toting scandal.

In 1927 the legislature reduced the prescribed minimum penalty for robbery with a gun from ten years to one. In the face of flagrant violence throughout the country our lawmakers were moved to this action by the argument that the existing law was too severe to be effectively enforced. Juries refused to convict in many cases and prosecutors were induced to reduce appropriate charges so as to get convictions.

This concededly was a most unsatisfactory and demoralizing situation, but we are not able to think the way out was wisely chosen. The carrying of a gun by a lawbreaker means just one thing, that the bearer is ready to kill. There is no robber who carries a gun who is adequately punished with a one year term. There is nothing clearer to common sense than that the attitude expressed by our laws toward armed crime is an invitation to violence and an invitation accepted. If the reckless youths that are committing the large percentage of our violent crimes knew that the possession of a gun when committing a crime meant not less than ten years' imprisonment there would be less killing.

If juries have not the intelligence to realize this a vigorous crusade to enlighten them is the proper means of dealing with the difficulty. It is not a short cut but it faces the real weakness and in due time it will reach it. The reasoning which prevailed and so often prevails leads to the progressive weakening of public defense from crime by repeated retreat from laws fixing adequate punishment. We ought to stop compromising with sentimentality, ignorance, and indifference.

But authority in charge of our crime defenses is apparently of a very different mind. It seems that prisoners who are convicted under the old law are indignant at the alleged injustice to them involved in the reduction of the penalty and privilege of earlier parole enjoyed by robbers convicted after the new law went into effect. This it seems causes unrest among them and it is proposed to quiet it by the device of a new form of pardon which will permit the restoration of 450 robbers to the freedom of which they will know how to make use.

The whole procedure is a sardonic travesty on defense of the public from criminal violence.

TELLING IT TO THE JUDGE.

Gen. Goering, Prussian premier, put the new reichstag, as its president, through its salutes to Hitler and then adjourned it indefinitely. As a representative body it is ridiculous; as a parliament as important as a gathering of so many uniformed doormen. Its session lasted seven and a half minutes and it was through. Gen. Goering signalized his election as speaker by making a statement for the attention of the judges sitting in the reichstag fire trial at Leipzig.

He said that his election was proof to him that the assembly stood behind him in a demand that the accused be found guilty and that the tiresome judicial procedure be stopped. The prosecution asks that the prisoners be sentenced to death.

Goering speaks for a government which has proscribed one element of citizenship because of race, which has suppressed opinion, censored the press, dissolved labor unions, attempted the regulation of religion and driven opposition into concentration camps. Courts of law could not survive this destruction of the rights of man. Goering dictates to the judicial system. The judges, also, are but servants of the will of the government. The guilt of the accused is determined not by the evidence but by the desire of the dictator.

Editorial of the Day

ALFALFA WAVES DEFIANCE.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer.]

Turn now from the governor of California to the governor of Oklahoma; from "Uncle Jim" to "Alfalfa Bill." Gov. Murray does not believe in lynching. Instead of refusing state help to uphold the law in a community threatened with a mob murder, as Rolph of the west coast state did, Murray calls out the Guard.

It's another outrageous kidnaping case, with alleged first degree murder involved. A cowboy abducts a man and his wife; the woman's body was found jammed beneath a culvert; her husband's body had not been discovered up to last night. There was talk of violence and the governor thought it time to act.

Alfalfa Bill has been the butt of a good deal of rough political humor, but no one ever questioned his courage. In the present case he snaps his fingers figuratively at the mob spirit and orders out field artillery batteries armed for business. Into the custody of the Guardsmen the cowboy prisoner is sent. If there is any lynching growing out of this incident it is obvious that at least a few mobsters will first tread the path they had chosen for the cowboy victim.

"We don't want mobs in Oklahoma," says William H. Murray, governor and commander-in-chief of the National Guard.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

QUEST.

Too quietly the freedom from the chase
Lies on Life's afternoon. The tumult dies
Along the narrowing street down which we trace
The lifting latch, the unrelenting eyes.

Too timidly we touch the crystal ball
Of laughter unalloyed, nor try to mold
The jig saw patterns of ourselves that fall
Into realities when we are old.

And yet impatiently we wait for these:
The fragrant moments on a pebbled shore,
The house of sand we left, the sound, again,
From out the drifting mellow memories
Of children paddling through the Autumn rain

GRACE STARBUCK.

OLD BILL BUMPUS went into a barroom yesterday and ordered a rye highball. In marched five women, who sat down on the stools next him. "Here, bartender!" they cackled noisily, "whiskies all around; five whisky straights." "Did you say you wanted a rye highball?" asked the barkeep of Old Bill. "Not now," said Old Bill, "make mine a chocolate soda."

BETTER LOOK OVER your Christmas tree in advance this year and then wire up the branches and brace 'em generally. Lots of the presents this time will be rather heavy and gosh! you don't want the Christmas tree to break down and let your pretty Christmas presents fall on the floor and leak all over the parlor rug.

CHRISTMAS COMES BUT ONCE A YEAR!

And So Does

R. H. L.'s Linebook

If you miss out on either one you've got to wait a whole year for the next one.

Good Mr. Gillespie over in the Tribune Public Service office says the 1933 Linebook will be all gone before next Friday. And sakes alive! Mr. Gillespie knows! You'd better hurry!

ADAM HAD 'EM!

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.

A package of calling cards for a country lad of ten! What could be a more inappropriate, useless, and altogether ridiculous present? And yet in the early eighties it brought an unforgettable thrill. For, among the young people of the period, exchanging cards, with names boldly printed thereon, was a ruling fad. Magazines teemed with the ads—one hundred cards, all different in tint and texture; bristol board in checks and plaids; cards with snowflake effects in gorgeous reds and blues; gilt-edged cards with names hidden under tiny chromos of forget-me-nots and roses—one hundred cards, all different, for fifty cents.

Came soon thereafter the scroll saw, also, to bless the holidays. A little steel frame with handle underneath, equipped with threadlike saws, and accompanied by manifold designs and thin sheets of black walnut and white holly wood, from which could be fashioned brackets and bric-a-brac of highly ornamental forms. When the supply of material gave out, cigar boxes were commandeered, and thousands of parlors were cluttered with the results. Whither have disappeared the labored scroll work of those delectable years, I wonder, fraught with grapevines and birds and curlycues, more or less clumsily executed and stained with the natural grime of boyish fingers? From parlor to garret they were exiled, no doubt; then consigned to that shadowy limbo of things lost beyond recall, like youth and all its sweet delusions. But what piece of Sheraton would be as priceless to some of us today as one of those crude corner wall brackets?

There were two Santa Clauses in those days. He of the reindeer and sleigh and the mail order Santa Claus down in Boston, who sent out catalogues each fall, listing the latest ingenious Yankee contrivances, under the name of Perry Mason, publisher of a popular periodical for young people. Disillusionment has long since destroyed them both. But not for many years was it known that there never had been such a person as "Perry Mason"—good old Perry Mason of the scroll saws, printing presses, and miniature steam engines had been but a trade name and a myth. And as the realities continue to turn out to be myths it becomes increasingly hard to retain faith in life's ideals. There never was a Perry Mason; yet there was one pilgrim who, on his first visit east, sought out the shrine at 41 Temple place almost as reverently and more fondly than the Old South church and the burying ground on the commons. EOLUS.

TO HELEN OF TROY.

Helen, your fame has come down to posterity;
You were an ancient and beautiful rarity,
So say the poets and the books on mythology;
How would you fit with this modern psychology?
Whatever it was, and the Greeks had a name for it,
If living today, could you hope to attain to it?
Hellas and Troia your charms could entrance,
But how would you rate at a Pi Eta dance?

BRINGING A BACKWARD LAW UP TO DATE.

THE period was that of the Columbian Exposition in 1893. There was a parade of the states, each state delegation being led by its governor. The governors were adorned with silk hats and gloves, and their brilliantly attired staffs served them as aids. They were acclaimed by the multitudes.

The governor of Connecticut had provided himself with a wooden nutmeg, as may have been the habit of governors of that state in that day. Whenever the applause for Connecticut and the governor of that sovereign state was loud enough to call for attention the governor, instead of bowing and removing his hat, would take his wooden nutmeg from his vest pocket and hold it aloft. This always brought a second round of applause.

It appeared as though the governor was not ashamed of but was somewhat proud of the reputation which the wooden nutmeg connoted.

It was not long until the chief of the bureau of chemistry, department of agriculture, Dr. H. W. Wiley, artful manipulator of public opinion, persuaded congress to pass what is commonly known as the food and drug act. In later years congress extended the principles of this law by passing other laws creating a federal trade commission and giving it no small amount of police power. The object of both measures was to put the wooden nutmeg out of business. The two together have accomplished the purpose reasonably well.

Governors no longer boast of wooden nutmegs, signifying that while the business has not "ceased and desisted," to quote a favorite phrase of the law, it has driven what remains of it under cover.

The food and drug law had a few features that served to protect the public health. However, such as it had were far less protective than the people thought, and the great battles around the law, by hamstringing some of these features, made it still more of a stuffed shirt. At best it was no more than the best protective measure that could be passed in its day.

The congress which assembles on the first of next January is being asked to pass a real protective law, in so far as health is concerned. The old law was primarily directed against cheating. Its central theme was the two commandments, thou shalt not steal and thou shalt not lie—that is, in certain business relations.

This proposed law has as its central theme, thou shalt not harm they neighbor's health or life in order to get his money. It requires that when a mixture contains harmful drugs or habit forming drugs the name of the drug shall be printed on the label. It requires that all of the advertising shall be truthful, instead of limiting this requirement to the label, as the old law did.

And finally, when a man or corporation is poisoning the people for his own gain it lessens the requirements for proof. Under the present law, when a drug blinds the man who purchased and used it, the injured party or the injured government is required to show intent to injure. The new law requires that the proof go no further than injury, the qualities that make for injury, and the responsibility of the man who originated the injury. That provision is fair to the consuming public.

CAUSE OF BOILS.

Mrs. F. B. F. writes:

1. I have a small child who is having boils. They seem to be getting worse. Are boils caused from impurities in the system?

2. We have been treating them as if they were spreading from outside. What is the proper treatment for boils, and is a tonic usually prescribed?

REPLY.

1. No. Boils are due to an infection of certain places in the skin with staphylococci.

2. A staphylococcus antitoxin is being tried. Also a staphylococcus phage. It is advisable to keep the skin very clean. The use of poultices and fat meat to draw the boil to a head violates this rule. It is a cause of crops of boils.

To prevent repetitions of boils, not only keep the skin very clean but protect it against irritation.

Since diabetics are prone to have boils, examine the urine for sugar. Unless there are reasons to the contrary, give very little sugar, sweets, breads, pastries, and cereals in the diet.

If he goes back on a visit with intention of returning to America [1] can he be forced to serve in the Jugo-Slav army? 2. If he overstays his visit can he be forced to serve? 3. Would the American government intercede for him? 4. If he was not yet an American citizen, but came back with visiting papers, could he be forced to serve his time in the army? J. F. Z.

1. Several European governments refuse to recognize American naturalization where the person in question has not completed his military service. This country takes a contrary view, but has not gone to the limit of forcing matters.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, Australia.—The only serious flaw in the basic or minimum wage system in operation throughout Australia for nearly 40 years is the overlapping of federal and state wage awards in various industries.

This conflict of federal and state basic wage figures has been a bone of contention in political and industrial circles for years. It is a fierce conflict, which the laboring man does not want to give up, for some trades unions go from state to federal tribunals, and vice versa, in obtaining their demands at times. In fact, in August, 1929, the Bruce-Page federal ministry was thrown out of power when it sought to abolish federal arbitration of labor disputes.

Each of the six Australian states besides the federal government has a separate and independent basic wage for men and women in various industries, ranging from a low of approximately $15 [at par] per week for laborers in South Australia to a high of approximately $32 for bakers in New South Wales. The basic wage for women works out at about 54 per cent of the minimum wage for men, in general.

Typical wage rates fixed in awards and industrial agreements are as follows, at par:

Bakers	$21 to $32 per week
Bootmakers—Male	20 to 22 per week
Blacksmiths	20 to 25 per week
Cabinetmakers	21 to 25 per week
Compositors	22 to 25 per week
Carpenters	22 to 31 per week
Painters	22 to 30 per week
Bricklayers	23 to 31 per week
Plumbers	22 to 31 per week
Pastrycooks	20 to 26 per week
Plasterers	23 to 32 per week
Tailors	20 to 23 per week
Wharf laborers	50c per hour

Basic wages in most industries are fixed from time to time by federal or state tribunals under the law of the land. The wages are based on a 44 hour week in some states and on a 48 hour week in others.

How this basic wage is really made up is a matter of interest particularly in view of the minimum wage factor of the NRA in the United States. The basic wage is governed by "the minimum amount of wage necessary for a good average living of a man, his wife and two children in frugal comfort."

The allowances considered by the state and federal tribunals are divided into four schedules — rent, clothing, food and miscellaneous requirements—as they exist in costs at the time of investigation. The schedules are practically unchanged since first worked out by an Australian royal commission in 1920. Adjustments are made every six months by the commission.

The following figures in the 1932 judgment in determining the basic wage per week in New South Wales are used as the base:

Food	$ 5.50 at par
Rent	4.50 at par
Clothing	2.50 at par
Miscellaneous	3.00 at par
Total	$15.50 at par

The total of approximately $15.50 was reduced in April, 1933, to approximately $15 and the latest reduction of two shillings [.50 at par] on Nov. 1 makes the total $14.50 per week. Allowances for rent, food and clothing are based on index figures of the cost of living in various states.

A CASE WORKER MEETS A POLITICIAN.

Chicago, Dec. 13.—In my capacity as a case worker for the Cook County Bureau of Public Welfare it is my ill fortune to have to come in contact with politicians [petty and otherwise] and try to gratify some of their unreasonable demands. Their greed and lust for votes will cause them to hamper and slow up the work of case workers.

A few days ago I received a requisition to put some laborers on the civil works administration's program, and consequently did so. In gratitude for giving a certain individual a job after he had been unemployed for almost two years I received a letter from a ward politician demanding to know the reason why this man had been given a laboring job and why he had not been placed in the city controller's office. Hastening to see whether I had not made the mistake of putting a white collar man in a laborer's job, I checked with the vocational department and found that the man had a grade school education, worked in a shoe factory, and also drove a taxicab for about four years. As a matter of fact there had not been an assignment for men at the city controller's office at the time, nor had he the previous qualifications for such work.

This same politician made a number of telephone calls to the supervisor at the district office and also hampered the case worker in pursuance of daily duties.

Incidentally, the ward heelers or politicians are not paying for or making possible the unemployment relief, and neither are they creating the civil works projects. The people of the state are paying directly or indirectly. To the worker it seems that in these turbulent times a man who is practically handed a job without any effort on his part to obtain it would appreciate it. My roommate at college is now with a gang of laborers on a civil works project and is thankful for it. A CASE WORKER.

FILLING A HOLE.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—For the last few days I have been watching the CWA functioning. Each morning a group of men, about twelve in number, assemble in the prairie fronting Lawrence avenue at Washtenaw. Each man carries a shovel. Not a wheelbarrow in the whole outfit. A small mound of cinders is the object of their attack. Slowly they shovel up the debris, then in single file down the prairie they march some fifty or seventy-five feet to a hole dug for the purpose of depositing said debris. Friday morning I'd say the number of men at work had doubled. I'd like to see the cost sheet on this particular job, or is it lese majesty these days to ask for an accounting?

I don't begrudge these men a chance to earn some money. But why the administration ballyhoo about projects of this type? I can't see how the bloodstream of business is going to benefit therefrom. In fact, I heartily agree with good old Alfred E. "Half way between a lemon and an orange is a grapefruit; half way between a public work and a relief work is a civil work."

J. C. REYNOLDS.

FROM PROF. CARLSON.

Chicago, Dec. 13.—I have given considerable study to the provisions in the Copeland-Tugwell bill now before congress for the better regulation of advertisements of drugs, foods, and cosmetics in the matter of telling the truth to the consumer. The provisions of the bill are directed against lying, and should accordingly receive hearty support of all business and advertising based on truth, as we know it from day to day.

It is depressing to find so much misunderstanding and misrepresentation of the Copeland-Tugwell bill on the part of organized business. Among many other misrepresentations there appears the charge that the bill makes the federal department of agriculture the sole prosecuting attorney, jury, and judge of the truth vs. falsity of claims by manufacturers and venders of food, drugs, and cosmetics. This is not so. I have followed the enforcement of the present federal pure food and drugs law rather closely for the last thirty years. Under that law fake claims on the label of the package or container must be proven in court. The same procedure applies to the Copeland-Tugwell bill in extending the present law to claims in advertisements other than those on the label of package or container. This bill merely gives the federal pure food and drug agencies the chance to proceed in court against fake claims for foods, drugs, and cosmetics, wherever made. That honest manufacturers, dealers, and advertisers of these commodities should oppose these common sense provisions seems incredible. It must be based on misunderstanding.

The provisions of the Copeland-Tugwell bill are clearly in line with one of the aims of the new industrial codes—namely: fairness in business competition.

HITLERITE WINS DIVORCE BECAUSE WIFE IS JEWESS

Husband Tells Court He's a Pure Aryan.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 17.—Because his wife is a Jewess, a member of the Nazi party who claimed to be a pure Aryan, was granted a divorce by a Berlin court today. The couple had been married for years. The husband testified he only realized the importance of race under Chancellor Hitler's régime.

The judge said he was satisfied the complainant would not have married a Jewess had he realized the importance of race and blood to the nation.

Court Comments on Case.

"It is self-evident that an Aryan would not have contracted marriage with a member of an alien and anti-German race had he been thoroughly conscious of the facts in the situation," the court held.

"The plaintiff was aware that his wife was a Jewess, but to him that suggested something purely external. He could not have understood the essential implication involved in such a union at a time when the significance of race, blood kinship and folkdom was recognized by a small minority only."

The judge ruled that applications for divorce on these grounds must be made within six months of the knowledge of this importance. The period was extended in the present case because of the petitioner's lack of education.

The wife contested the action. The identity of the litigants was withheld in accordance with the customary procedure in divorce trials.

Rabbi Seized in Germany.

OFFENBACH, Germany, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Police took a rabbi named Dienemann into protective custody today for comparing the local chief of police to King Herod, ruler of Palestine, who ruthlessly suppressed his supposed enemies. The comparison was drawn in a lecture before a Jewish congregation.

The rabbi also was said to have intimated that the administration was marked by violence similar to those which occurred during French occupation of the Ruhr following the world war. He faces a concentration camp sentence.

151 Children Baptized.

BERLIN, Dec. 17.—(AP)—A mass baptism of 151 children between the ages of 6 and 14 took place today at Osterkirche, a former communist stronghold.

Three pastors officiated at what was described as "the first successful achievement in Germany of a Christianity truly commissioned by the people," an aim of the Nazi party.

London Police Fight Reds.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 17.—A series of clashes between police, communists and Fascists broke out in London today. The fights followed an attempt by communists to send a deputation to the German embassy to protest against the reichstag fire trial and demand the release of imprisoned communist leaders in Germany. Several were injured in the fighting.

About 150 Reds, including women and girls, marched from the east end to Waterloo place near the embassy. There they found their progress barred by a police cordon. Shouting "Down with the Nazis," the mob broke through the police lines. Police wielded batons and dispersed the demonstrators.

There were other clashes in nearby Regent street, where a man waving a Red flag was arrested.

PAPER SAYS TORGLER, GERMAN RED, WILL GO FREE IN FIRE TRIAL

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Dec. 17.—The flat statement that Ernst Torgler, former communist floor leader in the reichstag, would be acquitted in the reichstag fire trial, was made today by the ultra-Nationalist Boersen Zeitung in a dispatch from Leipzig.

"It can no longer be doubted that upon the basis of the speech of Dr. Alfons Sack [Torgler's counsel], which tore to pieces the last evidence of guilt, Torgler will be acquitted on the charge of arson," the newspaper says. "In fact, by his statement that in his view, Torgler had taken part in the crime only 'in some sort of fashion' the prosecutor affirmed that positive proof of Torgler's guilt did not exist, but merely circumstantial evidence with more or less substantial errors in it."

AUSTRIANS MOVE TO SETUP MODERN ROMAN EMPIRE

Catholic Storm Troops Join Fascists in Drive.

VIENNA, Dec. 17.—(AP)—The weathercock of Austrian politics veered vaguely in the direction of a monarchy today, when the official government gazette published a declaration of policy by Kurt Schuschnigg, minister of justice and organizer of the Catholic storm troops.

Schuschnigg, without specifically mentioning a monarchy, stressed that the storm troops committee would establish a Christian state "with the utmost emphasis upon Austrian tradition, which by no means is confined to boundaries of the present state."

Join Fascist Guards.

Storm troops, he said, "see the forming of a new central Europe—after dictatorial peace treaties have been overcome—with the possibility of a renewal of the holy Roman empire on modern lines."

The storm troops, the minister continued, are a militant organization, the members of which receive militant training. What gave Schuschnigg's declaration particular significance was a communique announcing that Prince Ernst Starhemberg's heimwehr (Fascist home guards) followers and Schuschnigg's storm troops had agreed to coöperate in furtherance of their aims.

Another communique announced that Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss had been acclaimed commander in chief of the Schuschnigg storm troops.

Dollfuss No Monarchist.

Whether the actual development of Austria's immediate future will be strongly monarchist remains to be seen. It was recalled that Dollfuss' Christian Social party has been by no means entirely monarchist nor has Dollfuss himself been avowedly in favor of restoration of a kingdom.

On the other hand, Schuschnigg's monarchist sympathies are no secret, and restoration of a Hapsburg rule is periodically discussed in political circles as a possible last resource against Nazis.

Rumors have been in circulation for many months that Prince Starhemberg was ambitious to become regent of a Fascist monarchy (compared to Italy and Hungary). Another prominent monarchist, Friedrich von Wiesner, published in his newspaper under the caption "Lookout for Dr. Dollfuss" a statement to the effect that the Austrian people are bewildered by much talk about democracy or Fascism and that it was time the government cleared up the confusion by decisive action.

Opposes Hapsburg Rule.

Dr. Otto Bauer, veteran leader of the Social-Democrats, Austria's largest party, recently said "to the great mass of Austrians the name 'Hapsburg' means 'war.' Not only war, but all the misery and suffering and deprivation of defeat."

Austria was made a federal republic in 1918.

Germany's Fund to Relieve Poor Swells to $30,000,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 17.—The winter relief fund for Germany's poor has received cash and gifts with a total value of $30,000,000, it was officially announced today. The fund will be used to help take care of 15,000,000 persons. The gifts include 1,000,000 tons of coal, potatoes valued at $5,000,000, and grain, flour and foodstuffs worth $13,000,000.

IL DUCE TO BOOST 4 POWER PARLEY IN SIMON TALKS

Seen as Last Chance to Save Disarm Meeting.

ROME, Dec. 17.—(AP)—The possibility of calling a four-power meeting to solve the disarmament tangle, said the strictly supervised Fascist press today, is likely to be discussed by Premier Mussolini and Foreign Minister Sir John Simon of Great Britain when the latter arrives early this week.

Sir John's visit to Rome will be the first of several calls at European capitals he intends to make during the Christmas holidays in line with proposals for direct disarmament conversations following the adjournment of the disarmament conference at Geneva.

It is known that Il Duce will exert every effort to bring about such a four-power meeting as was discussed in the Fascist press today. He considers it necessary at least as a preliminary to the continuance of the Geneva conference.

Only Hope for Disarm Parley.

Authorized information is that unless some such get-together can be arranged so that opposing views can be harmonized looking toward Germany's return to Geneva, the disarmament conference is a dead issue.

Sir John, according to press reports, is amicably disposed to the four-power parley idea, but whether it would be considered advisable to convoke such a meeting without assurance of French attendance is a matter of doubt.

Undersecretary of State Fulvio Suvich returned from Berlin today and brought back a new clarification of the German viewpoint regarding reform of the league of nations and disarmament problems in general.

Gets Assurance from Hitler.

It was understood Suvich received assurance from Chancellor Hitler that Germany will support the Italian initiative directed at revival and reform of the league of nations, coupled with a reiteration that Germany will not recede from its disarmament demands.

The fact that the French cabinet was expected momentarily to state a firm united front with Poland and the little entente against Premier Mussolini's attempt to reorganize the league and against Hitler's demand for German arms equality was regarded as seriously complicating efforts in that direction.

Conferences in Paris between envoys of the little entente and French diplomats have left no doubt of the firmness of the stand they intended to take.

There have been suggestions in London that Sir John Simon might resign as foreign secretary if he finds conversations on disarmament with continental powers unlikely to produce the desired end.

RESCUE LAST 4 OF BURNED SHIP DRIFTING AT SEA

HALIFAX, N. S., Dec. 17.—(AP)—The four missing members of the crew of the schooner Ellen T. Marshall, which burned at sea Friday night, were rescued by the steamer Ellsworth today. The steamer picked them up at sea while they were drifting in a dory and is bringing them to Wedgeport.

Nineteen of the Marshall's crew were saved yesterday and three drowned in the turbulent surf of Seal island with safety only a matter of yards away. The survivors drifted for 20 hours in fog, sleet, and snow. Four reached Seal island in their dories while seven others got to Peases island and later were taken to Yarmouth for treatment. Eight were picked up by the steamer Lars Kruse while they were drifting in two dories.

Capt. Albert Hines of the Marshall was grief stricken by the death of his son, Ivan, who was one of the trio that drowned. The others drowned were Vincent Muise of Boston, Mass., and Joseph White of Malden, Mass.

SHOW HOW TNT LEVIED TRIBUTE ON CONTRACTORS

Grand Jury to Continue Inquiry Today.

The grand jury will continue hearing evidence today against a dozen or more labor leaders, contractors, and hoodlums, whom State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney charges operated a racket through the Trucking and Transportation exchange, commonly called the TNT. So far eight labor leaders have been arrested on conspiracy warrants charging that they forced business men to pay $250,000 in tribute to the organization.

The character of the evidence being presented to the grand jury, on which Prosecutor Courtney hopes to obtain indictments, was disclosed yesterday by an official in close touch with the investigation.

Graft in the form of monthly payments from a group of favored contractors and excavators has been traced to labor officials and to hoodlums who muscled into the labor field.

Get First Call on Jobs.

The group of ten or more contractors who paid tribute to TNT were repaid by receiving the first call on all jobs through leaders and racketeers. This meant nothing to the TNT group, the officials said, the only consideration being whether the contractor was making his monthly contributions and a bonus for each job he got.

Through a hookup of the labor leaders the racketeers and their "strong arm men," competition was effectively suppressed, it was shown. If bids were called for on a paving, excavating, or teaming job, the low bidder did not necessarily get the job. If the low bidder was not allied with TNT its representatives would call on the contractor and inform him that he could not hire trucks for the job, nor get an engineer to operate his excavating crane, unless he came to terms with the outlaw organization. If the contractor refused to come to terms, hoodlums such as William J. (Three Fingered Jack) White soon convinced him of his error.

By this system of refusing union help to contractors not allied with the TNT, it is charged, kept practically all of the work under its control. In return the contractors paid into the TNT organization $1 a month and up for every truck operated, depending on the size of the truck.

Other Forms of Graft.

The TNT, it is charged, operated several subsidiaries to sower various fields of contracting in which teaming or other unionized lines of labor were used. For instance, in the industry of delivering black dirt to parks or other places for landscaping an additional charge of 25 cents a square yard was added to the regular price, it is charged. This money found its way into the treasury of the TNT, the prosecutors charge.

Coal merchants were also forced to join the so-called exchange and pay monthly dues for their trucks. Several coal merchants have been witnesses before the grand jury. The warrants taken out so far have charged that coal merchants were the principal victims of the exchange.

Although many contractors who operated through the TNT exchange could be indicted for conspiracy, State's Attorney Courtney indicated that he would ask the grand jury to name only the main offenders. In all he said he expects to have between 12 and 15 defendants indicted.

Arrest John Sheridan Sr.

John Sheridan Sr., long a power in labor circles as secretary of the joint council of the Chicago Teamsters' union, so-called outlaw labor organization which controls most of the teamster unions in Chicago, was arrested last Friday. Sheridan, it is charged, was one of the main influences in the TNT.

Others already arrested are Marcus [Muddy] Looney, business agent of the Excavating Teamsters' union; John Lynch, president of the Hoisting Engineers' union; John J. Baggot, secretary of a teamsters' union of Maywood; David Reese, president of the Chicago Coal Teamsters' union; John M. Bransfield, head of an excavating company, and Charles J. Wilson, president of TNT.

SCIENCE RAYS, EXCEEDING SUN, SHATTER ATOMS

Force Electric Charge Out of Hydrogen.

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 17.—(AP)—A new kind of electrical furnace which produces hot spots of hundreds of thousands of degrees, far exceeding anything known on the surface of the sun, was announced tonight at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

This furnace is a small, glass vacuum tube, and the hot spots within it provide a new source of protons [positive charges of electricity] for bombarding the nuclei of atoms. They yield nine-fold more protons than any method previously devised.

The heating element of the tube is three electrodes. Its fuel for making protons is hydrogen gas, at low pressure. Between two of the electrodes a flaming arc forms in the gas.

Protons Are Revealed.

Placed around the arc is the third electrode, and its boosting action produces the hot points in the gas. The excessive temperatures are confined to these points, the gas around them remaining comparatively cool. The points of heat are too small to be read with ordinary instruments. But their existence and temperatures are revealed by the streams of protons shooting out from them.

Just how this is done was discovered by Dr. Edward S. Lamar and Dr. Overton Luhr, working in cooperation with Dr. Karl T. Compton, president of the institute. The arc tears apart some of the hydrogen gas particles, turning them into ionized, or electrified, bodies.

Bounce Back Into Gas.

When these electrified particles jump across the arc from one electrode to the other they rebound into the gas with considerable velocity.

This rebound is vastly increased by the third electrode which surrounds the arc. With the third electrode turned on, carrying only a few hundred volts, the particles come bounding off with the energies of hundreds of thousands of degrees of temperature.

This rebound, caused by the third electrode, also produces the great increase in protons, which are the positively charged nuclei of hydrogen molecules stripped of their outer coverings.

Some Former Results.

Previous furnaces of this sort have used only the single arc. This has yielded mostly electrically charged molecules, or pairs of atoms. Dr. Compton, in describing the advantages of obtaining protons instead of these molecular ions [negative charges], said that protons in a 1,000,000 volt bombarding current will produce the same results as 2,000,000 volts with ordinary molecular ions.

CWA WORKERS RUSH THEIR JOBS AT NEW SALEM

Restore Historic Sites at State Park.

Bloomington, Ill., Dec. 17.—[Special.]—With forty-four men already at work at the New Salem State park to carry forward the restoration work recently approved by the civil works administration, the hopes of Gov. Horner to restore the historic sites and buildings nears realization.

From Washington comes word that other projects to restore historic buildings which have fallen into neglect or decay are considered. Vandalia and Springfield, have already been listed on such a rehabilitation program.

Bloomington Has Prospect.

At New Salem excavation and construction of the foundation of the Rutledge tavern will give the 44 men work for at least sixty days.

Bloomington would like to see restored an edifice at East and Front street, where a tablet erected by the D. A. R. marks it as the structure in which Abraham Lincoln delivered his famous "lost speech," the turning point in Illinois' pre-civil war political history. The building as it now stands is two stories high. Originally it was three stories, the third story being old Major's hall, the room in which the Lincoln lost speech of May 29, 1856, was delivered. In this room, also were convened the classes of Illinois State Normal university during the first three years of that institution's existence.

Old Vandalia Capitol.

Central Illinois will have another state museum with the restoration of the one time capitol at Vandalia, where Lincoln first served in the legislature nearly a century ago.

Work has already been started on the Vandalia project and $17,000 will be expended. Unemployed men are being hired by the CWA officials.

Plans have been formulated for preservation of another historical landmark, the Old State house at Springfield. It was here that Lincoln, crusading against slavery, made the speech in which he declared that "A house divided against itself cannot stand."

LIQUOR PRICES WILL BE FILED IN COMING WEEK

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17.—(AP)—Dr. James M. Doran, supervisor of the distilled spirits authority, announced tonight the industry would file its liquor price lists with the federal alcohol control administration this week.

"When these prices are made public," Doran said, "I have no doubt that a great deal of current criticism on high whisky prices will be met."

The industry, he said in a statement, is regulated under the code and other conditions in such a manner as should "meet the most drastic requirements of those who desire such governmental control."

Doran said there had been a huge loss in old whiskies through leakage and evaporation in the last 17 years, adding that barrels which contained 48 to 50 gallons when stored in warehouses were found to have only 18 to 20 gallons when tapped.

Two Girls and Boy Win Scholarships; 60 Tried

Urbana, Ill., Dec. 17.—[Special.]—The 1933 Gregory scholarships at the University of Illinois amounting to $100 each have been awarded to Miss Marian L. Wood, Clinton, Ill.; Miss Mabre D. Sioux City, Ia., Dec. 17.—[Special.]—His head injured on Thanksgiving day when he fell on an iron cellar in front of his home, George Wenig, 6, died today. He was the son of E. C. Wenig, state agent in charge of beer law enforcement.

PWA WILL FURNISH $25,000 TO REBUILD CAPE HENRY CASINO

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 17.—[Special.]—The public works administration today advised W. J. O'Keefe that he would be financed to the extent of $25,000 to rebuild the Cape Henry casino, which was destroyed by a hurricane on Aug. 22.

The casino was one of the most famous dining halls on the Atlantic coast. It was made so by the fame of the oyster roasts given there and which were attended by some of the most prominent men in the United States, including five Presidents.

O'Keefe has entertained Presidents Cleveland, Wilson, Harding, Coolidge, and Theodore Roosevelt. He has also had as his guests ministers of foreign countries, senators from almost every state in the Union and the governors of 26 states. The work of rebuilding the structure will begin tomorrow.

O'Keefe is 72 years old, but is very active. For 30 years he took a dip in the Atlantic ocean every day, summer and winter. He says this practice has kept him in trim.

TWO GET DEATH FOR MURDER OF KING OF AFGHANS

KABUL, Afghanistan, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Abdul Khaliq, convicted of the assassination of King Nadir Shah of Afghanistan on Nov. 8, was sentenced to death today.

An accomplice named Mahmud also received the death sentence, while two others involved in the slaying, named Ishaq and Abdullah, got life imprisonment.

An infuriated crowd tried to capture the prisoners, demanding execution of the four. Police restrained the mob with difficulty. The king was shot, reports said, as he left his royal harem. He was then dragged for a distance and stabbed. A political feud was blamed for the assassination.

Two Killed, 12 Hurt When CCC Truck Goes Into Ditch

Coudersport, Pa., Dec. 17.—(AP)—Two members of the civilian conservation corps, Hull's camp, 35 miles south of here, were killed last night and 12 were injured when a truck in which they were riding went into a ditch.

PARAGUAY TAKES ANOTHER FORT IN CHACO DRIVE

[Chicago Tribune Foreign Service.]

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Dec. 17.—The war office announced officially today that the Paraguayan forces had captured Fort Bolivar from the Bolivians. The capture represents a considerable Paraguayan advance into the Bolivian army's northern line in the Gran Chaco.

President Eusebio Ayala today received a telegram from President Gabriel Terra of Uruguay urging him to embrace the present opportunity and end the war.

The terms on which Paraguay will agree to an armistice are not revealed, but is is generally assumed they will include conditions making it impossible to resume the war in the event negotiations for a lasting peace fail.

DANES ACCEPT LOG CABIN, GIFT OF FRIENDS IN U. S.

[Copyright, 1933, By the New York Times.]

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 17.—A log cabin erected in Rebild park as a symbol of Danish-American friendship was accepted today by the park foundation.

The cabin is made of timber sent from the 48 states to Dr. Max Henius, Chicago brewer, and original founder of the park, who suggested the building of the cabin as a museum in which might be housed souvenirs of early Danish emigrants to the United States. It is expected the museum will be completely furnished by July 4, when the Rebild festival will be revived.

Accuse Manuel Quezon of Treachery.

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 17.—(AP)—Advocates of the acceptance of the congressional offer of independence for the Philippines after a decade of preparation tonight formally seceded from the dominant Nacionalista party and launched a new group styled the "Nacionalista party for independence."

Senator Sergio Osmena, who led the vain fight in the legislature to obtain acceptance of the Hawes-Cutting independence act, was elected president of the provisional executive committee of 25 members. Manuel Roxas, ousted speaker of the insular house, was chosen vice president at the one day convention, which was attended by 4,000 persons, including a score of women.

Ask Freedom Date Be Set.

Roxas declared the Hawes-Cutting act was "murdered" and charged the politically powerful Manuel Quezon, head of the Nacionalista party, "killed the law with treachery."

Adoption of a platform was left in the hands of the executive committee. It was reported authoritatively the traditional shibboleth of "immediate, complete, and absolute independence" would be replaced by a plea for freedom on a fixed date. Osmena, who helped found the Nacionalistas nearly three decades ago, declared the old party was "a body without a soul" and said he hoped to revive the Hawes-Cutting act if he could win support at the polls at the June triennial elections.

Osmena said the new move meant the Philippines now have a definite two-party system. Resolutions adopted proposed union with those members of the divided Democrata party who favored acceptance of the Hawes-Cutting act.

To Enter Elections.

Another expressed gratitude to congress for enacting the independence measure. A third condemned the legislature for failure to provide a plebiscite. Others sanctioned the selection of candidates for all posts and expressed confidence in the two resident commissioners at Washington, one of whom, Camilio Osias, was condemned by a vote of the house last month.

The split of the Nacionalista party is similar to a division a decade ago when Quezon, president of the insular senate, who now is heading an independence mission at Washington, was victorious by a narrow margin over a faction headed by Osmena. A Democrata member of the legislature, who had been allied with Quezon in opposing the Hawes-Cutting act, minimized the reports of yesterday that the party would be revived by Quezon's foes. He said the Democrata party was dead.

BACH VOTARIES HALT BATTLE OF TWO PACIFISTS

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 17.—(AP)—H. L. Mencken, Baltimore's fiery man of letters; Alfred Knopf, New York publisher; an eminent surgean, an authority on genetics, and a well known musician today appeared in police court to tell how last night they defeated and captured a couple of pacifists who started a fight.

It happened at Schellhases' restaurant, where the Saturday Night club assembled to drink beer and discuss Bach. Knopf was there as Mencken's guest.

J. R. Coe of Washington and Thomas C. Pinkerton of Baltimore, in another part, drank and read "War and Fascism." They denounced war and those who would have it. They seemed to think Bach responsible, for they insisted on entering the club session. H. E. Buchholz, the club's sergeant at arms, refused and was struck. Mencken, Knopf, and Dr. Raymond Pearl, Johns Hopkins professor of genetics; Dr. Franklin Hazelhurst, a surgeon, and Gustave Strube, conductor of the Peabody Student orchestra, stopped the fight.

Coe and Pinkerton signed a statement saying that, as they had not been prosecuted, they would take no action against the restaurant.

JAPAN EXPLAINS NEW INVASION IS TO KILL BANDITS

Official Tells Reason for Chahar Advance.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Dec. 17.—The Japanese-Manchukuo force invading Chahar province from Jehol has for its purpose the consolidation of the Japanese line along the great wall and the elimination of banditry in an extensive area bordering Chahar, Jehol, and northern Hopei provinces, according to the report of Col. Shibayama, Japanese military attaché at Peiping, today.

An invading force of 4,000 to 5,000 is accompanied by 100 armored cars, four field pieces, 40 machine guns and five bombing planes. Chinese reports indicate that the minor engagements and casualties are due to Chinese withdrawals. They point out that extermination of banditry is the same explanation given in Japanese military statements preceding the advance on Chinchow in 1931 and their advance on Peiping early this year.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's newspaper, Chen Pao, today reported the opening of hostilities between his troops supporting the Nanking national government and the combined forces of the 19th route army and communists along the Fukien-Chekiang border.

Sun Fo, head of the Nanking legislative department, stated that communist forces now in alliance with the 19th route army are withdrawing from Kiangsi province into northern Fukien and are centered at Yenping, located on the Min river in northern Fukien, about 100 miles northwest of Foochow. Sun Fo declared that the communist withdrawal from Kiangsi is responsible for Marshal Chiang's advance toward the Fukien border.

Nanking claims that red troops flying the familiar sickle and hammer banner are occupying a vanguard position. The advance lines of the Nanking troops are centered at Kienning, in northern Fukien, and the opposing armies are about 12 miles apart. Major hostilities are expected shortly.

WM. P. MILLER, MANUFACTURER OF CIGARS, DIES

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 17.—[Special.]—William P. Miller, 66 a cigar manufacturer here for 45 years, died today at his home at 923 South 28th street. He was born and reared on the south side. He was an enthusiastic follower of the game of skat from the time he reached manhood and played in most of the tournaments held here.

Mr. Miller's social affiliations included membership in the Old Settlers' club, the Knights of Pythias, the Eagles club, the West Milwaukee Gun and Fishing club, and the old Calumet club.

Surviving are a widow, Julia, and two daughters, Mrs. F. H. Haeff and Mrs. Magnus Andersen.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the F. J. Borgwardt Sons, Inc., undertaking establishment and will be in charge of Walker lodge of the Knights of Pythias. Burial will be in Forest Home cemetery.

RUSSIA'S BUDGET FOR '34 CALLS FOR 28 PCT. INCREASE

(Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.)

MOSCOW, Dec. 17.—Soviet Russia's budget for the coming year will be 45 billion rubles, as compared with 35 billion for the year just ended. [This is a 28.8 per cent increase.] It is true these are paper, the purchasing power of which is considerably lower than the gold ruble which is worth 50 cents.

It is also announced that the budgetary income this year by Dec. 1 equalized the whole expenditure—and that there will be a surplus by Dec. 31.

Other interesting financial details will be revealed at the meeting opening Dec. 25 of the all-union central executive committee. For instance, it will be pointed out that the discount rate on soviet commercial paper in New York and Paris, which has been as high as 35 per cent, is now from 10 to 12 per cent. Moreover, the soviet union paid $200,000,000 or more on its foreign debts this year.

PAINT AND BEADS TO BE COSTUMES FOR ARTIST BALL

The annual art colony's ball, to be held Feb. 10 in the Hotel Sherman, will have as its principal motif the deep, dark jungles of Africa. This was decided upon yesterday at a meeting of the Artists' Equity society.

It is planned to transform the ballroom into a realistic jungle. The theme will be further emphasized in the costumes of those attending the dance. Some of the costumes will be quite "native," consisting of a little paint and a few beads and bracelets, said Louis Weiner. Many of the artists, he added, will dress up as animals, birds, and snakes.

The dance will open about 10 p. m., Feb. 10, and end at dawn the next morning. The dance will be open to the general public, with suitable costumes as a requirement. Proceeds of the dance will go for the benefit of needy artists.

F. D. GARDNER, 64, EX-GOVERNOR OF MISSOURI, DEAD

St. Louis, Dec. 18 [Monday.]—(AP)—Frederick D. Gardner, 64, war-time governor of Missouri and well known in national Democratic circles, died here early today of a toxemic infection of the jaw, which developed after extraction of a tooth.

Former Gov. Gardner had been ill for three weeks. His condition grew steadily worse until last Friday an operation to prevent the spread of the infection to the base of the brain was performed. His condition grew steadily worse and hope was given up last night.

BABY IS KILLED IN AUTO CRASH ON WAY TO HOSPITAL

Eight Deaths Increase Year's Toll to 1,082.

Barbara Norby, 10 months old, of Lockport, was killed in an automobile accident yesterday while being hurried to a Chicago hospital. The child became suddenly ill during the morning and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Norby, decided to take her to the Illinois Research hospital for observation. While speeding toward Chicago in route 4, half a mile east of Hinsdale, Norby's car crashed into a parked coal truck operated by Leroy Jones, a Negro, of Melrose Park. Barbara was fatally hurt when she was hurled against a seat by the impact of the collision.

Two other children also died yesterday of injuries incurred in motor mishaps. They were Otto Swartz, 7 years old, 3435 West 51st street, and Violet Erickson, 75, of 6011 South Cicero avenue.

The Swartz boy was riding in a truck driven by Frank Sabain, 5148 South Trumbull avenue, when it collided with a car driven by Henry Jessek, 5126 South Mozart street, at 54th and Mozart streets. He died in the South Town hospital. The Erickson girl was injured near her home Saturday night by a machine operated by David Ruda, 5024 Winthrop avenue. She died yesterday in Holy Cross hospital.

These three deaths, one other related elsewhere, and the following deaths, increased the Cook county toll to 1,082 since Jan. 1. Other victims:

Mrs. Marie Duer, 51 years old, 1657 West 104th place, wife of George K. Duer, owner of a trucking company. Died in the Little Company of Mary hospital of injuries incurred Dec. 10 when an automobile in which she and her husband were riding, and which was driven by Joseph Kohler, 2051 North Kedzie avenue, collided with another car and burst into flames. The accident occurred at Western and Grand avenues.

Eric Rosenberg, 75 years old, 5346 Leland avenue. Killed last night in front of 5218 Irving Park boulevard by a truck driven by Bernard Vinci, 24, of 3746 North Kostner avenue.

Mrs. Mary McNichols, 65 years old, 6813 South Peoria street. Died yesterday in St. Bernard's hospital. She was run down at Halsted street and Marquette road last Monday by an automobile driven by Charles Van Worden, 33, a visitor from Michigan, staying at 826 West 77th street.

August Vanderbeck, 39 years old, 1902 49th avenue, Cicero. Injured Wednesday by a hit and run car at Cermak road and 49th avenue, Cicero, and died yesterday in the county hospital.

Justice C. A. Peters, Father of Artist Arno, Dies in N.Y.

New York, Dec. 17.—[Special.]—Justice Curtis Arnoux Peters of the Supreme court died today. He was 54 years old. His widow, Mrs. Charlotte Louise Kalensee Peters; a daughter, Constance Peters, and Peter Arno, the artist, a son by a previous marriage, survive.

HUNT 5 SLAYERS OF BARTENDER IN TAVERN ROBBERY

Chicago and county highway police were searching yesterday for five bandits who killed Emil Stegmann, a bartender, during a holdup early in the day of the Harlem Nut house, a tavern at 4225 South Harlem avenue, Stickney.

Nearly a hundred patrons were in the place when the bandits entered and ordered all to pile their valuables on a table. Stegmann, a former special policeman living at 7115 40th street, Stickney, started to edge toward the end of the bar. One of the robbers, apparently suspecting that Stegmann was trying to get at a gun, shot him near the heart. He died later in the Berwyn hospital.

The bandits got about $100 from those patrons who did not flee at their entrance. Leroy Storey, 614 East 49th street, the Negro doorman, told the police later that the gang drove up and asked how big the crowd inside was. When he replied that there were about a hundred, they replied "Good," then ordered him to turn around while they put on their masks. Their escape was facilitated by a heavy fog.

Mrs. Theresa Novotny, 89, Pioneer Chicagoan, Dead

Mrs. Theresa Novotny, 89 years old, a resident of Chicago for 66 years, died early today in the home of her son, Charles Novotny, 2743 South Pulaski road [Crawford avenue]. She was born in Vienna. Her husband, Frank Novotny, a hardware merchant, died in 1926. Surviving Mrs. Novotny are four sons. Services will be held at 10 a. m. Wednesday at 3814 West 26th street. Burial will be in Bohemian National cemetery.

Dr. J. B. Conant Will Be Guest in City Today

Harvard's President Makes Brief Visit.

BY JUDITH CASS.

INTEREST in intellectual circles today centers in the arrival from Boston of Dr. James B. Conant, Harvard's youthful new president, who is the classmate of at least a dozen well known Chicagoans. Although Dr. Conant's host and hostess, President and Mrs. Robert Maynard Hutchins of the University of Chicago, have announced that their guest is coming simply for a two day social visit, it is whispered among certain Harvard alumni that the eastern educator is to be recognized today or tomorrow with new laurels by Chicago's university.

Arriving shortly after noon today, Dr. Conant is to be introduced to a select group of Harvard alumni and friends at a dinner this evening at the Midway home of President and Mrs. Hutchins. The guest list includes Mrs. Laird Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Cable, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Woodward, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Clay Judson, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shorey, and the Rev. and Mrs. Charles W. Gilkey.

At 12:30 tomorrow, when President Hutchins entertains at luncheon at the Chicago club, Dr. Conant will meet other leading Chicagoans, many of whom are Harvard alumni. Guests on this occasion will be Edward L. Ryerson Jr., William McCormick Blair, Charles H. Swift, Lloyd M. Steere, Laird Bell, Thomas E. Donnelley, Russell Tyson, Barrett Wendell, Howard F. Gillette, Paul S. Russell, Leo Wormser, Charles B. Goodspeed, John A. Wilson, Col. A. A. Sprague, Prof. Hayward Keniston, John Stuart, James Simpson, Charles H. Schweppe, Harold H. Swift, Sewell Avery, James H. Douglas, Prof. Henry Prescott, and Dean Harry Bigelow.

The Chicago Harvard club is refraining from doing anything for Dr. Conant this time because his time is so limited—he will be here only today and tomorrow—and because he has promised to return to the city to speak at the club's annual dinner in February.

Sell Twenty Boxes for Harvard Concert.

Right now the Chicago sons of the Crimson are congratulating themselves that they have sold twenty out of twenty-three boxes in Orchestra hall for the concert the Harvard Musical clubs are to give the evening of Dec. 27. And little wonder the sale has been so easy, for the young musicians, who arrive at 7 o'clock the night of the 27th, are to present a program with plenty of appeal. The Banjo club will play the "Veritas" march, for instance, one of the oldest of football marches, also the ever popular "Goofus." More highbrow, the Mandolin club will devote itself to things complicated, such as Victor Herbert's Serenade. The Glee club will mix up a bill of rah-rah pieces with classical selections.

Besides these attractions the clubs bring with them a magician and, as they say, "one honest to goodness musician." This is Malcolm Holmes, a graduate student, who is rapidly making a name for himself as a violinist.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson Jr. have taken five boxes for the concert on the 27th, for they are entertaining two dozen of the season's buds on that evening for Miss Patsy Keith, one of the most popular of the winter's debutantes. The Ryerson party will have dinner first at the Casino and move on after the concert to the party the William H. Mitchells and the John Payne Kelloggs are having for Miss Helen Hunter, the Robert Hunters' daughter, who arrives tomorrow night from Pasadena, Cal.

Plans Box Party for Frances Jeffrey.

Miss Frances Whedon, who will be back from Lake Placid in another week with her pretty young niece, Miss Frances Jeffrey, a freshman at Vassar this year, is entertaining with a box party for Miss Jeffrey at the concert. The Fowler McCormicks will have their favorite box—there is only one they ever occupy—and Frederick Clay Bartlett Jr., who was graduated from Harvard in the class of '27, will be the youngest box host.

Still others who have taken boxes for this occasion include Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe, Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Cable, Col. and Mrs. Albert A. Sprague, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Valentine, Russell Tyson, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Eagle Brown, Mrs. William Bartholomay, Edward I. Cudahy, and Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Barnes.

When the musical clubs travel out to the north shore to give a Winnetka concert the following night there will be a coterie of the north shore's most attractive post debs ushering. Stewart Boal, whose judgment of young women is recognized as discriminating, has selected Miss Helen Bell for the head usher, and Miss Frances Bell, Miss Virginia Hobart, Miss Margaret Hamill, Miss Louise Lackner, Miss Antoinette Lackner, Miss Eleanor Cushman, Miss Anna Howe, and Miss Eleanor Cheney for her assistants.

Compile Box List for Princeton Show.

Quite as impressive as the Harvard boxholders list is that which the Chicago Princeton graduates are compiling for their annual Triangle performance to be given on Dec. 26 in the old Auditorium. The show, "Fiesta," a story of the old southwest, is the 45th annual production of the club.

Dollhouse of Early Chicagoan Put on Display

A Dollhouse Made in 1858 on Exhibition

Small Scale Reproduction of Home of 1690.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Young and old . . . beginning today there's a real Christmas treat in store for you at the colonial home of the Chicago Historical society in Lincoln park. It's a holiday exhibit, a big square green and white doll house, the gift of four generations of Badgers, one of the city's pioneer and influential families.

Tiny tads will like the dollhouse because it is a perfect playhouse as well as a glorified toyland, while their elders will appreciate it for its delightful reproduction of early American manners and customs. The directors of the society have carefully and effectively installed it in the general exhibits' room, surrounded it with dolls that tell the story of Chicago from Fort Dearborn to A Century of Progress, and flanked it with four sparkling Christmas trees. Therein lies the real holiday spirit.

Little Camille Henry McDonald and her baby sister, Marianne, representatives of the fourth generation of Chicago Badgers, made a trip over to the Historical society on Saturday to see the dollhouse as it was being assembled. They rather secretly wished they had it in their own Lake Shore drive playroom . . . they are the children of Mr. and Mrs. John G. McDonald . . . but even then they hesitated to play with it when they heard that their great, great uncle Leonidas Virgil Badger, built it away back in 1858, and that it is a small scale reproduction of the Badger home built in Portsmouth, N. H., in 1690.

In colonial times the Badgers braved the stormy seas to cross the ocean from England and settle in New Hampshire. Then about 1835 one branch of the family, even more adventurous in spirit, emigrated on west to Louisville, Ky., and there it was in 1858 that Leonidas Virgil Badger built the dollhouse . . . as a playhouse for his children, also to preserve in miniature the original family homestead.

At the outbreak of the civil war in 1861 Leonidas came to Chicago and here with his brother, "A. C.," he started to build the family name and fortune. At his death his nephew, Alpheus Shreve Badger, who lives in Barrington today and is the father of Shreve C. Badger, inherited the precious plaything. It was he who specified that it should go to the Historical society.

Andreas, that well known historian, speaks of the standing of Mr. and Mrs. Alpheus Shreve Badger in the Victorian days just as he might speak of them today . . . or again of the young Badgers, the Huntington Henrys, the McDonalds, and other members of his family. "Both Mr. Badger and his wife," the historian says, "stand high in social circles. They are cordial and genuine, have great affability, and are most pleasing entertainers."

With the exception of the upstairs parlor . . . there are four rooms in the dollhouse, parlor and dining room downstairs and parlor and living room upstairs . . . all of the tiny furniture was made by Leonidas Badger after he had finished the framework of the house itself. The precision and care with which it is done represents months if not years of work.

There is even a footman in full livery at the entrance and a butler at the dining room door. A teakwood chair in the lower parlor is believed to be a reproduction of one that was brought to the Badgers in 1700 by a sea faring captain. Another is a reproduction of one used by John Alden, and still another a replica of one that belonged to Gov. Carver. The tables are set in the middle of the rooms, directly in the center of rag and braided rugs, Victorian fashion. They also were the work of the ingenious Leonidas. Even the curtains—they have been laundered several times in this century past—are those that he made in 1858.

Because the Historical society believes the exhibit will be not only a pleasure but an education for Chicago's school children, it is admitting them free of charge during the holiday season. Daily the museum is open from 9:30 to 5 o'clock. On Sundays the hours are 12:30 to 5:30.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Roosevelt have as their house guests the former's cousin, the United States minister to Canada, Warren Delano Robbins, and Mrs. Robbins, who have been guests for a few days of Mr. and Mrs. Leland Harrison.

Mrs. Donner Roosevelt, who was a guest at the White House, has returned with her young son to her home in Philadelphia.

Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Ickes will be joined this week by their two sons, Raymond and Robert, who are motoring from their college in Chicago and who will spend the holidays with them here.

The Jugo-Slav minister, Dr. Pitamic, entertained at tea and a reception this afternoon to celebrate the anniversary of the birth of King Alexander I. of Jugo-Slavia.

THIS probably is the most horrible tale you've heard since repeal:

A waiter pushed his way to a crowded hotel bar the other day and announced that an old guy wanted a mint julep.

"What's a mint julep?" asked the young bartender. The waiter offered no help, so he consulted the other barkeep, who evidently told him what he knew about a mint julep.

The first bartender took a tall glass, put in what appeared to be peppermint, gave it a half-hearted poke with a long handled spoon, added three large lumps of ice, and filled the glass nearly to the top with Bourbon whisky. Then he paused and scratched his head thoughtfully. Obviously coming to an abrupt decision, he added a half-inch of grenadine sirup, stirred the whole vigorously, and inserted two slices of orange and a maraschino cherry, after which he decorated the glass with several sprigs of green and stuck in two straws. It was evident that if that wasn't a julep there was nothing more he could do about it. . . .

We regret not to be able to tell you what the old guy who wanted the julep said when he got it.

PERHAPS now is the moment to tell about the society Jack Brady is organizing. It is the M. C. T. U. [Men's Christian Temperance union], and the purpose is to get the women out of the barrooms. The theme song is, "Mother Dear Mother, Come Home with Me Now," and the bouncer's song, "Lady Bug, Lady Bug, Fly Away Home." . . .

A READER named Rose Dickinson writes that she was in Boston recently, and on a Sabbath morning, instead of attending divine worship with her Back Bay host, started out in search of the historic abode of Paul Revere. Penetrating the winding streets of the Italian quarter, she soon lost her way and, seeing a fire truck manned by two brawny, handsomely uniformed fire laddies, asked for directions.

"We can take you there easier than we can tell you, lady," one of them offered handsomely. Miss Dickinson mounted the fire truck and, safely hemmed in between the two stalwart gallants, had a thrilling ride of her own to Paul Revere's home.

TWO dear old ladies were sitting in the last row of the balcony at the concert last Tuesday. Sylvia Trilling, who saw them there, didn't see how they had managed to climb so far, but she was more interested in the way they registered their approval of Mr. Schnabel, the soloist. When he finished playing they produced two voluminous handkerchiefs and waved them at him like mad.

YOU probably read in the society columns dignified lists of civic minded and opera loving folk buying boxes for Chicago grand opera, opening Dec. 26. We'll take you behind the scenes for a moment and tell you about some of the notations on the "prospect" cards in the files of the opera box committee. For instance, the card bearing the name of a widely known Chicagoan, on which is jotted, "Hard to get past the butler." On another the notation, "Rich mother-in-law." A third points out, "Interested in one of the singers." On a fourth is penciled, "Hates Wagner." An occasional name card has "R. B." penciled after the name. That means "rich bachelor." Thus, the opera box committee member who calls up prospective box buyers is forearmed with helpful information from the files.

The Hat Shops Display Shiny Satin Models

Royal Blue Shade Newest Fashion Note.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Catch your shopping breath in the millinery salons. Despite the fact that all the exciting new southern models and between season hats have been unpacked it is comparatively calm and quiet on the fashion front where they feature new headlines.

Satin smoothies are the newest; shiny black affairs with and without brims, tricky little tucked skull cap arrangements with a clever cut-out flange that looks like a bat's wing; satin berets, squared and tucked and buttoned with quirky little viser effects neatly put together with either pins, clips, or covered gadgets.

New cire satin fashions small models made with all kinds of detail in rows of fine stitching, and the smartest, newest color is a royal blue shade . . . hat buyers predict an overwhelming lot of this color during the new season.

Brimmed hats with the off-the-face swoop, no longer defiantly and uncompromisingly stand stiffly away from the forehead. The newest wide brims turn up at the side and are quite the swankiest things you can wear. Very shallow crowns and wider, more picturesque brims make them look like cavalier hats minus the feathers.

New picture hats of black felt will cause a lot of excitement—wide, flattering brims to dip and swirl and twist to suit your fancy, with knowingly dipped and molded crowns and a simple little bow for decorative . . . ready things that will do grand duty toward rejuvenating a much worn winter wardrobe.

By ELIZABETH JORDAN

SYNOPSIS.

Bruce Pomeroy, brought up in poverty, befriended a Russian, Boris Orleneff. In return Orleneff, before his death, left Pomeroy an invention, which is about to make Pomeroy a millionaire. Orleneff stipulated that his brother's family, whom he considered parasites, were not to get a cent from the invention. While walking through New York's Central park one winter's morning Pomeroy is kidnaped and taken to a small island off the coast of Maine, where he is made a prisoner in a luxurious home, but kept on a starvation diet. His captor is Boris Orleneff, nephew of the inventor. Boris' cousins, Cyril and Olga Norrikoff, assisted in the abduction. They want Pomeroy to make a settlement. He refuses. Boris invites Pomeroy to join the family circle downstairs. The older members are unaware that Pomeroy is an involuntary guest. He is impressed by Boris' sister, Irma, and his mother. Pomeroy manages to elude his guard, Grateful, and get out of his room, but a raging storm makes escape impossible. Olga Norrikoff offers to help him escape if he will take her to New York. She tells him they are all starving. That the house was lent to them for the winter. Boris and Cyril hadn't been able to get work.

INSTALLMENT XXV.

A LAST HOPE.

"What's the matter with your aunt's eyes?"

Pomeroy grasped the new topic with pathetic eagerness. Olga looked at him with her understanding gamin grin.

"Don't be so nervous," she suggested. "Come and sit down. I'll promise not to make the slightest assault on your virtue, though the opportunity is golden."

"Please don't talk that way."

"Don't you like it?"

"No, I don't."

"Then we'll drop the subject," she said kindly. "I merely wanted to reassure you. Come and sit down and we'll sing a hymn."

As he continued to glower at her she laughed apologetically.

"It isn't fair play," she suddenly admitted. "But you're so unsophisticated and so—well, so artless with women—that you really drive me to it. I can't resist shocking you."

"If that's an apology I accept it," he said curtly. "As you say, shocking me is really too easy to be interesting."

"All right, I won't do it any more. Sit down and tell me the story of your life."

"No, thanks, I don't feel the urge."

"That's odd, too, but you're different from us in a lot of ways. Well, sit down and we'll talk about Aunt Sonia's eyes. You asked me about them, didn't you?"

"Yes. What's the matter with them?" As he spoke Pomeroy crossed the room and opened the door wide. Then he returned to the fire and dropped into a chair.

"You're really quite an interesting study, Sir Galahad," Olga assured him. "I could tell you a lot of things about yourself and your inhibitions that would surprise you. But I won't," she added hastily, as he made an impatient movement. "I'll tell you about Aunt Sonia. She has a cataract on each eye."

"He and Grateful have had their heads together."

"But she can get rid of those," Pomeroy blurted out. "Cataract operations are the simplest things eye surgeons have to handle now."

"I know that. If one has a thousand dollars for each operation, and money for hospital expenses besides, its quite simple. But you see Aunt Sonia's right eye is ready for the operation now. Cataracts must be operated on when they're ready. If one waits too long——"

"Look here," Pomeroy asked abruptly, "did you come in here to tell me this?"

She stared at him in genuine surprise. Then she laughed again.

"I do confuse you, don't I?" she said easily. "One minute you think I'm a Jezabel, and the next you see me as a Girl Scout doing my good deed for the day. But you'll have to readjust your ideas again," she went on. "I came in simply and sorely to divert my mind. I told you this house was getting on my nerves, and mother's collapse is the last straw. Starvation isn't our only trouble, you know. I could begin to howl and run amuck if I'd let myself. And that reminds me," she added briskly as he took this outburst in silence, "has Cyril been in here today?"

"No—thank God."

She laughed again at the fervor of the exclamation.

"You don't like him, do you?"

"No, I don't."

Her face sobered suddenly.

"Well, he will be in," she predicted. "I think he's all set for it, and I've got to warn you. He and Grateful have had their heads together. Grateful hates him, so if he's been driven to hobnob with him it may mean mischief. I don't want Cyril to get into any trouble, and I'm not willing to have anything unpleasant happen to you."

"Thanks," he said ironically.

She hesitated and her self-assurance left her. "So perhaps I'm a Girl Scout after all. I don't know whether you've noticed Cyril closely," she went on, "but he's—well, he's not quite as steady as the rest of us and he's taking this whole experience harder. He's just about at the breaking point. He has a higher temper, and I'm afraid you may have trouble with him."

"What kind of trouble?" Pomeroy asked the question perfunctorily.

"Cyril has attacks of depression," she went on slowly. "He always has had them, since he was a little boy. They're hard to go through," she went on depressedly. "It's as if he were in a black pit. If they last too long he gets desperate and hits out."

"I don't wonder this house is getting on your nerves," Pomeroy said slowly. "It's getting on mine. God, what a record! Two men dying, a third on the verge of melancholia, a woman going blind, and everybody starved and generally down and out. It's simply unbelievable. How have you endured it all these years?"

She nodded.

"It does seem pretty bad, the way you put it," she agreed. "But you must remember that it hasn't been like this 'all these years.' You have come just at the time when our affairs have reached a crisis. It was because they had reached a crisis that you were brought here. Our last hope!" She grinned at him sardonically. "You see how childish we all were to build our hopes on this—this——"

"This crime," he suggested.

"We don't admit that it's a crime," she said coolly. "We brought you here to talk things over. We had to bring you by force because we knew you wouldn't come any other way. We were not criminals—but I admit that we were fools," she ended heavily. "It was an idiotic thing to do."

He said nothing, and she went on in a different tone.

"We've had our better days. Dad and Cyril and Boris have earned some money from time to time. They could have kept us going, in a fashion, if this depression hadn't made it impossible for them to get even temporary jobs. But we enjoyed life when we had anything to enjoy it on."

"I know. Every time any one earned ten dollars you all 'threw a party!'"

She laughed without mirth.

"Something like that. But not after Uncle Boris faded out of the picture. Aunt Sonia and mother wouldn't let us. They had begun to get panicy."

"Look here," Pomeroy said. "I'll see that Mme. Orleneff has those operations. I'll be glad to do that. I'm sure her brother would want me to."

She shook her head.

"They won't let you give them charity. And we've all decided that since Uncle Boris hated us so much he has forbidden you to give us any of his money, we don't want it, anyway."

"He didn't realize that the depression would come and make it so much harder——" Pomeroy stopped. He had suddenly heard, as if they were echoing in this quiet room, other confidences made him by Orleneff.

"I've got to safeguard you," the Russian had said. "They'll try every possible means of getting around you. They won't stop at anything. And they're clever, my boy. They're infernally clever."

For all he knew, Pomeroy reflected, this whole situation might be a plant—deliberately staged to arouse his sympathy and make him "come across." He had nothing but this girl's statements to go by, and he told himself he wouldn't trust her around the corner.

Small Incomes Don't Preclude Wedded Bliss

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Because so many young people today are in a quandary about whether to attempt marriage on a minimum income, it might be well to present the following experience of one who took the big chance and finds it, in her own words, "terribly gratifying."

"Remember Joan," she asks us, "who wondered if she should marry her Jim or wait until it wasn't quite such a struggle? You printed my letter, and the barrage of letters that followed cited the experience of many Joans who had married their Jims, and what they thought about postponing the date. They were inspiring, every last one of them, and made me ashamed to think I had ever questioned cheating myself [and Jim] out of a year or two of marital bliss.

"I married him last August, without frills or bells, but the ceremony sounded just as sacred. There was no wedding trip, but what a glorious week fixing up an adorable apartment! And that feeling that at last we were 'home' after years of 'maybes' and indefinite plans.

"To our surprise we found the beginning of establishing a household was not quite so stupendous as we had imagined. We had wisely bought things here and there, and with the things people gave us, we were proud to introduce our friends to the gratifying results. Of course, it hasn't been one path of roses. I've had depressing days with bills looming up unexpectedly and causing an extra frown or two over the budget, but we are proud to consider the progress we have made in spite of everything. And what is more encouraging, Jim has had a small raise already, and we have all the confidence in the world in his future.

"I am not so foolish as to imagine that I will always be a chirpy, happy housewife. I know some days there will be difficulties, perhaps quarrels even, when life will not seem as sweet as it is now. But compared to what I had before, trying to face difficulties alone, what I have now couldn't be bought for millions. There is something terribly gratifying about having one's own home and one's own husband. I'd do it over again on less, even, than we two started on."

Able Players Do Best with Shoddy Tale

"FLAMING GOLD."

Produced by RKO.
Directed by Ralph Ince.
Presented at the State-Lake theater.

THE CAST.

Dan Hanlon.....Bill Boyd
Ben Lear.....Pat O'Brien
Clara Arnold.....Mae Clark
Banning.....Rollo Lloyd
Tess.....Helen Ware

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

This is just another movie. Just another no 'count yarn about two pals and a gal.

The action starts down in the oil fields of—Mexico, I believe it was. Here labor, laugh and battle the boys. One of them goes to Broadway on business. He meets and marries an entertainer and brings her home with him. Plenty trouble! But all's ironed out nicely for the finale.

The able players do the best they can with one of the shoddiest scenarios that's ever found its way to a screen.

See you tomorrow!

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"Shall I tell my child that Santa Claus brings him everything?" is a question that many mothers ask.

It seems to me just too bad to do so.

Whenever that question comes up I always think of the lines from "The Vision of Sir Launfal," the words that the Vision spoke:

Who gives himself with his gift feeds three—Himself, his hungry neighbor, and Me.

To me the giver is part of the gift.

So much love goes into all the Christmas giving to a child—there's such a spontaneous outpouring of affection behind the gifts that it always seems to me that something fine is lost when everything is supposed to come from Santa Claus, no matter how friendly and magical and jovial he may be.

It doesn't destroy children's faith in Santa Claus if they know that some of their gifts come from the people who love them. If you want to and tell them who give them the others, you can let them think that Santa leaves the tree and some of their presents, and tell them who gives them the others. They'll have just as much fun out of Christmas that way, and more richness, I believe. You feel sure of the latter when you hear a child you care for say, "You gave me this teddy bear, mommie, didn't you? I love my teddy bear," or "I love my baby doll you gave me, Auntie—I love her."

I've seen children receive loads of things that as far as they were concerned fell like manna from Santa's sleigh, and others who received fewer things but knew mostly from whom they came—and I know the latter way is best.

The Parents' Litany is again obtainable. To receive it, send your name, address, and postage to Mrs. Bevans.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

He Seems Selfish.

"Dear Miss Blake: When my friend wasn't working we were going good. Now that he's working he goes out with other girls. How could I win him back? LONELY J. E. K."

I think the chap a selfish individual.

Merely Ignore Him.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have been going steady with a boy a long time. Another boy likes me and is interfering with us. I don't like this boy. What should I do? DARK EYES."

Ignore his attentions and keep out of his way as much as possible.

Dr. J. B. Conant Will Be Guest in City Today

Harvard's President Makes Brief Visit.

ghell will entertain on this occasion at a box party for their debutante sister, Miss Virginia Ashcraft, Mrs. Mitchell's and Miss Ashcraft's brother, Edwin M. Ashcraft III., who was a Trinagle club celebrity while he was in college. The William Owen Goodmans are to have another of the large box parties for the Princeton show.

And so are Miss Gwethalyn Jones, Joseph W. Cremin, the LeRoy Kramers, the Cyrus McCormicks, Mr. and Mrs. Howard C. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Shumway, Arthur M. Barnhart, Mr. and Mrs. John Paul Welling, Mr. and Mrs. Hy Belin Voorhees, and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Seipp who will entertain at dinner for their debutante daughter, Pauline, before the show. Mr. and Mrs. Seipp have reserved two boxes.

Miriam Hamilton Tells Engagement.

At a luncheon Saturday for six of her best friends, Miss Miriam Celia Hamilton, the attractive and brilliant daughter of Isaac Miller Hamilton, revealed her engagement to Spencer Ray Keare of Evanston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Keare of Chester, Pa. The announcement came as a surprise to most of Miss Hamilton's friends, and indeed most of them spent yesterday afternoon congratulating young Mr. Keare at their first "public" appearance at the housewarming Mr. and Mrs. Willett N. Gorham [Lucie Jacobs] had in the Gorhams' apartment on Elm street.

Miss Hamilton is a graduate of the Francis W. Parker school, Vassar college and of the University of Chicago law school. She was recently admitted to the bar. Mr. Keare is a graduate of Swarthmore college and is a member of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity. The wedding will take place early next spring.

An interesting announcement that has come to this desk from Athens, Greece, is that of the marriage of Miss Priscilla Capps, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Capps, to Henry Albert Hill. The wedding took place on Dec. 9 in Athens.

Mrs. Hill's father formerly was a professor at the University of Chicago, at Yale and then at Princeton. It was while he was professor of Greek at Princeton that the late President Wilson named him minister to Greece. Following that appointment he did notable work with the Red Cross in Greece and remained over there to become head of the American Archeological school of Athens.

Mr. and Mrs. Hill will be at home after Jan. 1 at Herakleion, Athens.

Mrs. Glore Changes Date for Party.

Now that the Onwentsia has decided to hold its New Year's eve celebration on Sunday, the 31st, instead of on Saturday, the 30th, as first was thought of, Mrs. Charles F. Glore is transferring the party she is giving for her debutante cousin, Miss Peggy Hixon, from her home to the club.

The 50 young people whom Mrs. Glore has invited will have cocktails at the Glores, and then go over to the club for the late dinner and dancing. Frances, the subdeb daughter of the Glores, who will be at home from Farmington next Thursday, will not be able to enjoy her cousin's party, for a young girl not yet "out" cannot be included in a debutante party, but she is going to be so busy during the holidays that she won't have time to mind not being present at her cousin Peggy's party.

Society Folk Make Holiday Journeys.

Mrs. Albert G. Simms, the former Ruth Hanna McCormick, was in town over the week-end en route from her home in Albuquerque, N. M., to Virginia, where she will spend the holidays with her daughter, Katrina. Miss McCormick, it will be remembered, is the mistress of a country place at Middleburg.

John B. Ryerson and Miss Sophie Borie, the son and sister of Mrs. Forsythe Sherfesee, sailed for Europe Saturday to spend the holidays with Mrs. Sherfesee at the home she has built at Bontoc, St. Jean Cap Ferrat. Mrs. Sherfesee still keeps her handsome home in Springfield, N. Y., and hopes to return to it next summer to be with her devoted son, Jack.

Mrs. Alfred McCormack of New York is in Chicago to spend the holidays with her father, Walter B. Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Keith and their son, Frederick Jr., are leaving in two or three days to spend a month with Mr. Keith's parents, the Edson Keiths, in Sarasota.

Miss Barbara Bullard wound up a long vacation in the east by spending a week at Wells college with her sister, Miss Caroline Bullard. Both of them have arrived in Chicago to be here for the Christmas holidays. Their cousin, Miss Marie Towne of San Francisco, came on Saturday for the holidays, so the Sellar Bullard household in Highland Park will be a very gay one for the next two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Poole have taken an apartment at the Pearson hotel for the winter. Their son, Frederick Jr., is with them, and their other son, Paul, is expected at home from Williams Thursday. Mrs. Poole is at present in the east visiting her mother, Mrs. Charles F. Adams.

Mrs. Albert H. Wetten has gone east to Lake Placid for the Christmas holidays. Mr. Wetten is joining her in a few days, and so is their daughter, Miss Eleanor Wetten, who will spend her college vacation with them.

Miss Georgia Pettibone and Miss Caroline Montgomery have returned from the Mary C. Wheeler school in Providence, R. I., for the Christmas holidays. Miss Pettibone, daughter of the Holman D. Pettibones of Winnetka, took a prominent part in the Christmas dramatics at the school, and Miss Montgomery, daughter of the Frederick D. Montgomerys, danced in the Christmas pantomime.

Sunbeam League Will Give Parties.

The hard working members of the board of the Sunbeam league are reserving Wednesday and Thursday to devote to their favorite philanthropy. On Wednesday noon they are to have their general meeting and luncheon at the Stevens hotel with Mrs. Harry Felz and Mrs. Lester Anderson as hostesses.

On this occasion all of the guests will bring candies and toys for the Christmas parties they are to give the children in the various kindergartens they support. Between 10 and 12 on Thursday morning the first of these parties will be given at the Convalescent Home for Women and Children at 2678 Washington boulevard. Mrs. Oscar R. Torrison and Mrs. O. B. Johnson are the chairmen.

Little Girls Will Like Having Dolls Wear Dresses Styled After Their Own CHILD'S DRESS.

Make a dress like this for your small daughter, and for her dolly, too. A French blue and white cotton broadcloth, with a white detachable collar will be pretty. The up-to-date sleeves have a slight puffing about the shoulders, and the tie sash does not cross outside the dress on the front, but comes out at the side seams and ties in the back.

The pattern, No. 3151, comes in sizes 2, 4, and 6 years. The dress for dolly will fit a 22 inch doll.

Order Blank for Clotilde Pattern

Current Siren Line Fashions Put Hefty Hips on Black List

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"Styles Now Attract Attention to the Hips" is the headline challenging us to action again.

No rest for the wicked hip, says you! Can't even sit out a couple of dance evening months and go hefty without some one challenging your peace of mind—and hip.

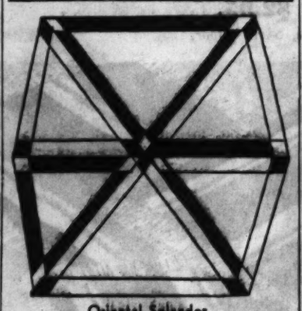
Don't know whether it's the ribbon sashes or the call of the old siren line again—but girls with hips just can't have them and that's all there is about it.

For you women who'd like your exercises not such a terrific strain on your muscles we suggest that you buy yourselves one of the small pieces of mechanism that you can attach to bed foot and serves as ballast for your up and down leg raisings. They minimize the pull on waist and abdomen muscles and are very effective. There are a number of these products on the market, so we're not favoring any invention.

We think they're excellent for women who tire easily and who are out of exercise form. They substitute in a way for the rowing machine, although we see no reason for the substitution in case you have one because the rowing machines are fine. These other things have handlebars with a resisting rubber rod and sockets into which you slip your toes. All you do from there is to exercise.

But for the good old hip reducer, we know no two exercises, done one hundred times morning and night, that will trim you down in quicker time than the bicycle roll and the hip roll done with head and shoulders on floor while you bring the leg over to try to touch the hand extended full shoulder width.

Many Paths Quilt Changes Name; Oriental in Tone



Oriental Splendor.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Strangely enough this pattern, which originated in Connecticut in the earliest days of its history and which was then called "Many Paths," is now called "Oriental Splendor." Stranger still, it is more oriental than early American in feeling. It is an all over pattern, best executed in two colors.

For a quilt pattern in this design send 5 cents in coin or stamps to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Chicago Tribune Public Service office, One South Dearborn.

"Famous Yuletide Cakes and Cookies," a booklet containing 21 recipes for foreign Christmas cakes and cookies, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street, for 3 cents. By mail, 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

"and visions of sugarplums danced in their heads . . ."

Don't those "Night Before Christmas" lines make you tingle with a sort of "I want to ring door bells" feeling? They do me. And if we can ever get a few stolen moments to do it let's see to it that we've a large-some batch of sugarplums—or at least fudge and bonbons—ready by Christmas morning to give us a good reason for going about ringing door bells!

We could talk and talk about the old game of fudge and fondant—but then, why? You all have excellent recipes for these old faithfuls, or, if you haven't, for 5 cents by mail or 3 cents at The Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn, you can pick them up, along with a crowd of other treats, in our latest booklet out—"Christmas Candies that Are Fun to Make."

So today I'm going to be the first (here's hoping) to introduce you to some of the Christmas-time candy treats that add change to the old patterns—and set all the neighbors running in after the recipes!

Fruit candies are perhaps the most fun of all. Take as a starter:

ORANGE FONDANT.
3 cups sugar
½ cup evaporated milk
2-3 cup orange juice
¼ cup butter

Cook all the ingredients together till they form a soft ball when a little is tried in cold water (236 degrees F.). Pour the mixture out onto a buttered platter and let it cool until it retains a dent made by your finger. Then stir it with a large spoon until it's smooth and creamy. Now you can proceed to do all sorts of interesting things with it. First try:

ORANGE CREAMS—Roll the fondant into small balls and top each with a strip of candied orange peel or a walnut half. Or knead shredded cocoanut or chocolate sprinkle into the fondant and form it in balls.

ORANGE CREAM DATES—Stone dates and stuff them with balls of orange fondant.

CHOCOLATE ORANGE CREAMS—Roll the orange fondant into balls about bits of candied orange peel. Then coat them with melted dipping chocolate.

Then here's a funny fudge that uses both vinegar and peanut butter! It happens to be one of the best things I've eaten this year.

PEANUT BUTTER FUDGE.
2 cups sugar
½ cup milk
2 tablespoons corn sirup
1 teaspoon vinegar
¼ cup peanut butter

Stir together the sugar, milk, sirup, and vinegar. Cook to the soft ball stage (236 degrees F.), then cool until lukewarm. At this point add the peanut butter and beat until the fudge is creamy. If the peanut butter is stiff, soften it slightly in the oven before using. Now pour the candy into a buttered pan and when almost firm cut in squares.

And to end up the procession of some Christmas candies which ought to become better friends have you ever met this children's favorite?

HAYSTACKS.
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup brown sugar
¼ cup water
16 coarsely crumbled graham crackers
¾ cup shredded cocoanut
½ teaspoon vanilla

Melt the butter, then add the sugar and water. Boil these for five minutes and pour the whole mixture over the mixed-up crackers and cocoanut. Stir in the vanilla and shape into eight to ten cones or "haystacks."

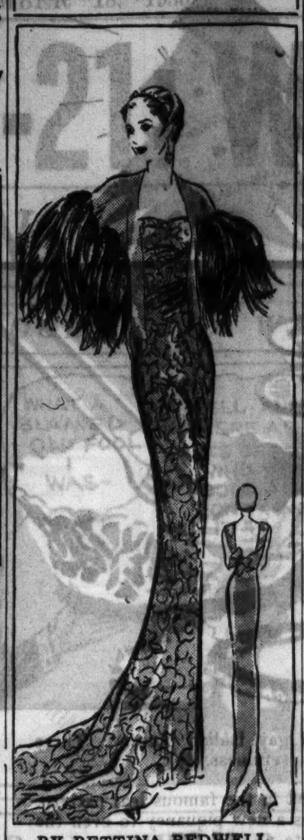
Hollywood Star Approves Paris' Mermaid Gowns



BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—When Marion Davies was in Paris she ordered a lot of Paris clothes, among which was the mermaid line evening dress shown herewith. Molyneux made it for her.

Gorgeous silver, black and orchid lamé brocade is the material of which this model is made, and it has the exciting mermaid silhouette, long, slinky, and slithering into a double-pointed fish trail. The décolleté is square in front and the wide shoulder straps help to make it less daring. At the back of the bodice are bands of the lamé that tie in two bows at the left side.

This silhouette is one that takes a lot of wearing, but, in more or less modified versions, it is the dress line that most of the Paris couturiers show in their midseason collections. They show it for afternoon and evening principally.

To wear with her frock, Marion Davies ordered the pictured cape, which is made of silver cloth and has a wide border of black monkey fur, arranged in closely set tufts. The cape has silver ties in front.

Expert Chorus Is Feature of 'The Messiah'

Swedish Club Gives Annual Christmas Concert.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

One of the best things about the Swedish Choral club's annual performance of "The Messiah" is the singing of the club members themselves. The performance for the current year took place at Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon, and once again there is a desire to congratulate the chorus.

These 200 choristers sing with a most exhilarating tone, one that is sturdy and healthy and musical at the same time. They have power enough to fling out all the exultance that is in Handel's music, but they by no means depend wholly on power. They are a trained body. They know their music in its melody and its shadings as well. In fact, they know it so well that they make its text fairly intelligible, and this is an achievement for any large chorus.

Of the quartet of soloists, competent at all times and sometimes brilliant, Arthur Kraft, tenor, is a Chicagoan; Edna Swanson Ver Haar, contralto, used to be well known here and returned for this performance, and Constancia Weborg Weisgerber, soprano, and William Russell, bass, were newcomers, as able and as fully alive to their musical duties as their better known companions.

Harry T. Carlson continues as conductor. It is impossible in these days to ask for any new interpretations of "The Messiah." All one can demand, all one ought to demand, is an honest performance, with fidelity to the tempo and spirit of one of the great masterpieces of sacred music. Mr. Carlson has expert knowledge of these points, and under his direction his singers know them as well.

A capacity audience for Orchestra hall—2,582—and some several million others outside the hall heard Frederick Stock and the Chicago Symphony orchestra in the second popular concert of the season on Saturday night. The program was broadcast by station W-G-N, and reports from outside the hall as well as the applause inside indicate that it was one of the high musical points of the year so far.

Mr. Stock was entirely correct in introducing the program as a collection of some of the golden melodies of music. Goldmark's "The Country Wedding" was the principal work in point of dimensions, though there is some question whether as an example of playing and interpretation it was any better than Rossini's "Semiramide" Overture, or the pieces from Bizet's "L'Arlesienne" Suite, or several of the shorter numbers. From beginning to end Mr. Stock and the orchestra were at the top of their form.

Grace Moore has been forced to cancel her appearances with the Chicago Grand Opera company. Her announced appearance as Mimi in "La Boheme," originally billed for Saturday afternoon, Dec. 30, will be filled by Edith Mason. Miss Mason arrived yesterday.

Mary Pickford Will Return to New York Stage

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

Mary Pickford will return to the legitimate stage this winter, hoping to find in its excitements consolation for the collapse of her marriage with Douglas Fairbanks. She will appear in a play under the management of Max Gordon, a New York impresario who has had notable success during the last three years, according to an announcement which the latter issued yesterday.

Mr. Gordon states that the play is now being written by an author whom he identifies as "one of America's leading playwrights." He plans for a premiere about the middle of February.

Miss Pickford's last theatrical activity dates back to 1913, when she was the star of "The Good Little Devil," under the auspices of David Belasco.

Katharine Hepburn, who has become a cinema personality of note during the last year, also figures in the day's news of the legitimate stage. This vivid young actress, whose latest picture, "Little Women," is now being exhibited, will give her first performance as a dramatic star in Washington, D. C., tonight. Her vehicle is a play of English authorship called "The Lake." Her last stage appearance was in "The Warrior's Husband," which had a brief run on Broadway three years ago.

Walter Huston, also of considerable renown in "pictures," is also due to return to the stage this season. He will have the title rôle in "Dodsworth," Sidney Howard's dramatization of Sinclair Lewis' novel of that title. Fay Bainter will be associated with him as co-star. Max Gordon is the impresario of this production, which is scheduled to go into rehearsal Jan. 1.

Messrs. Olsen and Johnson, who were the chief wags of the Chicago stage during the World's Fair period, have brought a shortened version of their musical comedy, "Take a Chance," to the Palace theater. This diverting frolic is now much the same as when it had its long run at the Grand Opera House last summer, although there have been changes of cast. However, Vera Marshe and Betty Allen are still the radiant blonde heroines.

"The World and His Wife," a drama by José Echegaray, often called "the Ibsen of Spain," will be given in the Chicago Woman's club theater tonight by the Players' Guild as their second production of the season. It will be repeated tomorrow and Wednesday nights.

There Is One Way TO KNOW!
Just figure it out yourself when considering applesauce.
Applesauce is one of the best sauces for any meal. Do you know the right kind of apples to make perfect applesauce? Did you ever think about the time you spend in the kitchen—peeling, coring and standing over a hot stove?
Why not try a uniform grade—a sauce made by those who know just the right kind of apples to use and the exact time to cook them.
CANNED APPLESAUCE
is a blend of apples of distinctly different flavors
Testing is believing—so just order a can of applesauce from your grocer today. You will like it.
And by the way, when you have a supply of stale bread in your home, why not try a good old fashioned Brown Betty served with delicious hard sauce.

RECIPE FOR BROWN BETTY
4 cups soft bread crumbs
½ cup melted butter
1½ cups Canned Applesauce
½ tsp. grated lemon rind
½ tsp. ground cinnamon
Juice of 1 lemon
Yield—6 to 8 Servings

Put bread crumbs moistened with butter in baking dish, in alternate layers with Canned Applesauce, having top layer of crumbs. Sprinkle each layer with lemon juice, rind and cinnamon. Cover and bake in moderate oven (350°F.) about one-half hour.
Uncover the last 15 minutes to brown. May be served with Hard Sauce.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Our sterling Blackhawks, especially Rookie Bill Kendall, last night persisted in their laudable thought that it would be improper for them to lose on Chicago Stadium ice. In furtherance of this noble principle they gave the splendid Montreal Canadiens a fine 4 to 1 tanning before 14,000 delighted customers.

Three of the goals were made by the aforesaid Kendall who never before scored either point or assist in a major league hockey game.

After Gottselig had scored a solo in 15:15 of the first period Kendall opened his production campaign, making his first in 19:05 of the first period on assists from Tommy Cook and Johnny Sheppard. He scored again in 6:25 of the second period on assists by the same two gents. His other one was in 7:40 of the final period on an assist by Cook.

Comes from Wichita.

Kendall was purchased by the Hawks from the Wichita, Kas., team and since the outset of the season has been taking lessons in building up on steaks, having for three years existed on soup in his minor league connections.

The Chicagoans moved up within a point of the lead of the United States division of the league and gained a point on the third place Boston Bruins whom they now lead by two points.

There was plenty of fast, exciting hockey in the first 15 minutes of the first period, with the Hawks enjoying some advantage but nothing to put in the ledger.

A few seconds after the passing of the fifteenth minute Gottselig picked up the puck deep in his own defense zone. He broke for the left boards, crossing hiw own and the Canadien blue line going a mile a minute, and by the time he reached the curve he was traveling plenty.

Still clinging to the boards as he came into the end zone, Johnny started some foxy puck handling. With short little pokes he nursed the disc from behind the cage, then curved it with beautiful finesse back of Goalie Chabot's right foot.

No Penalty in First Period.

To many one goal seemed enough for the first period, but the Cook, Sheppard, Kendall line didn't think so. In 19:05 goal No. 2 was registered. Cook carried the puck over the blue line on left ice, lost it momentarily, then recovered with a one hand, low sweeping motion. In this manner he swooped it to Sheppard to his right and near the cage. Sheppard slid it over to Kendall, who batted in his first major league tally.

Though there was no letup in the aggressiveness in the first period, not a penalty was called.

Kendall rather liked the idea of scoring big league goals, so he made another one in 6:25 of the second period. Cook and Sheppard again assisting. The Hawks had the ball swinging around merrily in the Canadien defense zone and eventually it was shoved to Kendall at a point about four feet in front of the cage. As Cabot went into his dance Kendall let fly and Chabot didn't even get a piece of the whizzing missile.

In 7:10 of the second period the Frenchmen got out of the zero ward. A mêlé precipitated by Joliat, Morenz and Gagnon drew Gardiner out of the nets, whereupon Joliat whanged home the counter.

Again No Penalty.

The second period also passed without any penalties, though the period was even more aggresive than the first.

The Hawks still were on the offensive in the third period even though they led, 3 to 1, at the outset of the session.

Kendall's third goal was the reward for this refusal of the Hawks to stand back on their heels. Cook carried the puck into the Canadien defense zone, passed to Kendall in front of the cage a bit to Chabot's left. Bill braced and beat Chabot without the French goalie having much of an idea where he was shooting.

CHAPTER 1 IN YEAR'S BIG FOOTBALL THRILLER

Carl Brumbaugh, Bears' quarter back, is stopped by the New York line in the first quarter. No. 16 (at left) is George Musso, Chicago tackle. Line plays as a rule were ineffective, but perfect passes and kicks by both teams kept the fans near delirium for four quarters.
[TRIBUNE Photos.]

Jack Manders of the Bears kicks the first of his three field goals in yesterday's battle with the New York Giants at Wrigley field for world's professional football championship. The ball may be seen in the air. Manders made field goals in the first, second, and third quarters and also booted one point after touchdown, giving him 10 of the points scored by Chicago in the 23 to 21 victory over the New Yorkers.

HERE'S DETAIL ON HOW BEARS, GIANTS SCORED

Seesaw Thrills Crowd at Championship Game.

The play-by-play story of the scoring in the Bears-Giants championship game yesterday at Wrigley field follows:

FIRST PERIOD — Molesworth's quick kick forced Giants back into their own territory. On third down, Molesworth returned Strong's kick 8 yards to Giants' 42 yard line. Nagurski faked a pass and ran to Giants' 28 yard line. Ronzani made first down on his second play on Giants' 15 yard strip. Three thrusts by Molesworth netted 8 yards and on fourth down Manders replaced Nagurski and kicked field goal with Brumbaugh holding on the Giants' 16 yard line. Score: Bears, 3; Giants, 0.

Manders Kicks 40 Yards.

SECOND PERIOD—Grange returned Kink Richard's punt to the Giants' 46 yard line. Ronzani swept around the Giants' left end for 2 yards. Ronzani caught a pass and was tackled on the Giants' 29 yard strip. Ronzani hit right tackle for 2 yards. Two forward passes failed and the Bears lost 5 yards. Manders place kicked with Brumbaugh holding the ball on New York's 40 yard line. Score: Bears, 6; Giants, 0.

The Giants returned Manders' kickoff to their 38 yard line. A pass failed. The Bears were penalized 5 yards for offside. Richards hit inside Lyman and ran to the Bears' 29 yard line. Newman forward passed to Badgro down center for touchdown. Strong placekicked the point. Score: Giants, 7; Bears, 6.

Nagurski Smashes Line.

THIRD PERIOD—Richards kicked out of bounds on Bears' 37 yard line. Nagurski smashed over Grant for 14 yards. A pass failed. Ronzani went through Grant for 3 yards and Nagurski cut back over center to the Giants' 39 yard line. Corbett passed to Brumbaugh, who was downed on the New York 12 yard line.

Corbett and Nagurski, in three plays, gained 2 yards. Manders place kicked with Brumbaugh holding the ball on the Giants' 13 yard line. Score: Bears, 9; Giants, 7.

Newman returned Manders' kickoff to his own 27 yard strip. Newman passed to Burnett for 23 yards. Newman passed again to Burnett for 13 yards. A pass failed. After both teams were offside Newman passed to Richards, who was tackled on the Bears' 21 yard mark. Newman passed to Badgro on the Bears' 9 yard line. The Giants were penalized 5 yards for back field in motion. Newman passed to Krause, who was run out of bounds on the 1 yard line. Richards failed to gain at Lyman. Krause scored over center and Strong place kicked the point. Score: Giants, 14; Bears, 9.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Chicago Bears are the football champions of the world.

They won that honor yesterday afternoon at Wrigley field by whipping their New York rivals, the Giants, 23 to 21 before 21,000 spectators, the largest crowd to see a professional game in Chicago since that Thanksgiving day eight years ago when Red Grange, now captain of the world's champions, made his debut on the same gridiron.

Marshal your adjectives. Bring out all the superlatives and shift them as you would juggle a jig-saw puzzle. All will fit in a description of the championship battle.

Newman Passes, Manders Kicks.

Football's greatest offensive teams loosed a series of thrills which warmed the thousands in the chill concrete grandstands and those who packed the bleachers to capacity. These perfect gridiron machines—200 pound lines behind which marched the speediest of backs—were almost unstoppable. Possession of the ball was signal for a scoring drive.

Three times the Giants crossed the Bears' goal line, wheeled down the field by the superhuman throws of Harry Newman. These major scores overbalanced the two touchdown drives of the Bears, but the Giants could not match the field goals from the toe of the automatic Jack Manders, the ace of the Bears' attack. Four times Manders aimed for the uprights, and three of his tries sailed over the bar. These nine points were the margin from which was manufactured a championship.

Heroes? They All Qualify!

Perhaps Jack Manders should be number one hero in this battle of super-players. Certainly his contribution of three field goals would receive a favorable vote. Or perhaps Harry Newman of the Giants, who completed 13 forward passes in 19 attempts for a total gain of 201 yards; who caught every punt he could get under, should be the hero.

It has become custom that a football game should have a Frank Merriwell. But in this game, after you've thought of Ken Strong and Kink Richards of the Giants; after you have considered the battering Bronko Nagurski, that field general; Carl Brumbaugh, the agile Keith Molesworth, the dependable Red Grange of the Bears, you realize that THIS football game belonged to the teams. No better example of team work and uniform direction can be found in the history of the sport.

Do Everything Well.

Newman's phenomenal passes depended on speedy receivers and the accurate blocking of his compatriot defenders. Manders' field goals required coöperation of passer, holder, and the line. And in all mechanics of the game, blocking and tackling, the players left slight chance of criticism.

Six times the lead changed. And on each occasions that New York or Chicago went to the fore the tension increased. Spectacular plays featured the final desperate rallies, in which these post graduate performers brought out from the repertoire tricks that seldom, if ever, have been tried on the gridiron.

Last Minute Rally Again!

First, it seemed that Manders might win the game solely by kicking. That possibility soon was discarded in the last series of goal line sprints. But as climax piled on climax the Bears, whose fourth period rallies now have become famous, completed a forward-lateral pass with only three minutes of the game remaining and tacked the final victory statistics securely to the green scoreboard in center field.

The Giants led, 21 to 16, as the weary gladiators girded for the final minutes of the fray. Could the Bears score once more? And if they did, could they hold that lead? These were the thoughts of the thousands who had cheered first one and then the other of the teams.

Giants' Linemen Rise Up.

The Bears took the ball on Strong's kickoff. Twice they made first down, advanced to midfield, and then, sud-

IRVIN BAILEY IN CRITICAL STATE; NEW OPERATION

Boston, Mass., Dec. 17.—(AP)—A second emergency operation was performed on Irvin [Ace] Bailey, Toronto Maple Leafs hockey player, shortly after noon today. Later doctors at the City hospital said his condition was poor.

Bailey suffered a fractured skull last Tuesday night when he was knocked to the ice by Eddie Shore of the Boston Bruins during a game at the Boston Garden. X-ray pictures showed that his skull was fractured over the right eye and an emergency operation was performed.

After the operation doctors said "the next 36 hours will tell the story." Bailey's fine physical condition helped him and he showed some improvement until last night. Dr. Donald Munro, Boston brain specialist, decided to operate again and this was done at noon today. The operation took two hours.

An injury on the left side of Bailey's head was more severe than doctors at first believed. Shortly after 2 o'clock Mrs. Mabel Bailey, the player's wife, and Connie Smythe, manager of the Toronto team, who have been in Boston awaiting a turn in the patient's condition, were summoned to the hospital to confer with Dr. Munro.

Bailey was no worse after the second operation, Dr. Munro said late today in a statement explaining the case, but "it will be touch and go for the next three or four days," the specialist added.

Natalie Defeats Rudolph in Billiard Tourney, 125 to 102

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Latin temperament of Pasquale Natalie, Chicago's only representative in the world's pocket billiards tournament at the 131 South Wabash avenue Recreation room, has been held in admirable restraint throughout the greater part of the cue marathon. Last night, however, it flared in all its intensity during his match with Erwin Rudolph of Cleveland, and with reason. Before he had cooled off he had handed Rudolph his second defeat of the show by a score of 125 to 102 in the bitterest 41 innings of the tourney.

Pasquale's personality had been under excellent control until the 36th inning of his argument with Rudolph last night. Then an unkind patron blinked a match in Natalie's line of vision, upsetting the Chicagoan and causing him not only to scratch after a run of eight, but to bounce the cue ball off the head rail with a great show of savagery. Referee Joe Ferguson of New York was forced to advise him to take it easy.

Natalie then settled down and after allowing Rudolph, who obviously was off his game, to take a lead of 106 to 92 in the 37th inning, came back with the high run of the game, a 29, which was terminated by a scratch in the 38th. The game was the longest of the tournament, Pasquale having held the previous record of 40 innings with young Willie Mosconi.

Young Jimmy Caras, who finished last year's tournament, his first, as runner-up, took advantage of Rudolph's defeat by whipping Frank Taberski, 125 to 39, in 26 innings of a match that went beyond midnight. Caras' triumph put him in a tie with Rudolph for second place. The youthful Wilmington, Del., Greek, who once attended Bowen High school in Chicago, was in front all the way.

The tournament schedule of two afternoon games will be reduced to one at 3 o'clock today, when Ralph Greenleaf of New York, the defending champion, who has lost six games, will be matched against Mosconi. The meet will end Thursday night.

Hovering in the background all through the Natalie-Rudolph match last night was the stout Andrew Ponzi of Philadelphia who was moved into the tournament leadership by Rudolph's defeat, with six victories and one loss, the latter administered by old Frank Taberski of Schenectady, N. Y. Mr. Ponzi made no bones about being highly pleased by Natalie's victory. For it left Rudolph with a mark of five victories and two defeats. Score by innings:

The American league official batting averages released this morning have a distinct, in fact almost monotonous, Foxx tone, despite the fact that the Philadelphia Athletics' great right handed slugger finished the 1933 season with the lowest mark any league champion has had since 1908.

Foxx topped the American league regulars with .356. Every batting champ since Ty Cobb finished with .324 in 1908 has had a higher rating, and Jimmy's 1933 figure is the fourth lowest to win the championship in the history of the American league.

Foxx did so many other things, however, that his .356 average brought forth no apologies from his admirers. He led both leagues in homers, with 48, for instance. On April 24 and again on July 2 he broke loose on spectacular extra base forays. On April 24 he knocked three triples and a homer and in the second game on July 2 made a double, a triple and two home runs.

Heinie Manush, a former batting champion, was second among the American league's regulars, with .336. Heinie had the longest batting streak of the year, hitting in 33 straight games, and led the league in triples with 17. Gehrig was third with .334 and Al Simmons was fourth with .331.

Simmons' record as compared to that of Foxx is:

Simmons	605	85	200	291	14	119	.331

Sox players got into the superlatives in only one batting department. Mule Haas, an old time sacrificer, made 30 sacrifices to lead the league in 1933.

Sons of Malta Beat Sparta Leaders, 1-0

The Detroit Sons of Malta, undefeated Michigan soccer champions, defeated the Sparta Leaders, 1 to 0, yesterday in an intercity game at Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue. The first period was scoreless, though it was marked by hard play on both sides.

The lone goal was scored by John Marshall after ten minutes of the second period, when he beat Goalie Baer of Sparta close in. Brown and Williamson of Detroit, with brilliant defensive work, held off several scoring threats by the Spartans during the remainder of the game.

Weiboldt Wonderboldts won an easy 8 to 1 victory over the Hungarian-Americans at De Paul stadium. A. Waldron scored four goals in the first period. Monroe got three and Lilly one. Woodward netted the only marker for the Hungarians.

124th Field Artillery armory at 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue will be the scene of an indoor soccer game Wednesday between the Wonderboldts and the Sparta Leaders.

ROTHIER BATTLES PHAGAN TONIGHT IN EIGHT ROUNDS

Bout Heads Program at Marigold Gardens.

The Card

Johnny Phagan vs. Henry Rothier [8].
Johnny Fitzpatrick vs. Joey Bozak [5].
Bob Stora vs. Charley Young [4].
Toye McLemore vs. Johnny Panek [4.]
Jimmy Cummings vs. Steve Roberts [4].

Henry Rothier, Chicago welterweight, receives an opportunity tonight at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street, to prove his long standing boast that he can beat Johnny Phagan. He will have eight rounds to accomplish this.

Rothier, who like Phagan, is a former Golden Gloves welterweight champion, is expected to receive his hardest test against Phagan. Even some of Rothier's staunchest admirers do not believe that he will beat Johnny. Needless to say this opinion is not shared by Rothier. He points to his undefeated record of 13 professional encounters as the medium for his belief that Phagan will lose tonight.

Phagan turned pro shortly after he won the 1932 International Golden Gloves title at Soldiers' field July 26. He has had 22 matches. He won 14 and lost five. The others ended in draws.

Rothier scored two of his most important victories last month. He won from Jarrell at the Coliseum Nov. 20 and then beat Jackie Purvis at Marigold Nov. 27.

Joey Bozak and Johnny Fitzpatrick, featherweights, meet in a five round semi-final. Three encounters at four rounds and a wrestling bout will complete the program.

Leo Rodak, south side featherweight clashes with Art Mitchell in six rounds tonight at White City, 63d street and South Park. Gene Higgins, 145 pound boxer, is paired with Pete Verri at five rounds. Four round contests bring together George Haberski and Sam Crane, Al Schiarato and Eddie Smith, and Eddie Chinski and Art Donovan. A wrestling exhibition also is carded.

Laddie Tonelli, welterweight, faces Johnny Terry of the Cumberland mountains of Kentucky, for the second time in a six round match on the Champion Freddy Miller-Sammy Levine card at Arcadia Gardens Wednesday. A year ago Tonelli won a four round decision over Terry. Since his first appearance in Chicago Terry has had 28 matches, winning 15, losing 5, and boxing eight draws. Included among his victims are Eddie Chinski, Walter Statkus, and Danny Neenan.

Paul Stangar, manager of Henry Rothier, has been requested to attend a hearing today at the Illinois athletic commission at the instance of Rothier, who charges that Stangar has violated their contract.

The 1933 C. Y. O. boxing champions and runnersup are to begin drills Wednesday for their intersectional matches with a cobined San Francisco-Los Angeles team at San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 12.

Seven amateur bouts will be offered tonight at Wonderland hall, 2940 Milwaukee avenue. Matchmaker Chuck Logan has arranged the following bouts:

Carl Schissler vs. Harry Swanson [5], 170
Marty Cherkowski vs. John Plovanitch [5], 150.
Ernie Newgard vs. Bert Richter [3].

Twenty-four boxers representing 14 of the city's outlying Catholic parishes will appear on a card of 12 bouts at St. Michael's gymnasium, 1628 Hudson avenue, tonight. It is the first program of its kind to be conducted by the athletic department of St. Michael Central High school. The card:

107 pounds, Hill [Queen of Angels] vs. McDonald [St. Sebastian]; 110 pounds, Krinz [St. Michael] vs. McManus [St. Clement]; 116 pounds, Butler [St. Alphonsus] vs. Kampf [St. Michael]; 118 pounds, Winslow [Immaculate Conception] vs. Russell [St. Gertrude]; 118 pounds, De Mirza [St. Vincent] vs. Karl [St. Clement]; 120 pounds, Trottman [St. Mathias] vs. Liebrecht [St. Aloysius]; 126 pounds, Heits [Trinity] vs. Connelly [Immaculate Conception]; 130 pounds, Corcoran [Immaculate Conception] vs. Tileston [St. Andrew]; 130 pounds, Cooney [Maternity] vs. Cech [St. Michael]; 135 pounds, Schmitz [St. Gregory] vs. Vosskuhler [Our Lady of Mercy]; 147 pounds, O'Connor [St. Michael vs. Klein [St. Michael]; 160 pounds, Kenny [St. Michael] vs. O'Brien [Immaculate Conception].

Gordon Whitney Wins in Glen View Club Trapshoot

Gordon Whitney, competing in his first shoot of the year at Glen View club traps yesterday, hit 99 clay birds out of 100 to win the Sargent trophy. Whitney's performance was one better than that of H. M. Harper, second with 98. In achieving this high mark Whitney did not miss until his 98th bird. Three shooters were tied for third place at 97. They were L. S. Gordon, Glen Smith, J. L. Stall. The protection shoot was captured by L. A. Crowell and M. S. Swaney, who collected 96.

Englewood Is Upset, 35-27, by Auburn Pk.

Led by McAuliffe with fourteen points, Auburn Park handed Englewood its first defeat of the season, 35 to 27, to feature yesterday's south division games in the Knights of Columbus basketball league at White City. The Englewood upset enabled Perez to move into first place, with its third straight victory. Auburn Park led at the half, 14 to 13, and managed to maintain its advantage to the finish. Lineups:

WEST DIVISION.

St. Cyr and Damen, finalists for the league championship last season, continued to set the pace in the West division when each took advantage of an early lead to win a thrilling victory. St. Cyr, in front 11 to 1 at the half, fought off a setters rally to win, 26 to 19, Bob Gruenig putting the game on ice with four free throws. Damen defeated Hennepin-Shield, 27 to 25, after holding an 11 point lead in the middle of the second half. Budrick's six baskets from all angles proved the deciding factor. Hughes also kept its slate clean, winning, 36 to 26, from Lafayette. Lineups:

Diegel Wins in California Golf Tourney

Long Beach, Cal., Dec. 17.—(AP)—Leo Diegel, professional from the Philmont Country club, Philmont, Pa., won the California open golf championship here today, shooting a 282 for 72 holes, six strokes under par.

Playing in the same form that won him his last national professional title, in 1929, Diegel finished in the dusk with a sparkling 69 to lead the field by four str

BEARS CONQUER GIANTS, 23-21 TO WIN WORLD TITLE

Manders Kicks Three Field Goals in Thriller.

denly the magic of their attack vanished before the fury of the aroused Giants. Burly linemen poured through to rush Molesworth and George Corbett, to thrust them far back on attempted forward passes and finally to force a punt which relinquished possession of the ball.

Three plays later Strong returned that kick and the Bears started a second drive. But again the Giants turned them back when Max Krause intercepted Gene Ronzani's forward pass—the only Giant interception of the game—and New York had the ball on its 36 yard line.

Bears Rush Kicks—Get Break.

Less than five minutes now remained to play. The Giants chose to punt and Strong dropped back. As he took Mel Hein's pass from center a white shirted wave of Bears drove through to unsteady his aim and the ball shot almost straight up. Chicago took the ball on the Giants' 47 yard line.

The continuous roar of the crowd rose to a higher, shriller pitch which drowned the sound of the thumping of the band. Here was final opportunity.

A pass fell incomplete. Another by Molesworth settled in the arms of Brumbaugh for a 9 yard gain. Big Nagurski crushed the line for a first down on New York's 33 yard strip. The Giants took time out as they marshaled their forces for a last stand.

Now—The Victory Play!

Quarter Back Brumbaugh unleashed for the first time the play which repeatedly this season has turned impending defeat into triumph. Nagurski started as if to hit the line, stopped and leaped into the air. Then he threw to Bill Hewitt as he raced through the New York defense behind the center of the line. Two defenders rushed to tackle Hewitt, but he relayed the ball laterally to Bill Karr, who swept down the east side of the field, swerved to avoid the safety man as this last opponent went down under a perfect block, and then he continued to the goal for the winning point.

Manders long since had gone to the side lines, but Brumbaugh stepped up to kick over the final point by placement. The Bears had won, 23 to 21.

Now return to the beginning of this battle of offenses, a fight which piled up nearly 600 yards' gain from scrimmage, which accomplished 26 first downs, and offered complete proof that in professional football, at least, the defense has not shackled the skill of the attacking eleven.

Giants Lead, 7-6, at Half.

It was Manders who gave the Bears a first quarter 3 to 0 lead and who added his second goal with a great kick from the 40 yard line early in the next period to increase that to 6 to 0. Until this time the two teams, welded into units which played as individuals, had parried each other's thrusts cautiously as two heavyweights in the opening round of a long distance test.

Then Newman primed his arm and pitched a series of strikes. Three plays and the Giants had covered 62 yards, with Morris Badgro scampering over the last line for a touchdown. Ken Strong kicked the point and the Giants held the whip hand, 7 to 6. This was the score at the end of the first half.

Manders Scores Again.

In the early minutes of the third period Manders again swung his foot against the ball as Brumbaugh pointed it on the Giants' 18 yard line, and the Bears went back in front, 9 to 7, to the accompaniment of a wave of cheers.

Newman, however, came back with an ace to take the next trick. Without losing possession of the ball, the Giants passed their way in seven plays to the Bears' one yard line, from which point Krause battered center for a touchdown. Strong's extra point made the score: Giants, 14; Bears, 9.

Pass Play Gains 67 Yards.

Those Bears could not be denied. All they asked was possession of the ball. Without delay, after George Corbett had brought Strong's kickoff back to the Bears' 23 yard line, the champions went the distance in six plays. Brumbaugh contributed 67 yards, taking a pass from Corbett and running to the Giants' 8 yard line before he was downed. On third down, Karr stepped into the end zone to grab Nagurski's short forward, on a fake plunge, and it was Bears, 16; Giants, 14.

This was the standing when the teams went into the last 15 minutes. But Newman again had tossed those unerring passes to place the ball on the Bears' 8 yard line as the teams changed goals. Newman, in the two drives, had completed seven successive passes.

This One Has Bears Dizzy.

The first play was a touchdown. It was a play which never before had been attempted in football. Strong went wide to his left and just before the outstretched arms of rushing linemen reached him, he whirled to throw the ball laterally to Newman, standing behind the center of the scrimmage zone. Again the Bears rushed, and Newman dodged and twisted until Strong, who had continued down the side line, reached the end zone. Newman threw and Strong took the perfect toss for the touchdown. His kick made the score Giants, 21; Bears, 16.

This lateral-forward pass set the stage for the final struggle of the Bears, a struggle that at last was successful and which already has been detailed.

The statistics of the game follow:

First downs—Bears, 13; Giants, 13.

Yards gained from scrimmage—Bears, 165; Giants, 85.

Yards gained on lateral passes—Bears, 19; Giants, 0.

Total yards gained—Bears, 325; Giants, 286.

Passes attempted—Bears, 16; Giants, 20.

Passes completed—Bears, 7; Giants, 13.

Passes intercepted—Bears, 1; Giants, 1.

Punts returned—Bears, 5 for 58 yards; Giants, 5 for 59 yards.

Punts—Bears, 10 for 42.3 yards average; Giants, 14 for average 31.4 yards.

Penalties—Bears, 8 for 40 yards; Giants, 3 for 15 yards.

Here's Detail on How Bears, Giants Scored

returned to the Bears' 23 yard line. Nagurski smashed at Grant for 5 yards and Corbett added 2 yards. Nagurski made one yard but the Bears were penalized 5 yards for back field in motion. The Giants chose to accept the penalty and it still was third down. On a punt formation Corbett passed to Brumbaugh, who ran to the Giants' 8 yard line. Nagurski hit right guard for 2 yards but Jones held Corbett to no gain. On third down Nagurski faked a plunge and passed to Karr in the end zone for a touchdown. Manders place kicked the point. Score: Bears, 16; Giants, 14.

Strong returned Manders' kickoff to the Giants' 26 yard strip. Newman passed to Campbell for 12 yards. Newman passed to Burnett on the Bears' 40 yard line. Newman shot a wide pass to Strong for 15 yards. The Giants lost 5 yards for offside. On the last play of the third period Newman passed to Burnett for a first down on the Bears' 8 yard line.

Giants Go Over.

FOURTH PERIOD—Strong ran to his left, lateralled the ball back to Newman, who then forward passed to Strong in the corner of the end zone for the touchdown. Strong place kicked the point. Score: Giants, 21; Bears, 16.

After two threats had failed, the Bears took the ball on the Giants' 47 yard line when Strong's punt traveled only 9 yards. A pass was incomplete. Molesworth passed to Brumbaugh for 9 yards and Nagurski hit the line for a first down on the New York 33 yard line. Nagurski shot a short forward pass to Hewitt, who threw laterally to Karr. Karr ran 20 yards for the touchdown. Braumbaugh place kicked the point. Final score: Bears, 23, Giants, 21.

Dartmouth Board Adjourns Without Selecting a Coach

Hanover, N. H., Dec. 17.—(AP)—Dartmouth was still without a varsity football coach today when the athletic committee of nine concluded its two day semi-annual meeting.

That board adjourned without naming a successor for Jackson Cannell, whose resignation was accepted yesterday. The committee considered a list of 60 coaching prospects, many of whom were suggested by various alumni bodies. No action was taken, however, and the entire list will be gone over again when the committee meets again next month.

Clarence G. McDavitt of Boston, president of the council, said that no date had been set for the January meeting. He was also unable to promise that the committee would be prepared to appoint a coach the next time it assembles. The other graduate members present were Paul W. Loudon of Minneapolis and Edwin B. Dooley of New York, former Dartmouth football players.

DE PAUL FACES NO. CENTRAL IN OPENER TONIGHT

De Paul university will open its basketball season tonight in a game with North Central of Naperville at the De Paul gym.

Weakened by the loss of three stars of last season by ineligibility, Coach Jim Kelly's squad will enter the contest none too confident. De Paul captured all except four of its games last year.

North Central had started its season impressively, scoring victories over Armour Tech and the University of Chicago.

To halt North Central's offense, Coach Kelly may instruct the squad to play a defensive game. The De Paul quintet has not yet hit its stride offensively.

Hanley Hails Pro Forward Passing Rule

Dick Hanley, Northwestern university's football coach, after yesterday's championship game praised the professional rules which permit a forward pass at any point behind the line of scrimmage and which place the goal posts on the goal line instead of on the end line, as in the college football code of rules.

"I advocated this forward pass rule for the colleges last year. The Bears-Giants game is proof that it produces a more open contest with resulting thrills for the spectators. Dr. Clarence Spears and I wanted that rule adopted last year and I hope it is included in the college rules for next season," Hanley added.

Many prominent college coaches attended the championship game. Among them was Bob Zuppke of Illinois, whose Illini this fall boasted the best forward pass attack in the Western conference. Hunk Anderson, who once played for the Chicago Bears, also was in a box seat.

Paid attendance was approximately 21,000, but several hundred more climbed the fences, the police politely turning their backs. It is estimated that each of the Bears will receive at least $300 as his share of the first world's series purse. The official figures will be announced today by Joseph F. Carr, president of the National league.

President Carr spoke over the field mike during the intermission. He promised rule changes for next season which will make professional football more replete with thrilling plays, if this is possible. Carr was received with applause by the cash customers.

Bull Doehring, the Bears' long distance forward pass artist, trotted out on the field in the third period, but the Bears waved him back. They evidently knew what they intended to do, for within a few minutes Karr had scored on Nagurski's short pass and Chicago was again in the lead, 16 to 14.

Manders missed a place kick from the Giants' 18 yard line in the second period, when New York led, 7 to 6. It was his only failure in four attempts during the game. Just before this, however, Jack booted a goal from the 40 yard line, the longest field goal of the season.

Jack Bramhall's band did its stint of tooting before and during the game, but the cheers of the spectators drowned out the musicians during the wild finish.

The cross wind from the northwest didn't seem to bother either of the punters. The field was soft and slippery at the north end of the gridiron, but the players held their feet remarkably well. Neither did the dampness handicap the passers. Newman completed eight consecutive forward passes in the third and fourth periods. Grange ended the string by an interception which staved off a Giant threat in the last two minutes.

"Red Grange saved the game," Tim Mara, owner of the Giants, said when the battle was over. "When Burnett caught Newman's forward pass as the last whistle sounded, Burnett was set to lateral the ball to Hein, our center, who was uncovered. Grange tackled the ball instead of the runner and that quick thinking prevented a score on the last play.

Bill Hewitt did his specialty on the last play of the first period when he blocked Strong's punt. Burnett of the Giants won the race for the ball, however, and recovered it on New York's 15 yard line. Since the blocked kick occurred on third down, Strong had another chance.

An unusual set of penalties occurred in the second quarter. The Bears were called for clipping, but Strong's punt struck a Giant end in the back as he went down field to cover the ball. The resulting penalty for interference with the punt receiver nullified the penalty on the Bears for clipping and Referee Tommy Hughitt brought the ball back for a replay at the point of the previous down.

Karr's touchdown on the lateral pass from Hewitt gave the Bears a 22 to 21 lead and there was a move on the Bears' bench to get Manders into the game for the try for the point. Brumbaugh didn't wait, however. "I can kick those things, too," Carl said, and proceeded to demonstrate.

Total scores for the three games this year between the Giants and the Bears are: Bears, 37; Giants, 34. The Bears won in the regular season at Wrigley field, 14 to 10, but lost at New York, 3 to 0.

The Bears will resume practice Thursday for their post-season game next Saturday at St. Louis against the Gunners. They have been guaranteed $5,000. Negotiations also are under way for games on the Pacific coast.

Max Krause, first year man for the Giants from Gonzaga, spent five weeks in a New York hospital recovering from injuries received in the Century of Progress East-West game at Soldiers' field last August. He's regarded as one of the "finds" in pro football.

Why not a few hours to study how it can be sold more widely and economically in CHICAGO . . .

You, as a manufacturer of grocery products, spare neither time nor expense in creating a product which will win the acceptance of the great buying public. You know all about your product—but are you familiar with all there is to know about your sales opportunities in Chicago? Ask yourself these questions below. They can be the first step in your investigation.

1. What ONE issue of one newspaper in Chicago receives more money from 15 of the largest general grocery product advertisers than six issues of any afternoon paper?

2. What large coffee company leaped into a leading position in Chicago from a standing start in 11 months and what was their advertising strategy?

3. Which newspaper has carried the load in intensive drives behind food products in the Chicago market?

4. Which newspaper is considered to be the most powerful sales influence by Chicago's loop department stores which advertise every day of the week?

5. Which newspaper has the greatest coverage of women according to every reader interest survey made among Chicago women?

6. Which Chicago newspaper delivers practically as much circulation as any two afternoon papers combined, and does so at a lower line rate?

Blanket rules of newspaper selection do not work in Chicago. It is so big—the newspaper situation here so different—that this market requires special consideration. Why not get the facts now? A request from you will bring facts invaluable in their application to your own sales problems in Chicago.

TRADERS FIND WORLD WHEAT STOCK BEARISH

Prices Lower Here; Corn Declines.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Tentative figures on world wheat supply and demand indicate about 4,372,000,000 bushels are available for consumption. This figure is the aggregate of the new crops, Russian exports and the estimated world carryover, and compares with 4,482,000,000 bushels on the same basis a year ago.

The ten year average disappearance of wheat has been around 3,597,000,000 bushels, and traders who have analyzed the figures say that in view of the statistical position it is not surprising that the present world prices are extremely low, and that the domestic market has so far refused to make more than a moderate response to the cheapened American dollar.

Supply Figures Known.

The issuance of the official estimates on the Argentine and Australian wheat crops practically ends any uncertainty on the probable supply for the season, and after the turn of the year it is expected the outlook for the 1934 harvest will start to come to the fore as a market influence.

Due to the lack of subsoil moisture over a wide area the winter wheat crop in the United States has made one of the poorest starts in the history, and if normal weather conditions prevail between Dec. 1 and harvest a yield somewhat below domestic requirements may result. The official government returns on the acreage and condition of the new crop will be issued late this week, and are expected to show the lowest condition on record with the exception of last year. In years when condition has been below normal, the abandoned acreage is usually above average.

Lack of Moisture Noted.

Lack of subsoil moisture is also officially reported in a large section of the spring wheat belt both sides of the international line and, based to the relationship between the amount of fall rains and the crop of the following year, under the most favorable conditions only moderate yields are expected in 1934.

There is no broad speculative interest in the world wheat markets at present, which many believe is one of the prime factors in holding down prices near record low levels. So far importing countries have apparently paid little attention to the export quotas imposed on the leading surplus producing countries by the international wheat agreement. To a considerable extent this militates against the size of the Argentine crop having a very depressing effect, as the surplus above the quota cannot enter international trade.

Wheat Off 2 to 2¾ Cents.

Wheat prices in Chicago fluctuated erratically last week and closed 2 to 2¾ cents lower. December finished Saturday 83⅜ cents, May 85 to 85⅛ cents and July 83½ to 83⅝ cents. Ranges of prices follow:

	December.	May.	July.

Traders who expected a sharp advance in corn prices the previous week, due to the rush of farmers to obtain government loans of 45 cents a bushel on their cribbed grain, changed their opinion last week and futures closed 4⅛ to 4⅝ cents lower. December closed Saturday at 43½ cents; May, 50¼ to 50¼ cents, and July 51¾ to 51⅞ cents.

Cause of Corn Decline.

The record breaking visible supply of cash corn at terminal markets, more than 63,000,000 bushels, and the continued liberal movement to primary points in the face of the heavy applications for loans was a factor in bringing about the change in sentiment. Ranges of prices follow:

Although many operators expect oats to sell materially higher later in the season due to abnormally small supplies, prices were off 1⅝ to 1¾ cents for the week, the action of corn having considerable influence. December closed Saturday at 34⅜ cents, May 36⅝ to 36⅞ cents and July 35 cents.

Makers of alcohol are not buying cash or future rye to any great extent. The volume of business has fallen off, and prices closed 2⅞ to 3½ cents net lower for the week, December closed at 52¾ cents, with only light open interest. May sold at 57⅞ and July at 59¾ cents. A part of the trading was the spreading in near and distant months with other grains.

Barley Down 1⅝ to 2 Cents.

Barley lost 1⅝ to 2 cents on light offerings. December closed at 42 cents, May and July 47¾ cents.

Cudahy Profit Double 1932; $2.64 a Share

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Profits of Cudahy Packing company doubled in 1933, according to the report issued last night to stockholders. The company earned net profit of $1,313,766, equivalent after preferred dividends, to $2.64 a share on the outstanding common in the fiscal year ended Oct. 28. In the preceding year the company earned $905,985, or 68 cents a share on the common stock then outstanding.

The profit reported is exclusive of $388,818 made on the resale of common stock held in the treasury, which was bought in the open market prior to 1933. All of the treasury stock has now been disposed of and the profit accruing was credited directly to surplus.

Gross tonnage business of the company in 1933 was 4 per cent ahead of 1932. Notwithstanding this expansion, the gross sales for the year were down approximately $9,000,000.

Second Big Firm to Report.

Cudahy is the second of the "Big Four" packers to report on 1933 operations. Yesterday Swift & Co. reported a profit for the year of nearly $6,000,000 after inventory reserve, marking a return to profitable operation by that concern. Unlike Swift and Armour, however, Cudahy has operated at a profit throughout the depression years.

Armour has not yet reported for 1933 but estimates place net income for the year around $9,000,000. Wilson & Co. is also yet to report.

During the last four depression years, E. A. Cudahy, chairman, pointed out in his report, the Cudahy company has earned an average of 1.13 per cent on its sales, or slightly more than one-eighth of a cent on each pound of products sold. Yet these earnings, he said, have yielded an average return of 5.72 per cent on the common stock during the period. Dividends accruing on such narrow margins have little or no appreciable effect on the price of meats, he asserted.

Cash Position Improved.

The company ended the year with cash on hand of $5,204,311, compared with $4,698,519 a year earlier. Accounts receivable were $6,482,503, against $5,692,970. Notes receivable were reduced to $175,747 from $206,301 a year before. Cash on hand is substantially in excess of the current borrowings of $4,733,500 and quick assets amounted to 3.79 times current liabilities.

Chairman Cudahy expressed himself as undisturbed over the increased operating costs arising from NRA policies.

"I see no occasion to be apprehensive of the outcome," he said, "for the reason that not only our competitors but all lines of industry are bearing similar burdens, and these burdens will lighten as industrial activity continues to grow."

He stated that the export business of the company has shown marked improvement since the change in monetary policy was inaugurated under the Roosevelt administration.

Wage increases made in 1933 and now pending will aggregate $2,500,000 annually, he said, and pointed out that while numerous strikes have taken place in the industry the plants of the Cudahy company have not been affected.

TENNESSEE JOINS KENTUCKY FOR TOBACCOHOLIDAY

Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 17.—(AP)—Tennessee joined Kentucky tonight in a tobacco sales "holiday." Gov. McAlister in a statement asked all growers and warehouse operators to discontinue sales "until such time as plans of the United States government for controlling tobacco production can be put into effect."

Tennessee's chief executive said he was convinced, after conferences with burley tobacco growers last week, that closing of the markets "is the only way to handle the situation."

North Carolina Attitude.

Raleigh, N. C., Dec. 17.—(AP)—Gov. Ehringhaus said tonight he was ready to cooperate in any feasible plan to raise prices of burley tobacco, but declined to say whether he would ask a closing of the Asheville market, asserting he wanted to study the situation before committing himself.

Situation in Kentucky.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 17.—(AP)—"I am not going to modify my request" for a tobacco sales holiday in Kentucky, Gov. Ruby Laffoon told the Associated Press tonight following a conference with burley tobacco growers. "It is up to the warehouse men if they want to do it or don't," he added.

Gov. Laffoon said he had no intimation as to whether the holiday, a proclamation for which was issued late yesterday, would become effective tomorrow as requested. He said he had not heard from the principal sales centers whether they planned to comply with the request. He explained that he had no legal authority to enforce his order.

International Telephone Shows Gain in Earnings

New York, Dec. 17.—The International Telephone and Telegraph corporation announces that its consolidated net income for the three months ended Sept. 30, 1933, was $403,088, compared with $211,940 for the three months ended June 30, 1933. This also compares with a loss of $554,251 for the first three months of this year. Gross earnings for the nine months ended Sept. 30 were $52,416,203, compared with $51,904,958 for the first nine months of 1932.

Repeal Boosts Turkey Sale in Gotham; Prices Rise

New York, Dec. 17.—(AP)—P. Q. Foy, market expert, said today that under the stimulus of repeal the consumption of turkeys has doubled and trebled in hotels and restaurants. He added, moreover, the price being received by the turkey growers is double that of the Thanksgiving period and a Christmas shortage is in prospect.

STEEL OUTPUT AT BEST MARK IN EIGHT WEEKS

Operations Placed at 33% Capacity.

Bucking seasonal trends, steel works operations rose last week to the highest point in eight weeks, 33 per cent of capacity, or four points more than the rate in the preceding week, according to the magazine Steel.

Production increased in most of the major districts, including Chicago. In New England mills reduced the rate 10 points to 71 per cent, and in Wheeling and Birmingham they maintained it unchanged.

Some producers have stepped up shipments to a point surpassing even that of last July, the review reports.

Developments Favorable.

Several developments have lent new vigor to the steel industry:

1. The expiration of contracts providing for prices lower than those announced for next quarter is encouraging many consumers to make anticipatory accumulations of steel. "The drive for specifications may well engage iron and steel works at or near the present rate over the holiday period," comments the review.

2. Structural steel awards last week were the largest for the year, with the exception of those for the week ended May 6. To the total of 35,170 tons, the requirements for 26 bridges in the New York Central's grade elimination project at Syracuse, N. Y., and awards from the Mathieson Alkali company and from the government for the San Francisco postoffice contributed in a large measure. At the same time miscellaneous requirements for structural steel, mainly for public works, are increasing.

Big Car Orders in Sight.

3. Negotiations have begun for nearly 13,000 freight cars for the Van Sweringen lines, and the programs of other carriers are maturing. Nearly 300,000 tons of steel will be used in making the 12,775 freight cars and 167 passenger and baggage cars financed by the government. In addition, the Pennsylvania railroad has bought 25,000 tons of tie plates and distributed 25,000 more tons of miscellaneous steel. Western Pacific is inquiring for 26,000 tons of rails and fastenings. Missouri Pacific for 25,000 tons, and Lehigh and New England for 500 freight cars.

4. Finally scrap prices rose again, revising the magazine's index upward to $10.17.

"Since comparatively few first quarter contracts have been concluded, mills may be confronted with lean order books Jan. 1," says Steel, "and some apprehension is expressed concerning the production situation in the early weeks of January.

"The probability, however, is that automobile manufacturers will begin specifying vigorously for material for new models, while a new policy with regard to quoting is calculated to relieve stress at the close of the quarter, such as now evident, and to spread business more evenly.

"This policy provides for the announcement of a quarter's prices at least two months before the beginning of the quarter."

STEEL INDUSTRY HAS SHARP RISE IN EMPLOYMENT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 17.—An increase in employment in the steel industry of nearly 100 per cent over 1932 was reported today by the American Iron and Steel institute. Employment in the industry in October of this year totaled 416,277 against 417,020 in September and 388,146 in June of this year. In 1932 the total had dropped to 210,000.

The report showed that although production in the industry declined about 9 per cent in October, compared with September, employment fell off only ¼ of 1 per cent, while pay rolls increased $800,000, to a total of $37,977,385. The report is the second monthly survey on employment, hours, and wages in the industry compiled by the American Iron and Steel institute under the steel code.

It was pointed out in the report that under the operation of the steel code employment in the industry at the present time, despite greatly reduced operations, is close to the level of 420,000 estimated by the national recovery administration for 1929 when average operations approximated 80 per cent of capacity. The institute declared that expansion of operations in the industry to as much as 70 per cent of capacity would require approximately 125,000 additional employes, including skilled operators.

ROADS MAY JOIN LABOR ON PLAN FOR LEGISLATION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 17.—The eastern presidents' conference appointed a committee to investigate a proposal made by W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, that the managements and labor unite on a national legislative program. The committee was not empowered to meet labor at this time, but, as a result of the committee's deliberations, it, or a succeeding group, may assume this task.

It is the thought of Mr. Atterbury and those behind him that labor and management should be able to find a common ground for the backing of legislation on railroad pensions, highway traffic and other points to be introduced in the next congress.

Meeting as members of the eastern regional coordinating committee, the presidents of the leading railroads in the east and in New England agreed to meet Joseph B. Eastman, federal coordinator, to discuss his recent charges that some railroads were violating the emergency railroad transportation act by interfering with labor unions.

MIAMI BOND PLAN PUT INTO EFFECT, TO PAY INTEREST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 17.—The committee for holders of the city of Miami, Fla., bonds announced today that the plan for refunding all of the city's $29,350,000 of bonds outstanding has been declared operative and that it will mail checks today for back interest to the holders of the $24,500,000 of bonds. The committee has collected approximately $550,000 through suits which it instituted last year and early this year.

This amount will permit the payment today of 23 per cent of one year's interest and ranges from $10.35 on a 4½ per cent bond to $12.80 on a 6 per cent bond. Payment will be made to depositing bondholders of record Nov. 10, 1933. The balance not disbursed today will be credited to the depositing bondholders. The payment is the first since the city defaulted in August, 1932.

CHRISTMAS BUYING STILL GAINING, SAYS TRADE GROUP SURVEY

With most retail merchants reporting the best Christmas buying in three years and with local industry in general showing the most pronounced optimism in months, Chicago last week recorded a continuation of the slightly upward trend that has remained practically unbroken for more than a month, the Chicago Association of Commerce reports.

Holiday buying is said to be active in all lines of merchandise. While, as in recent years, the practical variety of gifts is still the rule, purchases of luxuries are increasing.

Salary payments by the CWA to thousands of previously unemployed Chicagoans have also gone far in loosening local credit strings. Neighborhood stores appear to be optimistic.

In the trade area stretching for a radius of about 300 miles from Chicago, the new optimism seems even more pronounced than in the city itself.

RFC SEEKS WAYS TO MAKE LOANS TO INDUSTRY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17.—(AP)—Direct loans to industry through the Reconstruction Finance corporation for meeting pay rolls and increasing employment were understood today to be under serious consideration by the administration.

Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the corporation, and other members of its board of directors, are studying the proposal on instructions from President Roosevelt. They have not yet reported on how such loans may be legalized.

The effort is being directed, it was learned on highest authority, to find some means of loosening credit in the place of the NRA loan plan announced at the White House last September. The NRA plan was designed to supply money to code subscribers but despite the fact that more than 15,000 applications have been received, only a comparatively small sum has been lent.

Normal Now? Dawes Puffs Bucket Pipe

Add signs of a return to normal conditions. Gen. Charles G. Dawes is again seen smoking the underslung pipe that he made famous in the "Hell 'n' Maria" days when he was Vice President of the United States. A year and a half ago, when he resigned from the chairmanship of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, the general laid away the underslung pipe and took up a modest briar of the conventional variety. At the annual banquet of the Illinois Manufacturers association, the general appeared with the vice presidential pipe, which looks very much like a bucket with a stem stuck through the top of it.

GEN. CHARLES G. DAWES.

A. Edward Newton, wealthy Philadelphia manufacturer, author and world famous collector of first editions, in his recently published book "End Papers," tells a story which is causing many a chuckle on La Salle street, where, by the way, Newton is well known, both from a literary and a business standpoint.

"I have a friend in San Francisco," goes the Philadelphian's story. "He is a stockbroker on a large scale, and an old lady came into his office, wanting to make an investment. Van Antwerp, that's the broker's name, is very conservative, and would not commit himself as to the value of some gilt edge securities she considered buying.

"Finally she said: 'Well, then, it's your opinion that I should buy government bonds; you regard them as absolutely safe, I suppose.'

"'Well,' said Van, cautiously, 'I would hardly say that; but they will be among the last things to go.'"

It has been pointed out, says Eastman, Dillon & Co., that the President stands for "sound but adequate" money. "The question is," this house says, "whether he means 'SOUND but adequate' or 'sound but ADEQUATE.'"

CONGRESS SOON TO MEET; MART GROWS ANXIOUS

Fear Radical Laws May Be Passed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 17.—Congress is beginning to look up on the share market's horizon and the veteran trader, while professing no great alarm on the prospect, has hauled out a few stock worries merely by way of keeping regular. So many dire whisperings have been about lately as to what the nation's lawmakers may or may not do to curb speculation, hamstring promotion and further tax or penalize speculative profits when they get together on Jan. 3 that one just cannot help feeling somewhat concerned.

Conservatives of the community belittle the threat as a matter of course. They feel that the solons will speak their little pieces, jump through the hoop as they did last March and go home as the President is said to wish them to. However, it is a fact well known to all that solons are wont to come to the capital with the urge to reform strong upon them and the boys on the anxious seat feel entitled perforce to their little qualms.

Damper on Rise Talk.

One effect the early session is having already is to put a damper on the talk of a "premature" spring rise, which usually begins to be heard around the boardrooms along about this time of the year. In recent years the rise has begun to get under way as early as January or February. The market thus has been able to gain a running start on congress and gain a little momentum for reserve in case of shocks.

This time, however, the lawmakers are getting on the job two months earlier than usual and the prospect from the market devotee's viewpoint is not so heartening. Whatever the turn of events, observers agree that the session is going to rate tremendously as a market factor—second in REVIEW YOUR WILL?

in the light of changed conditions

HOW MUCH has the worth of your various assets shifted in recent years? How seriously has the value of your entire estate been changed? What would happen if, at the present level of values, your Will should become effective?

In recent cases, where an unrevised Will of several years standing has become operative, the immediate family has been known to suffer severely. For specific bequests are paid in full, and the residue for the family may be reduced, at current values, out of all proportion to the original expectation of the maker of the Will.

Further, since you have made your Will or last revised it, there perhaps have been changes in your family — a birth, marriage or death — affecting the plans you have made.

Review your Will with your attorney, now, and determine whether it needs revision. To readjust its provisions usually is a small task. It may prove of utmost importance to your heirs.

The time of the trust officers at The Northern Trust Company is available to you and your attorney for consultation pertaining to your Will. Without cost or obligation, you are invited to make use of this institution's more than forty-four years of rich trust experience.

BONDS ADVANCE, THEN REACT, BUT HOLD SOME GAIN

Monetary Situation Is the Prime Factor.

New York, Dec. 17.—(AP)—The bond market was torn between currency stabilization hopes and dollar depreciation fears last week, but was able to finish just a little better than even.

Leading loans began the week with a sharp advance coincident with reports that representatives of the administration had been consulting informally with the authorities of Great Britain and France regarding some sort of an agreement to "peg" the dollar-pound-franc rates around their then existing levels.

At the same time, highly optimistic industrial news began to appear and the rails, especially, picked up strength with indications that traffic in the early months of next year would show substantial improvement. Prime investment utilities and industrials firmed under renewed demand and many secondary maturities moved up sharply.

Minor Gains Retained.

After the first flush, however, traders and investors exhibited some hesitation and on Tuesday and Wednesday prices as a whole neither advanced nor declined. There were subsequent irregularities but minor gains were retained in most departments. The White House let it be known that its gold-buying policy was unchanged and further dollar declines were expected.

United States government securities were again subjected to dips and rallies, although the majority more than held their own over the week. Some further treasury buying for various sinking funds was reported, and institutional purchases were also thought to have aided in bringing the federal action.

Big Money Transaction.

Transactions in the money market on Friday were the largest in several years. Due to the government's financing, around $2,000,000 was involved, including some $500,000,000 cash. The big turnover included the meeting of a treasury maturity of $727,000,000 from the proceeds of the new $950,000,000 one year note issue.

Foreign obligations, generally, continued to follow exchange movements. German loans turned heavy on reports that the 50 per cent cash payments on the reich's external debt service might have to be curtailed unless exports were expanded. The Argentines also were reactionary.

Bond Men's Club to Hold Christmas Party on Dec. 23

The Bond Men's club announces that its annual Christmas party will be held this year on Saturday afternoon, Dec. 23, in the bungalow of the Hotel Sherman. Reminding its members that "38 states voted yes," the entertainment committee reports that a pile of free turkeys will be one of the attractions.

LETTERS

On Supermen.

Financial Editor: I am in my 68th year and have always been connected with great corporations and for the last thirty-five years with fiduciary institutions. In all that time I have known two men who I think would qualify as supermen. In fourteen months of association with one of them I learned more than in any fourteen years of my life. He had a marvelous mind and a dominating personality. He despised pussy-footers and rubber stamp men. When I entered the service of the association of which he was the head he said, "I have employed you on your credentials. It doesn't occur to me to give you any instructions beyond this: When I ask your opinion I want your opinion, not what you think I want you to think. In other words, I want you to preserve the integrity of your thought under all circumstances."

I saw him change the minds of many men of preconceived notions, but he was always fearful of the power he knew he had.

It seems to me that trustees of fiduciary institutions should take seriously their positions and that the bylaws of such corporation should require the unanimous agreement of the board of trustees on every investment. No investment should be made about which any qualified director entertains any doubts. I have in mind one such corporation with such a by-law. Its trustees consider the investment of other people's money as a serious responsibility. They are professional trustees and consider their position in this particular institution as the cap sheaf of their careers. I wonder how many other fiduciary institutions there are which are similarly safeguarded, and if not, why not?

A. A. Drew, Chicago.

Sign of Improvement.

Financial Editor: In your search for signs of general improvement I think this situation may interest you. In the spring of 1930 when the master minds were still asserting that the depression was all over, Interfraternity club moved from its hotel quarters into this six story building adjoining the Palmer house. We had twelve hundred members when we came here, and then the big, bad wolf began to scratch at the door.

Applications for membership ceased abruptly, and resignations began to come with amazing regularity. That condition continued until the middle of October, 1933, and then resignations suddenly ceased. Six hundred and fifty men were left in good standing.

But beginning on Nov. 15, for some unknown reason, new applications for membership started to appear, and now we have more than one hundred people asking for admittance.

I think this is a pleasant commentary upon the conditions of the moment, and I think it is all the more remarkable since our membership requirements are more difficult than any other club in Chicago. Every applicant must be a college bred man, and in addition to that a member of one of the old line national college fraternities. Warren Piper, Chicago.

SEXTON URGES LAW TO PROTECT CITY DEPOSITS

Wants Public Funds to Be Backed by Assets.

BY STANLEY ARMSTRONG.

Corporation Counsel Sexton yesterday urged the enactment of laws by the general assembly that would authorize state banks to pledge their assets to secure deposits of public monies, and also to provide directly that banks shall pay interests on demand deposits of public funds. He has written to Gov. Horner asking for the inclusion of these two subjects in the call for a third special session of the legislature.

The 1933 federal banking act prohibits national banks and state banks that are members of the federal reserve system from paying interest on demand deposits except to municipalities in states where the law requires it. The law in Illinois is definite on the payment of interest on state funds, Mr. Sexton said, but should be clarified as to municipal funds, as city funds now are placed in the banks as demand deposits.

Gets Two Bids.

The city has bids from the First National and the Continental Illinois National, each offering to pay one-eighth of 1 per cent interest on city funds. Mr. Sexton told the governor in his communication that there is little likelihood of the city getting any substantial interest on city funds until the law "directly" provides for interest payments.

The necessity of authorizing state banks to pledge assets to secure municipal deposits is found by Mr. Sexton in a decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in the suit of Ben Sneeden, receiver of the City National bank of Herrin, Ill., to recover securities set aside by the bank to guarantee a deposit of city funds.

Practice Held Illegal.

In this case the Appeals court held the practice as illegal and against public policy. The city of Marion, Ill., has asked the United States Supreme court to reverse the decision, and the city of Chicago has filed a brief sustaining the position taken by the city of Marion.

"If the court affirms the decision of the Appeals court it will be a serious blow to the city," said Mr. Sexton. "City funds will be placed in jeopardy, because it is practically impossible under present conditions to get adequate surety bonds protecting them. A law authorizing state banks to pledge assets to guarantee municipal deposits would be of great aid."

Truscon Steel.

Investors' Guide: Would very much appreciate information on Truscon Steel.—P. H.

Answer: Truscon Steel company is an important manufacturer of fabricated steel. Most of its output is designed for the building trade, although some is used in highways, automobiles, and refrigerators. Earnings during the last few years reflect the absence of building.

During the first 9 months of 1933 the company lost $527,000, against loss of $594,000 for the corresponding 1932 period.

	Gross Sales.	Net Income.	Income per Com. Share.
1932	$10,446,000	*$1,635,000	*$2.72
1931	18,530,000	*617,000	*1.23
1930	28,616,000	1,130,000	1.33
1929	38,178,000	2,761,000	4.04

*Net loss.

Earnings for 1932 would have compared more favorably with those for 1931 except that no depreciation was deducted in 1931. This, with other charges against earnings, such as bad debts, reserve for inventory losses, etc., which were not deducted in 1931 totaled more than $600,000.

On July 31, 1933, current assets, including $439,000 free cash, amounted to $4,229,000, and current liabilities, including $988,000 notes payable, were $2,000,000. There was no funded debt. Capitalization consisted of 69,937 shares of $10 par common and 34,182 shares of $100 par preferred.

The company plans to sell 200,000 shares of common stock at $10 a share. This will be offered first to present stockholders. The purpose of it is to increase working capital in the event business during the coming year makes great demands on working funds. The company will also pay back 65,000 shares of stock which were borrowed from officers and sold.

Nothing has been paid on the preferred since March 1, 1933. The preferred is speculative and the common is more so.

"Brokerage Practices."

Investors' Guide: 1. If I buy some shares of stock through a brokerage firm and resell the same, do I have to give the broker a commission both when I buy and when I sell, or just once? 2. Is the broker's commission figured on the par value of stocks or the quoted value? 3. If I buy stocks on margin, what per cent of the quoted price do I have to pay down?—T. C. L.

Answer: 1. Brokers charge a commission both for buying stock and for selling stock.

2. Commissions are figured on the market value.

3. This is subject to agreement between you and your broker, subject to minimum margins established by the exchange on which the stock is listed.

TARIFF CONTROL BRITISH DEFENSE IN MONEY 'FIGHT'

Have No Desire to Enter Exchange War.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Dec. 17.—The only defensive policy which the British government has in view for self-protection against excessive depreciation of the dollar is entirely within the zone of tariff activity. It includes no plan whatever for deliberately depreciating the pound or adopting other currency devices for weapons in the battle of exchanges.

Two things can be stated authoritatively. First, neither the British treasury nor the Bank of England wants to participate in an exchange war with the United States. Secondly, the treasury and bank will not consider stabilization between currencies of the two countries until the dollar is worth much more with reference to the pound than it is now.

Guard Against "Dumping."

Even tariff retaliation is not considered justifiable at present, and the hope is it will not become necessary to resort to it at all. But should the dollar reach such a low level that it caused serious dumping of American exports in the British market this government would immediately check the flow of cheaply purchased commodities by imposing anti-dumping duties. It already has the right to do so under the provisions of the present tariff laws without waiting to get parliamentary sanction. This, however, is not an immediate contingency.

Chancellor Chamberlain recently assured parliament the depreciated dollar has not yet hurt British trade.

On the contrary, it was a godsend to the British textile industry, by enabling manufacturers to get American raw cotton at bargain prices. But the cotton phase is over for this year. From now on the danger of dumping will be increased unless the dollar takes an upward turn, and England is ready for such an emergency.

Plays Waiting Game.

So far as stabilization is concerned, the British policy is to play a waiting game. Financial authorities are convinced the force of circumstances and logic of events will eventually compel a change in the present American plan of depreciating its own currency, whether or not it succeeds in raising prices. This depreciation, so far as the pound is concerned, is not, according to the British view, due to inherent economic improvement of business conditions in England, but to speculation, lack of confidence, and the flight from the dollar in the United States.

On the other hand, the real exchange position of the United States is considered here inherently sound because of America's favorable trade balance, huge gold reserve, and other advantages. Therefore British authorities are convinced America would not be damaged if the dollar rose to a point nearer to four dollars to the pound than to five.

Desire Safe Level.

That is the outcome of the situation the British treasury desires, and if and when it comes there will be no reluctance to discuss stabilization. In the meantime any attempt to stabilize at a level which could not be maintained would be worse than useless for both countries, according to London.

As a matter of fact this country has been dissatisfied with the rate of exchange for a long time. The dollar was deemed undervalued before President Roosevelt began depreciating it by gold purchases.

The lack of equilibrium, in the opinion of the British treasury, dates back even to the days prior to England's abandoning of the gold standard in September, 1931. At the old parity, 4.86, they considered the pound overvalued by about 15 per cent. That is, the parity then should have been 4.20 instead of 4.86.

Positions of Prices.

After 1931 in Britain the commodity price level remained steady. When President Roosevelt took hold last March the American price level was about 20 per cent below that of 1931, so, according to British experts, the equilibrium of exchange at that time should have been $3.50 to the pound.

But since then Roosevelt has regained about half of that 20 per cent price decline, while British prices have improved only slightly and the situation now calls for a pound that is worth only $4 instead of something over $5.

Electric Power and Light corporation reports a deficit of $776,900 after interest for the twelve months ended Oct. 31. This contrasts with balance after interest of $5,663,292 for the previous year.

TRADE PICKS UP AS WORK AND PAY SHOW EXPANSION

Indices Reveal Volume Is Above Year Ago.

New York, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Rising retail sales totals, reports of expanding employment and firmness of several industrial barometers suggest that Santa Claus this year will have more material with which to decorate the nation's Christmas tree.

The holidays' approach finds general business levels, as measured by basic indices, above a year ago, the gain in some cases, notably that of the steel industry, being contraseasonal. One of the mercantile agencies estimates that yuletide buying is the best in three years, which brings cheer to countless merchants and the factories that supply them with goods.

U. S. Pay Checks Aid Buying.

Pay checks from such government enterprises as the CWA appear to have brought a quickening demand for necessaries over a large part of the country and store stocks of such items as clothing are said to have been reduced. Dun & Bradstreet reports that "the pinching saving of the past few seasons when salaries were being reduced and employment curtailed has been superceded by a more generous attitude."

Automobile output apparently is about to expand in response to new model assembly. Cram's automotive reports estimates last week's production at 16,762 units, an increase of 3,327 over the previous week, although under 1932's level for the same period. Five companies had increases while four showed losses. December production, which may approximate 100,000 cars and trucks, will probably be about the same as November's.

Electric Power Mounting.

Electric power output week before last maintained its improvement over a year ago; the figures have shown consistent comparative gains since spring. The latest increase, 6.6 per cent, was the largest in several weeks.

Moody's business indicator, adjusted for seasonal variation, closed last week at 67 against 65.7 the previous week, which was said to represent "a moderately improved business tendency." The chief factor in the rise was the boost in the steel ratio.

NEW ODD LOT TRADING RULES DEFERRED AGAIN

New York, Dec. 17.—New regulations governing odd lot and specialist trading on the stock exchange, originally scheduled to become effective on Nov. 15 and then postponed to Jan. 1, have again been deferred to May 1.

The postponements, it was said, have been due to the difficulty which odd lot houses found in readjusting their organizations to conform to the new requirements. Under the new rules no member of an exchange firm doing an odd lot business [less than 100 shares] would be permitted to deal in lots of 100 shares or more.

The exchange also has adopted new rules on stock options, it was revealed when the National Distillers corporation filed application for listing its new stock which contained a paragraph stating: "There are no options or warrants of any nature whatsoever for the purchase of any authorized or issued stock of this corporation."

Questions leading to the disclosure of such information are expected to become a standard part of the exchange's questionnaire answered by applicants for listing stock.

Banks in Panama Reduce Interest Rate to 6 Pct.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PANAMA CITY, Dec. 17.—Panama's national bank as well as American and British branch banks here have reduced interest rates on loans from 8 and 9 to 6 per cent. The local banks' outstanding loans are largely to private individuals and total more than $6,000,000. The government is supporting the interest reduction which is intended to retain money in the country instead of having it go out in interest payments through the foreign branches here.

FORMER U.S. TREASURY OFFICIAL RAPS CHANGE IN INCOME TAX LAW

New York, Dec. 17.—[Special.]—Arthur A. Ballantine, former undersecretary of the treasury, in an address at the Union League club, criticized recent suggestions for changes in the federal income tax law made by the subcommittee of the ways and means committee at Washington. Mr. Ballantine asserted that some of the proposals would tend to make the law "harsh and arbitrary" instead of more equitable in its application.

"Instead of working out detailed suggestions for preventing tax avoidance," he said, "the subcommittee has recommended certain broad changes which while making against tax avoidance in a limited number of cases, in ordinary cases make against fairness and the recognition of sound business practices."

Elimination of the nontaxable exemption for securities received or exchanged in reorganization transactions, as proposed by the subcommittee, would "unquestionably tend to increase the difficulty of effecting many reorganizations which are likely to be essential in the reconstruction period," said Mr. Ballantine. "The public has become accustomed to the present system and it seems of questionable policy to change it for a different and more complicated system itself resting upon a compromise basis."

Regarding the proposal that capital losses be deductable only to the extent of capital gains in the case of corporations, just as in the case of individuals, Mr. Ballantine expressed the fear that in many instances this would lead to controversy as to whether the loss was in fact a capital loss.

CITIES FORCED TO LOWER TAXES BY DEPRESSION

Average Still $34.61 Per $1,000 Value.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 17.—The average tax rate for reporting cities throughout the country for 1933 was reduced by $1.30 per $1,000 of assessed valuation for 1932, according to C. E. Rightter of the Detroit bureau of governmental research in his twelfth annual compilation for the National Municipal league. This reduction, he points out, reflects the pressure of economic conditions upon local governments everywhere.

"The average tax rate for all cities [279 reporting completely] is $34.61," he says. "The average rate for 277 cities reporting last year was $36.71.

Cut $1.10 on $1,000 Valuation.

"Thus, a reduction of $1.10 per $1,000 valuation is indicated in the average tax rate for this year, although not all the same cities are included in the two years.

"The valuation of all cities reporting is $75,005,000,000, of which $6,658,000,000 is of Canadian cities. The per capita average assessment is $1,580, and for United States cities only is $1,580. Comparison with last year's table shows a falling off in both total and per capita. It is found that 108 cities have cut their taxable values, 14 have raised, and 61 report no change in property values. The Canadian cities report six reductions, one increase and eight unchanged."

Valuation Rises in Decade.

In summarizing, Mr. Rightter points out that during the last decade the assessed valuation has increased 34.7 per cent and the per capita assessment 8.0 per cent. He adds, however, that this rate of expansion in taxable values is tempered by the substantial recession of the last two years. The valuation in New York City during the last ten years rose 73.8 per cent.

TIN OPERATIONS REDUCED.

Some of the smaller tin plate manufacturers are reported to have reduced operations during the past week. The larger makers are understood to be working at a high rate filling domestic and export shipping demands.

REORGANIZATION OF CONTINENTAL SUGAR PLANNED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 17.—The committee for holders of Continental Sugar company first mortgage fifteen year 1 per cent sinking fund bonds has announced a plan of reorganization and asked for deposits not later than noon next Saturday. The United States District court for the northern district of Ohio, the committee reports, has set Dec. 18 for the sale of the company's properties.

The holder of each $1,000 of bonds assenting to the plan will receive $1,250 upon conveyance of the properties to the new company, $500 in cash and $750 in second preferred stock, which, it is believed, will be retired from earnings in three or four years. Each bondholder may subscribe for eight shares of first preferred stock and eight of common at the same price at which the bankers will underwrite the issue.

The Continental Bank and Trust company is depository for the committee.

Raw Sugar Stocks Lower on Increased Purchasing

Raw sugar stocks in licensed New York warehouses decreased more than 100,000 bags from Dec. 7 to Dec. 15, according to the New York Coffee and Sugar exchange. This decrease, said the exchange, "is in line with the recent drop of 11 points in spot sugar." Buyers decided to purchase sugars in New York because of their inability to get prompt supplies from producing countries. Stocks on Dec. 15 were 516,547 bags.

At DeLEE You Learn

BEAUTY CULTURE

Quickly—Easily Thoroughly

QUICKLY—because you receive individual instruction under the personal direction of Madame Louise, internationally famous stylist and beauty expert.

EASILY—because DeLEE "University type" of training simplifies learning. You learn by practicing on living models. Classrooms are colorful, light and roomy. Equipment is 100% new and up-to-the-minute.

THOROUGHLY — because DeLEE does not graduate a student until she has attained genuine proficiency. At DeLEE you receive unlimited instruction at no extra cost. In fact, there are no "extra charges" for anything at DeLEE—one reasonable tuition fee covers everything.

Register now and assure yourself a place in the class which will start just after the holidays. Come in today and talk with the DeLEE Dean, Miss Ruby Lorrain Stevens, or write for interesting book. Convenient terms can be arranged.

REVEAL EXTORTION ATTEMPT AGAINST BROKER AND EX-GOLF CHAMPION. The gate of Mellody farm, the former J. Ogden Armour estate in Lake Forest, where Robert A. Gardner placed dummy package last Friday after receiving demand for $10,000 on penalty of having his son, Henry Keep Gardner, 11, kidnaped. (Story on page 1.)

COMMUNISTS BATTLE UKRAINIANS DURING PARADE ON WEST SIDE; MANY TAKEN TO HOSPITAL. General view of riot yesterday which started when communists began hurling bricks on marching Ukrainians from elevated structure at Madison street and Hermitage avenue. The Ukrainians were protesting against the red rule in their homeland and seeking to raise funds for use in relieving suffering abroad. (Story on page 1.)

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER IN EXTORTION CASE. Mrs. Robert A. Gardner, whose Lake Forest home is under guard, and her daughter, Mary. The daughter was mentioned in note, but apparently in error. (Story on page 1.)
